19TH DAY IN AIR; KEEP FLYING

MINORITY LISTS ITS OBJECTIONS TO NAVY TREATY

Report to the Senate Today.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—A sweeping and detailed denunciation of the London navy limitation treaty as inimical to the United States is presented in a minority report from the foreign relations committee signed by Senators Hiram W. Johnson [Rep., Cal.], George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], and Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.], which will be filed in the senate tomorrow.

Summation of Reasons.

Summed up, the reasons presented by the minority for opposing ratification of the treaty are:

"1. It abandons the American naval policy, sustained for more than a century, and especially with regard to the protection of American commerce on the high seas.

"2. The splendid example of sacrifice made by our country in 1922, and another our marked restraint in naval building, have actually been utilized to our detriment and have been given the excuse for still further sacrifice unmatched by any other nation.

"3. At Washington in 1922 our naval superiority in battleship power was enumerated without commensurate return. Now our great superiority in destroyers and submarines is nearly eliminated without material concession. Both at Washington and London, British diplomacy succeeded in doing this to us, while at the same time retaining Great Britain's superiority in cruiser forces, in which they went into both conferences.

Destroys 5-5-3 Ratio.

"4. The London treaty destroys the ratio so dearly bought at Washington.

"5. The surrender of the 5-5-3 ratio greatly reduces our ability to protect a rapidly growing trade, which has already reached proportions of great magnitude, and upon which American business, prosperity and livelihood vitally depend.

"6. The treaty does not give us parity with Great Britain in naval strength and leaves us far from parity in naval power or commerce protection.

"7. By leaving to Japan and Great Britain battle cruisers which could be partly compensated for by conversion to the United States of modified 8-inch gun cruisers, a further and additional advantage is given Japan and Great Britain.

"8. We are denied the kind and number of cruisers our needs demand.

"Building Permits" from Britain.

"9. We can build the cruisers which Britain 'permits' us to build, but not those we ourselves because of our requirements, desire to build.

"10. The treaty hamstrings us in the Pacific by its unjustified and unfair increase in the ratio of Japan. It keeps open to our bargain not to strengthen our far Pacific bases, yielded as the consideration for the ratio while permitting the other party to the bargain to evade its obligations.

"11. The treaty makes no saving to our taxpayers. On the contrary, as acted upon, it adds a billion dollars to our expenditures. It is a billion dollar treaty for the purchase of naval inferiority.

"12. And lastly, the treaty may imperil our vast sea borne commerce, and endanger our country's future. It is unfair and unjust to the United States, and it should not be ratified."

Moses to Present Memorandum.

In addition to signing the minority report Senator Moses will file a memorandum animadverting upon the "indecent haste" with which consideration of the treaty "is being pressed." "We are asked," says Senator Moses, "to pass upon it without sufficient time to study its provisions and under the handicap of being denied information which it is our constitutional right to possess."

Senator Johnson also presents a separate addendum in which he enumerates by title and number scores of dispatches and other documents bearing upon the negotiation of the treaty which President Hoover refused to furnish on the ground of incompatibility with the public interest.

The minority report describes in detail the concessions made by the American delegation at the London conference to Great Britain and Japan and in effect accuses the American delegation of throwing away a pat hand at the beginning of the game.

"There is no reasonable or legitimate excuse for the surrender of the American position at London or the acceptance of every proposal made by

FISHER FIRES FINAL SHOT AT ORDINANCE FOES

ELECTION FACTS

WHERE TO VOTE—3,009 polling places within city limits. Open 6 a. m. to 4 p. m. tomorrow.

QUALIFIED VOTERS—All Chicago citizens listed on registration books of April primary, who have not since changed abode. Those who have moved may vote on affidavits signed by themselves and one householder now on registration lists.

PROPOSAL—Shall the ordinance passed by the city council on May 19, providing a comprehensive, unified, local transportation system, be passed?

TOTAL REGISTRATION—Approximately 1,200,000.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The battle over the transportation ordinance, which will be submitted to a referendum of the voters tomorrow between 6 a. m. and 4 p. m., continued vigorously yesterday.

Thirteen more organizations were reported as having indorsed the ordinance. This makes a total of 237. Ald. McDonough, chairman of the general committee favoring the ordinance, made this comment:

"This ordinance pledges more and better transportation. It guarantees it under the severest enforceable penalties. The construction of the added facilities will relieve unemployment. The opponents promise no additional transportation and no work. I sincerely hope there is a large vote, because sentiment overwhelmingly favors the ordinance."

Fisher Raps Opponents.

Attorney Walter L. Fisher, who aided in the drafting of the ordinance, issued a statement in which he said:

"One thing ought to be perfectly clear to every intelligent voter, and this is that the opposition has produced not one criticism or suggestion—not one workable alternative to this ordinance. Whatever might be said of its faults or its failings, there is no possible alternative or substitute offered, or even suggested, by which any improvements or extensions of the system or the service can be obtained.

"If this ordinance is defeated the men, the women, and the children who must use the surface and elevated lines will be given no relief. The service must continue to be as inadequate and as uncomfortable as it is today, and the public must continue to pay as much as it pays today for just such service as it gets today.

Sees Ordinance as Vital.

"Indeed, the service must constantly grow worse and more and more inadequate if the street railways are operated under temporary permits or without any permits at all. The money for improvements and extensions cannot be raised without a new ordinance.

"Chicago and its people, its business, its property are suffering incalculable injury for the lack of a constructive solution of its traction problem, and the critics of this ordinance have no workable substitute to offer. It is literally true they have no substitute at all.

"On the day when the drafting of this ordinance was started, many months ago, it was perfectly sure that when it was completed and no matter what provisions it contained, certain people would turn up in opposition. The roll of the inevitable obstructionists could have been called then and it would have been answered by Wiley W. Mills, H. L. Ickes, Edward F. Dunne, Carl D. Thompson, Newton Jenkins and Carter H. Harrison; and no one of them would have had a substitute ordinance to suggest."

Gives Opinion of Opposition.

Mr. Fisher says there are others on the roll call, but those named present a fair cross-section of the opposition. He characterizes them as follows:

"Some of them are simply theorists without any conception of practical reality. Some are very practical organizers and officers of the Socialist party seeking to promote its interests

Gunmen Cart Off U. S. Rum in Warehouse

A gang of at least ten gunmen, posing as federal prohibition agents, raided a government store of confiscated liquor at 5210 South Wabash avenue late last night and drove away with two truckloads of whisky which it was believed would run into tens of thousands of dollars.

The government storehouse is on the second floor of the Advance Storage company building and is under the administration of Capt. R. D. Smith, an agent for the federal prohibition bureau. It is a depository for liquor seized in dry raids and also for a part of the malt and brewing supplies seized recently in the store of Joe Grein at 210 West Madison street.

Guarded by Watchman.

Last night the storehouse was guarded by Paul Perry, 30 years old, 8235 Emerald avenue, a night watchman. About 10:30 Perry answered the night bell on the elevator at the north side of the building and descended to the street level.

Through a peephole in the door he saw two men who were carrying five gallon cans. Later he told the Wabash avenue police that it was customary for prohibition agents to appear at the warehouse with similar cans to make tests of the liquor store. Consequently, he said, he opened the door without question and the two strangers entered.

Seized and Hoodwinked.

Both quickly drew pistols and before Perry could protest one of them threw an overcoat over his head and pinioned his arms. The gunman's companion opened the door and admitted a troop of other men who had been waiting outside. Perry told the police he could not see how many invaders there were, but that by the sound of their passing he judged there must have been between ten and fifteen.

They all entered the elevator with Perry in their midst and were transported to the second floor, where, removing their coats, they set to work carrying out sacks and cases of whisky. Meanwhile Perry was placed in a corner, still with the coat over his head.

"I'll blow your head off if you say a word," his guard said to him, Perry told the police.

Two Trucks Roll Away.

The gang had been carrying liquor to the lower floor for some time, Perry said, when he heard the roar of a truck and the rumble of its wheels as it rolled away from the building. Shortly after midnight the gangsters ceased their labors and two of their number, who appeared to be the leaders, threatened him again if he notified the police. Then they all entered the elevator and departed. The motor of a second truck was started and it also pulled away with its heavy load.

Capt. Smith was notified of the robbery at his home by the police, but said he could not estimate the extent of the loss until a survey is made this morning. The police said they believed that the loot included sacks of Gold Label American bourbon and Indian Hill bourbon which was concealed in a lumber car recently raided by dry agents in a Chicago railroad yard. This shipment was valued at $86,000.

BEAR TEARS OFF ARM OF 3 YEAR OLD GIRL AT COUNTRY CLUB

Approaching too near a bear cage at the Medinah Country club, west of Itasca, Du Page county, Barbara Cross, 3 years old, a daughter of Mrs. Margaret Cross, 7635 Greenview avenue, was seized by the hand by one of animals, and it was torn off before her screams could bring help. The upper arm also was severely lacerated. At the Edgewater hospital, Chicago, where the child was taken after first aid had been given at the club, it was said that while the child's injuries are serious they probably would not result fatally.

Barbara had been taken to the club for an outing by friends of Mrs. Cross. Two bears were confined in a cage near the entrance to the grounds. The child, with some other little girls, went to the cage to look at the animals. It is believed that Barbara tried to stroke one of the animals through the bars and it seized her hand. Charles Nadler, 3638 Sheridan road, and several other club members rushed to the child's aid. She was hurried to the clubhouse, where a tourquinet was applied to staunch the bleeding. She was then taken to the hospital, where Dr. William Michaels operated on the arm.

COOLIDGE RIDES IN A PARADE AS THRONGS CHEER

Springfield, Mass., June 29.—[Special.]—Former President Coolidge, noted all his life for his disinclination to appear in parades, broke his rule today by riding as a guest of honor in a Polish convention procession in Ware. When it was announced a few days ago by officials arranging for the convention that Mr. Coolidge would ride in the parade the committee could have obtained odds of 3 to 1 that they were mistaken.

Nevertheless Mr. Coolidge seemed to be enjoying the affair. He received an ovation from the townspeople and delegates all along the line of march.

Girl Burned to Death; Save 3 Brothers

Gladys Zeilstra, 11 years old, was burned to death and her brother, Walter, 16 years old, was injured, possibly fatally, late last night when they and three other children were trapped in their burning home at 183d street and Hood avenue, Homewood. The fire, started by the explosion of a coal oil lamp in a second floor bedroom, swept swiftly through the frame dwelling, imperiling the eldest brother and a policeman as they rescued two younger children.

Gladys and Walter, with the other children—Theodore, 18 years old; Sidney, 3, and Carl, 2—were left alone in the house last evening while their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eaton Zeilstra, drove to Hammond for dinner. The house had been recently moved from another location and electric lights had not yet been installed.

Children Sleeping; Fire Starts.

All the children were in bed when the fire started shortly after 11 o'clock. Theodore was awakened by the odor of smoke and the crackling of flames. He picked up Carl, who was sleeping in the same room, dashed down the stairs and across the street to a neighbor's home, where he telephoned the Homewood police.

Meanwhile Walter had awakened and, finding himself surrounded by fire, he leaped from the second story window to the ground with his night clothing aflame, suffering serious injuries in the fall.

Policemen Leo Woodward and Herbert Kitter of the Homewood force responded to Theodore's call for help. At the foot of the stairs to the second floor they found 3 year old Sidney crying. He had been sleeping downstairs and had been awakened by the commotion. Woodward carried him out while Kitter dashed up the stairway to the room where Gladys was sleeping, guarded by a young police dog.

Child and Dog Perish.

Flames drove back the policeman as he opened the door and he caught only a glimpse of the child in her bed with the dog on the floor beside her before he had to run. A few minutes later the roof fell just as Mr. and Mrs. Zeilstra drove up in front of their ruined home.

The bodies of the child and dog were later recovered from the debris. Walter was taken to the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey, where his injuries were reported critical.

Crowds Cheer Brothers for New Air Mark

News on the Wing

While the Chicago endurance plane was piling up the hours on a new record yesterday, other aviation events contributed to the day's news:

Roger Q. Williams, ocean flyer, made a 1,600 mile nonstop flight from New York to Bermuda and return in 17 hours 8 minutes. Story on page 3.

John and Kenneth Hunter, the Spartan youths from Sparta, Ill., flew into their 19th day over Sky Harbor last night, bringing a new air endurance record to the world, fame to themselves, and renown to the downstate town where, not long ago, they labored in a coal mine to raise funds for their first airplane.

Yesterday morning as the sun rose over Lake Michigan the refueling endurance flyers passed the 429 hour record set last year by the St. Louis Robin, received a tremendous ovation from a crowd of 15,000 that waited through the night to cheer them, and flew on. At 3:40 this morning the City of Chicago, their second hand Stinson Detroiter, had been in the air 443 hours, 23 hours better than the record of the St. Louis flyers, Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine.

Plan Long Stay Aloft.

How long the Hunter brothers plan to stay aloft depended last night on their motor and their ability to fight off sleep. Shortly after they went into the "overtime" period they dropped a note saying they wouldn't be down for a long time.

"We'll be tossing firecrackers out of the plane on the Fourth of July. Everything O. K." Albert and Walter, the two refueling Hunter brothers, believed that the flyers will likely stick it out until next Saturday, perhaps longer. If they stay up until Saturday they will have been in the air 25 days without touching the ground, five days short of a month.

Have Difficulty in Refueling.

Some uneasiness was caused last night when minor trouble began to develop. For one thing the plane's navigation lights went out, making it difficult for ground observers to follow the craft's movements.

The refueling flyers made one futile search for the darkened ship last night and returned. In a second trip they jockeyed for several minutes, hovering over the dark shadow, before they got into the proper position to contact. Then the fuel delivered was 20 gallons less than the proper quota, for the endurance flyers, weary and uncertain of their movements, had apparently broken contact too soon.

Plans to make another perilous contact in the darkness were abandoned and the refueling Hunters, haggard from a day of excitement and worry, went to bed confident that the plane had enough fuel aboard to last until 3 a. m. when they hoped the first light of dawn would enable them to replenish the supply.

How much cash the Hunter boys

18 YEAR CAREER OF LINGLE AS REPORTER TOLD

Record Searched for Light on Killing.

$55,825 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,825 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. The information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in Room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

BY ROBERT M. LEE,
[City editor of The Tribune.]

Many of the things that are now being said of Jake Lingle were not being said, so far as is known, a month ago, but the storm of questions and suspicions and rumors, some confirmed, others unconfirmed, has been so violent as to raise in any reasonable person's mind the further question:

How could Jake Lingle have continued with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for eighteen years without his associates and superiors knowing the things that are now being discussed?

18 Years on Tribune.

Lingle worked as a reporter for this paper under four city editors in the last 18 years, under the present city editor for the last ten of those years. There had been no suspicion of his integrity by the city editor's office until after his murder. How that came to be so shall be explained here below.

It is an old proverb that the cobbler's children usually go unshod. Which is to say that in the newspaper business, which requires that all those associated with it keep their eyes and ears open for the deeds and misdeeds of others, there is the least likelihood of hearing comment upon the deeds, good or bad, of its own fraternity. The head of a family does not customarily go about investigating evil reports of the members of his flock. He assumes that the normal tradition and character of his establishment is an assurance to him that all is well.

Insinuations and Facts.

This is not to say that from time to time insinuations have not come to the office about Lingle. Lingle had enemies (at least there were men who didn't like him) and some of these from time to time have made slurring remarks about Lingle. None of the insinuations was ever accompanied by facts and it was natural, so it seemed then, at least, to put these insinuations down to personal grievances.

There probably isn't a police reporter in Chicago or any other city who hasn't made enmities which propagated reflections on the reporter's character.

Jake Lingle had been a member of THE TRIBUNE staff for 18 years, and in all that time there had been, so far as the executives of the news staff were able to determine, no lack of accuracy in his reports, no lack of zeal in his duties to go out and collect news, and no failure that was unexplainable to produce news, at least as readily as it appeared in the columns of other newspapers.

The news room judgment of Lingle was that of an unusual personality, who had built up over long years his own peculiar style of news gathering, and who had acquired a wide and important acquaintanceship. It is worth mentioning that a newspaper reporter's chief asset in the business of his life is wide acquaintanceship and the confidence of those whose acquaintance he enjoys. It had never been doubted that Lingle knew as many or more men in all walks of life in Chicago as any other person in the newspaper calling. From his earliest experiences as a boy in the employ of THE TRIBUNE he had displayed a preference for gathering police news.

Knew Detective Heads.

In the days previous to the so-called gangster era, which began around 1920, Lingle's work was largely in the direction of such things as the detective agencies, which led him, for illustration, into an intimacy with the late William A. Pinkerton, William J. Burns, Raymond Burns, and other leading lights in the private detective world.

Labor troubles were the chief avenues of news in the so-called racketeering world in those times, and Lingle acquired a wide acquaintanceship among labor men and the so-called "wrecking crews" employed at that time by ruthless labor leaders.

When the United States entered the war Lingle was asked to enlist in the navy so that he could be assigned to the intelligence unit. This was regarded as fitting because of his capacity for investigation. He served through his enlistment as a member of the naval intelligence department.

The Colosimo Case.

In the years between 1913 and 1919 the common resort of some of our best townspeople, together with many of the morning newspaper workers, was Colosimo's restaurant in Wabash avenue at 22d street. Lingle became well acquainted with Colosimo and later with Johnny Torrio. Torrio at that time was an inconspicuous importation from the east side of New York who went about in his shirt sleeves and attracted none of the attention which he later drew when prohibition became the order. The murder of Colisimo, which followed not so long after the killing of "Moses" Enright, was one of the highly spectacular homicides in the history of Chicago gangdom. It is fair to assume that every available reporter who knew his way about among the gang leaders of Chicago was employed on that story. The Colosimo murder is in itself a sufficient illustration of the fact that every newspaper, to print full and complete stories of crimes of that character, found it was necessary to have a man who knew how to get that news.

Lingle's Personality.

It is here that Jake Lingle's personality seemed important. He had an easy and pleasant affability. There was an unmistakable charm about him that completely disarmed any one whom he thought it worth while to cultivate. He had easily earned the reputation of good samaritan. He was first at the bedside of a sick associate. He was first to lend money to a coworker in distress; first to send flowers to a sorrowing home. It was obvious, of course, that he did not seek to cultivate all persons. There were plenty of those whom he disliked, and he had a pungent, searing method of description for those who displeased him.

On the other hand, he had for years cultivated the acquaintanceship of members of the police department from chief down. He counted among his friends and acquaintances an amazing list of persons in all walks of life and he knew, as there was no reason to doubt in the news room of THE TRIBUNE, as many or more gang leaders as any other reporter. He may have not known more, but it is doubtful if he knew fewer.

In this connection much has been made of the fact that Lingle was a personal friend of Al Capone.

Lingle first became acquainted with Capone when he was brought to Chicago by Torrio. In his capacity as reporter of gangster activities Lingle called frequently upon Capone interviewed him, and, for want of a better phrase, won his confidence.

There were times when in the quest for news of gangdom reporters called upon for that information must needs know where and how to reach gangdom leaders. Lingle had to have Capone's confidence in order to have access to his haunts; in order to be able to find Capone when information from or about that gangster was sought either as background or for the news itself.

Had Long Known Capone.

Lingle knew Capone when he was an inconspicuous figure in gang life. He continued to know him better as Capone grew in influence in gangdom. There seemed nothing sinister about that relationship at that time.

Capone waxed rich. He was known as a generous gift maker. Much has been made of a diamond belt buckle which he gave Lingle several Christmases ago. It was reported in the office that Lingle had received a present. Lingle grinned and was mysterious, as usual, when asked about it.

He said the reports of the "diamond belt buckle" were exaggerated. That buckle which is now given a sinister aspect seemed an inconsequential matter then. For there was no background then of insinuations.

It is asserted now—facts may later be uncovered—that Lingle used his influence to further the interests of the Capone gang. The office had no reason to believe that before Lingle's death. Files of THE TRIBUNE reveal columns upon columns of news matter exposing Capone gang activities. Lingle furnished much of the material for these columns. Lingle never objected to an assignment requesting facts to be used in Capone exposures.

When Capone was in jail in Philadelphia interviews with the gangster were considered news. Lingle was sent to talk to Capone. Others wrote the stories—Lingle got them. There seemed nothing wrong in Lingle's ability to get those interviews at that time. When Capone was freed, Lingle because of his known familiarity with Capone was sent to Philadelphia with instructions to interview Capone. Lingle fell down on the assignment. This didn't seem indicative, at the time, that Lingle was "Capone's ally."

Lingle's Attachment to Duty.

There have been among the many rumors of his activities one in particular, that he lived a rather roving life and was not accountable to his office. This is quite incorrect. Most reporters on morning newspapers arrive at their offices at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. They are customarily at liberty after 9:30 o'clock in the evening. It is the judgment of the assistant city editors in charge of assignments that Lingle was more frequently called out of bed at 8 or 9 o'clock in the morning, or at 2 or 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, than any other reporter.

When it is considered that 8 o'clock a. m. to a morning newspaper reporter is the equivalent of midnight to the average man it will be seen that he was required to spend many sleepless nights in pursuit of news. All reporters on THE TRIBUNE, unless specially excused, are required to report by telephone to the assistant city editor at intervals of no longer than two hours. While Lingle may not have been exactly scrupulous in this duty, the memory of those who received his reports is that he was not far below the average in punctuality. It was known that he frequented prize fights, race tracks, and other gatherings of this nature. This seemed an entirely logical proceeding, inasmuch as the gentry concerning whom he was chiefly engaged in gathering information were most likely to be found at such places. He customarily spent his evenings from dinner time until 9:30 o'clock, frequently staying on his own account until 11 or 12 o'clock, in the news room of THE TRIBUNE.

The fire alarm telegraph never rang in THE TRIBUNE news room that Lingle was not the first one to catch the signal, call for a photographer, and hurry away on the assignment. On all important police assignments he was the first to offer himself, although there could be a dozen reporters at hand who might more logically be called upon to go. Although he can be said to have had a roving assignment, yet a day rarely passed that he was not given several daily assignments along with his general police duty.

Some point has been made of his summer residence near the Michigan-Indiana line. It is doubtful if a summer had ever passed in the last fifteen years that he did not go to Michigan. In the years previous as well as subsequent to 1920 his vacation customarily was spent in a small resort at Holland, Mich., which he preferred because it was always occupied by a constantly changing population of policemen and firemen, all of whom he knew well.

Two years ago he was told by physicians that he was a victim of stomach ulcers and that it would be necessary for him to take six months away from the paper and do nothing but rest. He went to some resort in the neighborhood of Michigan City, and it was commonly known that he rented an inconspicuous house there in which he spent the summer with his family.

It has also been said that he was in the habit of spending his winters in Cuba. When he did so he was absent rarely more than two weeks, which would be regarded as his vacation period, and sometimes this would be extended to three weeks, he preferring to take the third week at his own expense. It was never considered remarkable that he should take a two or three weeks' trip to Cuba.

Takes Trip with Stege.

On one of his trips Lingle and his wife were accompanied by John Stege, chief of detectives, and Mrs. Stege. This association is cited now to demonstrate that Lingle and the police officials were in an unholy alliance. Stege, in fact, was regarded as a high class police official. The trip of the two together had no sinister appearance at the time. Lingle was regarded as well to do, through inheritance, and able to take such vacation trips.

Incidentally, that visit which Lingle made to Capone's Miami Beach home—now circulated as proof of a wrong relationship between the gangster and Lingle—took place in what then seemed a natural manner. Lingle was returning from Cuba. Capone was playing a bizarre rôle in Miami affairs. He was entertaining on a lavish scale, taking big parties to the race track daily. According to Lingle's own account of the Capone visit, he (Lingle) met the gangster at the race track, was invited to visit Capone's home, and did. Sinister? It didn't seem so then.

Story of Fortune.

As to Lingle's financial ability to do the things that he was known to have done there had been no question. Eight years ago he explained that through the death of his father he had come into considerable money. It is true that the records of the Probate court have since indicated that this estate was around $500. No one on THE TRIBUNE ever took the trouble—before the murder—to look into this estate and ascertain if in fact the father's estate was large. There was an impression in the office as long as seven or eight years ago that the inheritance to Lingle was perhaps $100,000. So he was regarded as that anomaly, a comparatively wealthy reporter. Every one thought so. Lingle frequently spoke of some houses and real estate involved in the transaction and occasionally would mention his need of funds to take care of the taxes and repairs. These things occurred years before these recent events which have become so widely exploited.

Uncle's Death Is Reported.

Subsequent to the death of his father occurred that of his uncle, and while it is not recollected that Lingle made any specific statement, it became the commonly accepted belief in the news room of THE TRIBUNE that he had acquired an additional small fortune through the will of this uncle.

And in all of these years from 1922 until 1928 he had not been known to make any particular display of sums of money disproportionate to his believed circumstances. It was at the beginning of the bull market that he began to take an interest in stock speculation. In fact the whole country seemed to be buzzing with that same frenzy. Through acquaintances he had made he was believed to have invested in shares of Simmons Bed at a price presumably about 80. This stock immediately advanced in price and continued to rise until it reached something more than 180. During this process, through conversations which Lingle frankly had with members of the staff, it was commonly believed that by the process known as pyramiding he had increased his fortune materially at least on paper. It was also believed that he had lost his paper profits in the great slump, but that he had been able to guard himself against actual loss.

Even before Lingle was believed to have inherited an estate he was known to have a penchant for betting on horses. When racing came back to Chicago Lingle's betting (it now develops) became more regular. Lingle always boasted when he won; he never talked about his losses. He was called "lucky" by his associates.

Frequent Borrower in Office.

Another factor which prevented any office speculation because of Lingle's bank roll was the fact that Lingle was accustomed to make frequent requests upon his associates for the "loan of $50 or a $100." Those who had checking accounts readily acquiesced. Lingle gave no explanation for his need of loans—that he really was pressed for funds was not taken seriously. They were more on the order of "overnight loans."

It is a matter for wonder even now why up until the time of his death Lingle continued his borrowing from office associates. No one ever suspected for a moment that Lingle was borrowing sums outside the office. And the fact that he so frequently borrowed small sums off friends in the office would have given the lie—if rumors had come that Lingle was daily handling big sums of money.

Thus there was no reason for Lingle's associates to question his ability to build a home in Michigan. Lingle had told office associates that he was "now putting my money into a home. I'm off the market."

It seemed only natural to assume that Lingle was buying the new home out of his original capital—the capital which he told his associates the market crash hadn't touched.

Lingle was born on the west side and therefore knew almost every character that developed from that region of the city. Some have become politicians of note and others have directed their somewhat violent energies in other directions, but a great majority of them were those he had known in boyhood and at school.

His Wide Acquaintanceship.

While the chief emphasis has been laid upon Lingle's acquaintance with police characters, it is also interesting to reflect that he also knew many men in all other grades of life.

Of lawyers he knew scores, among them maintaining an easy familiarity with Oscar E. Carlstrom, the attorney general, and Harry Ash, assistant attorney general. He was accustomed to drop in casually on judges of the Circuit and Superior courts.

Mention has already been made of the friendship that existed between Lingle and Arthur Cutten. This was known as also that he had often been a dinner guest at the Cuttens' as well as at the home of Joy Morton. Those who marvel at his La Salle street trading may reflect that an acquaintance with Cutten is in itself no mean asset.

He was known to have kept in touch with Hinton G. Clabaugh when Clabaugh was head of the pardon and parole board, and had been a friend of Charles F. Clyne, formerly United States district attorney.

It has been mentioned that Tony Kissane had acted as his bodyguard. Lingle had known Kissane from early boyhood and thought no more of hailing Kissane or of walking along the street with him than with any visiting duke. He knew the so-called First ward crowd, as indeed what police reporter has not in the last 40 years? It was old John Kelley, a veteran police reporter now retired, who used occasionally to knock off a poem which he would attribute to Bathhouse John Coughlin, and there is hardly a reporter of the old Harrison street neighborhood who did not claim an intimate knowledge of affairs in and about Mike Kenna's cigar store, formerly the dressup saloon.

Pride in Police Knowledge.

It is probably true that Lingle felt a certain superiority over the others of his clan in police reporting. His wide knowledge of the police department, which probably was equaled only by such diligent veterans as John Kelley, Jimmie Murphy, and Buddy McHugh, gave him in all probability a somewhat lofty idea of his capabilities. And yet there have been periods in which the police administration was far from friendly to THE TRIBUNE, and under these circumstances Lingle would writhe and bear a most unhappy burden in trying to get news when he considered the cards stacked against him.

Since his death Lingle has been called the "unofficial chief of police." Whatever the revelations now, the belief before the murder was that the intimacy with Russell was an old friendship. Of his financial intimacy with Russell, of which so much is now known, there was nothing known at that time beyond the fact that they had been close friends for twenty years and that their friendship was no sudden burst of confidence.

Competition for News.

Lingle's peculiar field of reporting grew up as a result of the bitter and unrelenting competition for news in Chicago. There never has been a time in the last ten years when the struggle to keep abreast of the news has not been a consuming fire. The man who covers courts must know his courts; the man who covers the city hall must know his city hall; the man who covers legislature must know his legislators; the man who covers Washington must know his Washington.

The gangster as we now understand him is the product of this decade. It was necessary that the man who covered gangdom should know his gangsters. Lingle did know his gangsters. So far as the news reports of this paper could be judged he was scrupulous and accurate. There is no consciousness that he ever omitted to report a story or that he reported that should not have been reported.

These impressions are here set down without any thought of making a defense for Lingle; only to present a view of him as he appeared during the years he was a reporter—up to the hour of his murder.

Memory Aid to New Detective Chief in War Against Crime

For more years than he cares to admit, Chief of Detectives John Norton has been assigned to the detective bureau as patrolman, sergeant, and lieutenant of detectives. And he has a memory. Now, as chief of the bureau, that memory is working for the people of Chicago.

"That's a fellow we were looking for 15 years ago for a murder," Chief Norton said yesterday, pointing to a prisoner in the "showup" line who has been in two penitentiaries in the last decade and who is now held for a murder.

Expect Crime Solutions.

Norton's aids remarked that he hasn't forgotten any of the big unsolved crimes of Chicago nor those whose names were linked with the crimes, and that now, as the boss of the bureau, through which thousands of prisoners pass each year, instead of having his activities confined to a particular territory, they are expecting him to clear up many of the old-time mysteries.

He and his detective, John Ryan, were reorganizing their reduced forces yesterday. Lieut. John L. Sullivan, formerly a supervising squad leader whose courage and ability were often tested, was temporarily put in charge of the stolen automobile section. Lieut. Otto Erlanson was to be taken from the homicide squad and assigned to more important duties out of Norton's office.

Rivalry for Squad.

The homicide squad is a coveted post at the bureau and competition for a place on it is keen. Chief Norton was said to be considering Lieut. Sullivan for this squad if he finds it advisable to put some one else in command of the automobile section. Lieut. William L. McCarthy and Lieut. John McGinnis are the other leaders of the homicide squad, which is separated into three shifts, and Norton has said he expects to keep them there.

McFarland Suspension Surprise.

The suspension of Lieut. Thomas McFarland surprised his friends at the bureau. McFarland was suspended by Acting Commissioner Alcock when he failed to report for uniform duty at the Burnside station, to which he had been transferred, despite his plea to be listed as "injured on duty."

Lieut. McFarland was wounded last November in a gun battle with Anthony Larkin, a murder suspect, and spent many months in a hospital. He returned to the bureau June 1 with the understanding he would not do active duty, and on June 22 was unable to report for work because of his injuries. In the detective bureau shake up he was transferred to the Burnside station.

Detectives from the state's attorney's office, under the command of Assistant State's Attorney George S. Lavin, searched the vicinity of Brown's lake, near Burlington, Wis., yesterday for suspects in the Lingle murder. They reported back they found "Big George" Vogel, a Chicago hoodlum who years ago killed a policeman, but didn't find the men they were seeking.

10,429 LIVE CHICAGOLAND NEW CENSUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Chicagoland's population is 10,429. During the last decade it grew from 1,422,999 inhabitants, a gain of 28.5 per cent, making it one of the most heavily settled regions in the world.

The complete tabulation of persons living in Chicago and the surrounding area was made possible today when the official preliminary 1930 census figures for the 32 counties within Chicagoland became available.

Counties of Chicagoland.

Political lines for the territory known as Chicagoland, of course, do not exist in calculating the population area included comprises the area shown in THE TRIBUNE'S map of Chicagoland published Dec. 1.

Roughly, this is a rectangular strip of land 200 miles north and south, 130 miles east and west, and notched deeply at the southeast corner by Lake Michigan. It includes 17 counties in Illinois, 7 in Indiana, and 7 in Wisconsin with an aggregate of 18,248 square miles of land. Although it reaches to Milwaukee, Wis., Rockford, Ill., and La Porte, Ind., at its outer limits, all the residents may be said to live within commuting distance of Chicago which lies at the center of the hub of a big wheel.

Chicagoland by Counties.

ILLINOIS.
Boone	15,322	15,068
Cook	3,053,017	3,989,069
DeKalb	31,339	32,629
DuPage	42,126	85,388
Grundy	18,580	18,665
Kane	99,499	125,258
Kankakee	44,940	50,077
Kendall	10,874	10,549
Lake	34,841	52,160
McHenry	74,385	103,350
Will	92,925	97,696
Winnebago	28,004	32,306
Ogle	39,070	39,080
Lee	33,164	35,0[illegible]
Whiteside	26,830	28,109
Rock Island	92,911	110,862
Henry	90,929	118,304
Total	3,827,850	4,923,580
INDIANA.
Jasper	15,861	13,124
Lake	159,257	258,920
Newton	50,443	50,929
Porter	16,144	9,836
Pulaski	20,256	22,804
Starke	12,385	11,195
White	10,278	10,621
Jasper	17,551	15,845
Total	294,775	402,274
WISCONSIN.
Kenosha	35,022	36,771
Racine	51,284	62,848
Milwaukee	539,449	715,587
Ozaukee	78,961	90,026
Waukesha	66,150	74,013
Walworth	42,612	52,291
Rock	29,327	31,039
Grand total	4,965,430	6,388,429

Those of the size of the Chicagoland population may be gained by comparing it with that were the area made a state it would be one of the largest in the Union, outranked only by New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio; more people live in Chicagoland than in many European countries, among them Bulgaria, Finland, Denmark, Greece, Norway, and Portugal. Standing in line with a space of three feet for each person the inhabitants of Chicagoland would stretch from New York to San Francisco, with nearly 500 miles of the line to spare.

One-twentieth of United States.

The Chicagoland population will approximate one-twentieth of the total population of the United States according to preliminary 1930 census estimates.

More than one-half of the Chicagoland population, 3,373,753 persons, live within the limits of Chicago itself, while 3,014,676 live outside, the majority of them in the fast growing suburban cities and villages which cluster about it. Divided by states, the 1930 Chicagoland figures are: Illinois, 4,923,580; Indiana, 402,274, and Wisconsin, 1,062,575.

It has been customary in Chicago to visualize the Chicago metropolitan area as comprising Cook county and the first tier of counties immediately adjacent—namely: Du Page, Kane, Lake, and Will counties in Illinois, and Lake county in Indiana. The population of this area, which covers 3,625 square miles, is 4,672,847, as compared to 3,521,789 in 1920.

	Sq. miles.	Population.
Chicago	210	3,373,753
Cook county	933	3,989,069
Metropolitan area	3,626	4,672,847
Chicagoland	18,288	6,388,429

Those who object to including Milwaukee as a part of Chicagoland may easily calculate that, subtracting the population of Milwaukee county 715,587, the Chicagoland population is only 5,672,842.

Concentration Toward Chicago.

The steady drift of population concentration toward Chicago which has been demonstrated by every new batch of population figures reported is further emphasized by an analysis of the Chicagoland county totals. As contrasted with the heavy gains in the first tier of counties seven located in the outer tier decreased slightly in population. These were Boone, and Iroquois in Illinois and Jasper, Newton, Pulaski, and White in Indiana.

The heaviest growth has occurred neither in the city proper nor in the outlying fringe of the Chicagoland region but in the suburban towns and villages lying in between. Scarcely any of these communities have registered gains of less than 50 per cent and many of them have gained from 100 to 500 per cent. The explanation is given that although the city remains the pulling force its workers are gradually moving further into the suburban area to establish their homes.

Days of Way Back When Revived

Policeman Albert Zahlava of the Central station caring for horse found strolling along Market street, near the Chicago Civic Opera house, yesterday morning and arrested in accordance with ancient city ordinance.

A Neighborly Neigh

A plaintive neigh caused a taxicab driver at Market and Washington streets yesterday to scan the scenery under the elevated structure. Behind a steel pillar stood a horse. As the driver stopped his cab the horse ambled over and thrust its head at him in friendly fashion. He led it over to the central police station, next the river, between Madison and Monroe streets. Desk Sergeant Dan McCarthy happened to have an apple in his dinner basket, which he fed him, also a piece of cake. The horse was tied to a post, under technical arrest because of an old ordinance, and there it stands, awaiting its owner.

FLIES NONSTOP N. Y. TO BERMUDA AND BACK, 17 HRS.

Williams Rides Out Storm on Outbound Trip.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Curtiss Field, L. I., June 29.—[Special.]—The Columbia, the trans-Atlantic Bellancia monoplane, with Roger Q. Williams as pilot, completed a round trip non-stop flight from Long Island to Bermuda at 10:10 p. m. (9:10 Chicago daylight time) tonight. The 1,560 mile flight to the tiny coral island and return was made in 17 hours and 8 minutes. The takeoff was from Roosevelt field at 5:02 a. m.

With Williams on the flight were Errol Boyd and Harry Conner, co-pilot and navigator, respectively. The flyers had been expected at Roosevelt field, and there were only a scattered few at Curtiss airport when they returned.

Weather Perfect for Landing.

Weather conditions were perfect for a night landing. A southeast breeze was blowing across the field, and the Columbia came in low over the hangars on the west side. Before landing Williams flew over Roosevelt field and then circled and flew ten miles across Garden City and Hempstead to the Valley Stream landing field.

When the famous old plane slipped past Roosevelt field, it left the official timer standing in front of the operations office, stop watch in hand. A few mechanics were making bets on the time of the arrival and there was sprinkling of spectators present. A few minutes later word was flashed back that the Columbia had landed at Curtiss field. It was said the flyers decided to land there because of a tieup with a newspaper syndicate.

The Columbia, on its flight, arrived over Hamilton, Bermuda, 760 miles from New York at 2:30 p. m. [1:30 Chicago daylight saving time] in a driving rainstorm. It circled the city twice above the heads of cheering spectators, dropped a bag of letters and swung to sea again, flying low and fast.

Disaster Nearly Got Them.

Disaster nearly overtook them close to Bermuda.

"Within forty miles of the island," Williams said, we struck one of the fiercest rain squalls I ever saw. We went down to 200 feet and came in over the city and circled. It looked like a landing on a field I couldn't see, as water got at the magneto and the engine began to kick up. We circled for twenty minutes hoping for a place to land or a let up in the rain. Finally we turned seaward again. A few miles out the rain stopped, the sky cleared and the old motor started doing its stuff again."

The Columbia twice sighted steamers. The Bermuda at 5 p. m. [eastern standard time], about 350 miles northwest of the island and the St. George, two hours later when the plane was within 150 miles of New York City.

Williams explained before starting on the Sunday non-stop hop that he was making the trip to "prove the feasibility of a regular passenger service between New York and Bermuda. He declared there were "plenty of backers" if the route proved safe.

The plane was not equipped with radio and the only news of its flight came from the steamships it flew over and its visit to Bermuda. The Columbia was not equipped with pontoons and could have floated only a short while if it had been forced down. A single Wright whirlwind motor—the same one that carried it across the ocean with Clarence Chamberlin as pilot—powered the Bellancia monoplane on its Bermuda flight.

Williams and Capt. Lewis Yancy in July, 1929, attempted a nonstop flight from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome and landed after 31 hours and 42 minutes near Santander, Spain.

Ocean Flyers Spend Quiet Day Fishing and Resting

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—New Jersey claimed Maj. Charles Kingsford-Smith, the bronzed aviator who flew from Ireland to Roosevelt field, L. I., in the old Southern Cross, late today after he and the three men who made the crossing with him had passed a quiet Sunday resting and fishing in Long Island sound on Anthony Fokker's yacht.

The Southern Cross flyers left the yacht at the Columbia club on the Hudson, and were taken to the Jersey side in speed boats. They motored to Alpine, N. J., where they were entertained in the home of Manuel Rionda, a friend of Mr. Fokker.

A private dinner was given later by a host whose name was not disclosed. The fact that the flyers drove in the direction of Englewood where Col. Charles A. Lingbergh makes his home gave rise to reports the aviators were the guests of the flying colonel. Friends of the Southern Cross flyers, however, denied they had gone to Englewood.

The major denied reports from Australia that he was planning to fly again across the Pacific. Even if he would like to make such a trip, he said, he had business as general manager of the Australian agency for the Aero-Fokker company, that required his early presence in London.

Early tomorow the Southern Cross crew will fly from Teteboro airport in New Jersey to Washington to have lunch with President Herbert Hoover. The trip will be made in a 32 passenger tri-motored Fokker plane.

The flyers will return to New York City Monday afternoon and begin preparation for the flight to the Pacific coast. Maj. Kingsford-Smith hopes to make the jump to Oakland, Cal., in one hop but has selected Chicago as a stopover in case of adverse winds. They will get away on the westward flight Tuesday or Wednesday.

RECORD BREAKING PLANE FLIES ON; THRONGS WATCH

Hunter Brothers Plan to Be Aloft on July 4.

will realiez when they come back to earth again was a subject of wide speculation. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were mentioned, but it was agreed that there were a few surplus zeros in this estimate. So far the only definite offer brought forward is one from an oil company which announced that $100 would be paid the brothers for each hour they remained aloft after 6:01 yesterday morning when they received official credit for breaking the record. They have also been asked to appear on the vaudeville stage and to indorse articles ranging from coffee to airplanes.

There was evidence yesterday that the adventure of the four flying Hunter brothers had caught the fancy of Chicago and the nation. More than 40,000 automobiles jammed all the country roads about the north suburban airport and they continued to stream into the field last night as word of the progress of the flyers spread over the city.

Army Planes Pay Tribute.

Late in the afternoon the service planes performing here for the war show paid a visit to the flyers. For half an hour the forty pursuit planes from Selfridge field, Mich., the six twin motored bombers from Langley field, Va., and other army aircraft roared about the sky in formation, dipping and maneuvering in salute to the civilian pilots.

Joining with them were scores of private planes from every airport in Chicago which flew over to Sky Harbor to pay respects.

The aerial celebration and the feeling of triumph at passing the world mark heartened the Hunter boys and gave them renewed vitality.

"Every time we go up they stick their heads out and grin from ear to ear," said Walter Hunter.

The flyers passed the world record at 5:01 a. m. and immediately afterward they dropped a hurriedly written note.

"Send fuel right away," it said. "We're running short."

Albert and Walter were roused from their sleep and took off immediately with a fresh supply of fuel. The crowd grew larger as daylight approached and at 6:01 o'clock a great cheer arose. Sirens screeched, bells jangled, and policemen fired their pistols in the air. From somewhere across the fields two bugles sounded.

Plane Stunts in Celebration.

The crowd saw the flyers suddenly nose dive as the hour of triumph ticked off and then they set their plane into a series of wing overs, side slips and other aerial capers. The hour thus observed, the flyers put the ship on an even keel and continued their wandering throughout the day.

Among the congratulatory messages lowered to them was this one from Maj. Charles Kingsford-Smith, commander of the Southern Cross on its trans-Atlantic hop:

"Your fine achievement goes far to prove the complete dependability of a good plane in the hands of good men. My comrades of the Southern Cross and Tony Fokker, its builder, join me in the wish that you go further—right on until the Fourth of July."

Skill Learned Barn Storming.

The skill with which all four Hunter brothers handle the two airplanes engaged in the refueling venture is the result of a long training in cow pastures and back lot landing fields during the barn storming days of the flyers in the southern part of the state.

Early in life they began showing their bent for fast machines. Their first adventures were with motorcycles, with which they roared over dirt tracks at county fairs. After achieving a wide notoriety for their daredevitry with motorcycles the Hunter boys turned to airplanes.

They worked in Sparta coal mines to raise funds for the first ship, an old Standard which they practically rebuilt and used in teaching themselves to fly. Walter was the first to conquer the air and it took him only three hours of instruction to accomplish the feat. He took the airplane home from St. Louis and, one by one, he taught his brothers how to fly.

Join with Lindbergh.

At first the younger brothers, John, who is 24 years old, and Kenneth, who is 21, were not allowed at the controls. They did the wing walking and parachute jumping at the county fairs. While the country folk round about were a little terrified at the Hunters' antics, they credited them with knowing their machines. Occasionally the brothers joined in barn storming ventures with Charles A. Lindbergh, who was then flying mail out of St. Louis.

John later entered the air mail service and piloted planes from Evansville, Ind., to Chicago. Walter flew in scheduled service between St. Louis and Omaha. Kenneth last summer instructed young flyers in Chicago.

Home Town Celebrates.

Word from Sparta was that no one had slept in the town since midnight Saturday, when skyrockets shot into the air and a demonstration broke loose. Bombs have been fired at half hour intervals since. The town is decked with flags and bunting and most of the townsfolk are gathered on Broadway, Sparta's main street, celebrating the Hunters' feat.

Yesterday the Sparta Chamber of Commerce sent a message of congratulations to the Hunter boys. Albert, the eldest, read it, grinned and ran a hand through his blond hair.

"Yeah?" he observed. "These are the ones who used to say, 'Those Hunter boys will break their necks some day, riding around in them new fangled contraptions.'"

Mother Hunter Holds Her Own Endurance Contest

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Staying in the background as much as possible, content in the realization that her boys had done what they had set their hearts on doing, Mrs. Ida Hunter, mother of the Hunter boys of Sparta, Ill., was hold an endurance contest of a special kind late yesterday at Sky Harbor, trying to stifle her anxiety until her sons, John and Kenneth, landed safely from their record flight.

"And how did it feel," one person after another asked her throughout the long day, "when you stood here on the field at dawn this morning and saw the minute pass which made Kenneth and John hold the world record?"

Not an Easy One to Answer.

Mrs. Hunter, for all the questions, couldn't manage to answer glibly. She smiled, the color in her sunburned face deepened, and then she started, taking a deep breath: "Well, it felt—" She paused, hunting for a word, and ended, "real good."

With Mrs. Hunter during her vigil were her daughter, Irene, 23 years old; Mrs. Albert Hunter, wife of one of the two brothers who form the refueling crew of the endurance plane, and Miss Gladys Hodam of Ludlow, who admitted she is "Walter's girl." Walter is the other Hunter brother who manages the refueling plane.

The Hunter family sticks together. Irene, since the brothers started on their flight more than 18 days ago, has had the job of cooking for them.

One of the first of many telegrams from Sparta received at the air field yesterday was from the children of the Albert Hunters: Elizabeth, 11 years old; Pauline, 9; Eileen, 7; and Hershel Albert, 4. It said: "We've been celebrating since 5:30."

"They got the news over the radio," said their mother. "But I'll bet they were up hours before that."

Mrs. Hunter, Irene, Mrs. Albert Hunter and Miss Hodam posed for movie and newspaper cameras in the afternoon. Then the mother and her sons, Albert and Walter, posed for a talkie, while Albert read a little speech off a piece of paper. Mrs. Hunter was serene until she discovered she must say something, too. Later she said, dismayed:

"If they had told me sooner that I had to talk, I could've made up something."

No Hand for Publicity.

As one of the many persons from Sparta who drove up for the event said, "Mrs. Hunter isn't much of a hand at this publicity stuff."

Mrs. Hunter is 62 years old. She was left a widow 18 years ago.

"We had a farm then," she said. "It was before we moved in town. We managed pretty well, and when my daughters grew old enough, they taught school. Mabelle, my other daughter, is sick in Danville, N. Y."

Mrs. Hunter showed mild surprise at the thousands of persons who congregated on the field to see her sons.

"They do seem real excited," she said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Neenah, Wis., June 29.—[Special.]—One person was dead, several were injured, and property damage estimated at several thousand dollars was caused by a terrific windstorm which struck the city shortly before 9 o'clock tonight.

Old settlers here characterized the storm as the worst in a score of years.

Clayton Schimmel, 10, son of Herman Schimmel, owner of the Valley Cylinder Regrinding company, South Commercial street, was killed when the wind shattered the company's building, where the family resided.

The boy's mother, upon seeing the storm approach, seized the boy and started running outside. She had almost reached the door when the building collapsed. She was injured, as were the boy's father and a younger brother.

2 RESERVE AIR OFFICERS DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

Strike Golf Course After Spiral Fall.

Westbury, L. I., June 29.—[Special.]—Two reserve army officers were killed late this afternoon when their plane in which they were making training flight spiraled down from 2,000 feet above the Meadowbrook Country club, barely slipped between a fence bounding the club and telephone wires above it, catapulted across Barnum avenue, and crashed through a twelve foot fence on the fairway of the Salisbury Golf club.

The Victims.

The victims, both of whom were world war veterans, were:

Capt. Albert E. Flood, 42, assistant principal of public school 44, the Bronx. He was married.

Lieut. Benjamin Berkowitz, 32, of the Bronx. He was in the real estate business.

The two men took off from Mitchel field in a PT-1, a primary training biplane built by the Consolidated aircraft company of Buffalo and powered with a 150 horsepower Hispano-Suiza motor. Capt. Flood was piloting when the plane took off, but either Flood or may have been flying it at the time of the crash, as the ship was equipped with dual controls.

Amost Regain Control.

They were flying at about 2,500 feet according to soldiers at Mitchel field when the plane suddenly pulled into a stall. The pilot managed to straighten it out, but the plane went into a quick vertical turn and spiraled straight for the ground, its motor wide open.

Some observers thought the pilot would try to make a forced landing on the grounds of the Meadowbrook club, directly beneath. Instead he succeeded in straightening the craft out within a few feet of the ground and for a moment it looked as though he might win through to safety. The wheels of the craft barely ticked the top of a wire fence running along the club boundary, however, and the machine was thrown completely out of control.

Both Dead in Wreckage.

It plunged across Barnum avenue and smashed into the stout wire fence bordering the Salisbury club's seventh course. Tearing a whole section of the fence away, the plane careened on for about thirty feet before coming to rest, a tangled mass of wreckage in the fairway of the thirteenth hole.

Capt. Flood was thrown bodily from the cockpit, while Lieut. Berkowitz was imprisoned in the wreckage. Golfers who had seen the crash ran to the scene, but both men had obviously been killed by the impact.

It plunged across Barnum avenue and smashed into the stout wire fence bordering the Salisbury club's second course. Tearing a whole section of the fence away, the plane careened on for about thirty feet before coming to rest, a tangled mass of wreckage, on the fairway of the thirteenth hole.

Capt. Flood was thrown bodily from the cockpit, while Lieut. Berkowitz was imprisoned in the wreckage. Golfers who had seen the crash ran to the scene, but both men had obviously been killed by the impact.

Letter received by Dr. Harry French Thompson, Forest City, Ia.

"The enclosed envelope came to me from Cagnes, France," Dr. Thompson writes. "This village is located between Cannes and Nice. It is built around the base and sides of a very steep mountain, almost, if not quite, half a mile high. On the top of this is an old castle, dating from the eleventh or twelfth century.

"At the time of the French revolution, this castle was owned and occupied by the then reigning prince of Monaco, Prince Grimaldi. Besieged by the revolutionists, it became necessary for him to make his escape, which he did, according to tradition, by means of a secret underground passage which has never since been discovered. This passage is said to be from a well within the castle, which communicated with another well somewhere in the village, but neither of these has been found.

"The prince made his escape from the castle, swam the Var river, and succeeded in getting to Genoa, where he subsequently died in abject poverty. The castle reverted to the state, and for fifty years it was deserted. At one time it was used as a sheepfold. In 1850 it was purchased by a Russian family, who restored it and added some modern improvements. There are some beautiful frescoes in the castle, one dating from 1600. It is still in the possession of the descendants of the Russian family."

14 NATIONS MEET TODAY TO WAR ON NEW U. S. TARIFFS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 29.—Fourteen nations of Europe will meet at the French foreign office tomorrow to discuss ways and means of fighting the American tariff. The countries to be represented are France, Germany, Austria, Belgium, England, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Holland, Poland, Rumania, Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia.

Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, the originator of the scheme for a United States of Europe, which this conference may help to bring about, will be honorary chairman of the meeting.

The conference will confine itself to elementary immediate measures of relief against American "industrial aggression." The first step in this direction will be paving the way for elimination of the frontier customs between European countries, thus giving more solidarity to combat American tariff increases and eventually set up European boycott of American products.

SHERIFF ROUTS LYNCHING BEE BY SMACK ON JAW

Beaumont, Tex., June 29.—(AP)—A hefty slap on the jaw, delivered by a robust and stouthearted sheriff broke up an embryo lynching party here early today.

The wallop was landed by Sheriff W. W. Covington on a sailor who had appointed himself leader of about forty men, remnant of a mob of 200 which had milled about the Jefferson county jail during the early hours of the morning. The blow sent the sailor and his "mobsmen" retreating in confusion, abandoning their attempt to remove from the jail a Negro accused of attacking a white woman.

The Negro, Rainey Williams, was rushed to the jail here yesterday from Port Arthur, 22 miles south, where the alleged attack took place.

For hours Sheriff Covington had armed men on guard outside the jail and within had picked aides, each with rifles and pistol. Covington had tear bombs ready, machine guns were set up, the police worked steadily to keep the crowd back from the jail.

After surging about, whispering, consulting, and shouting, "We want that Negro," the crowd began to melt away at 2 a. m. and soon only forty men were left. These withdrew to a dock.

A sailor constituted himself the leader and was talking to his comrades about breaking the jail when Sheriff Covington, accompanied by a number of deputies, arrived at the dock. The sheriff, a stout man, slapped the sailor and he and his followers fled.

WOODCOCK GOT FIRST U. S. TRIAL FOR DRY KILLERS

New Prohibition Chief Started Policy.

Baltimore, Md., June 29.—[Special.]—Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, who is to become the nation's new dry chief on July 1, has the distinction of being the man through whom was inaugurated the present federal policy and method of defending dry agents who kill in performance of duty.

As United States attorney here he has a long record of dry enforcement activities. The case which attracted most attention to his work was that in which the state of Maryland contended with the federal government for jurisdiction in a trial arising from the killing of a Maryland farmer by a federal dry agent. The state lost under an opinion of the United States Supreme court written by the late Chief Justice Taft, and a precedent was set for all such cases which has continued to this day.

Case Arose in 1924.

The case was that of the state of Maryland against Robert D. Ford, federal prohibition agent, for the murder of Lawrence Wenger, in Harford county, Maryland, on Nov. 19, 1924.

According to the court records, a still had been set up in the hills on rome land near the Wenger farm, along a brookside path where Wenger frequently walked on the way to his fields. There is no evidence that Wenger had any interest in the still, that he had any liquor, or was armed.

Such stills are common in the Maryland Hills, for the moonshine made there is much in demand in Washington. Under the Maryland law it is only a misdemeanor to sell liquor, no crime at all to make it.

Agent Ford, who later became deputy administrator of prohibition at Baltimore, and three other agents, with their chauffeur, went out to hunt for this still. They found it, but no one was there.

They Set an Ambush.

The workmen had left clothes and utensils there and so the agents hid in the bushes in strategic points commanding the path and the still and waited. After a half hour or so they heard a dog bark and saw men coming up the path.

There is conflicting testimony, of course, as to just what happened, but there was shooting by the agents and a short time later Wenger was dying. The agents said they had never seen the man, that they had not shot at any man, but had merely fired into the air after seeing the men approaching and they had refused to halt. Wenger's companions testified that they were ambushed and had no chance, that the agents rose out of the bushes and fired directly at them.

Wenger died on the way to town. The agents were locked up and stripped of their weapons. The citizens of the county were aroused, as this was not the first killing of the kind in the community.

Woodcock Gets Busy.

United States Attorney Woodcock came promptly to the relief of the federal men. He sent out an assistant, James T. Carter, and bail was arranged the next day.

A hearing was held before Justice of the Peace Lewis J. Williams. The stories told there by the federal agents conflicted with their later testimony and led to indictments of perjury and conspiracy as well as murder.

W. Worthington Hopkins, state's attorney of Harford county, prepared to prosecute this case, and at the same time Mr. Woodcock got the agents into conference and drew up a petition for transfer of the case to the federal court.

The story of the agents as told here was extremely sketchy. Mr. Woodcock assumed that the fact that they were federal agents entitled their cause to protection by the federal court. The writ for removal was granted by Federal Judge Morris Soper at Baltimore.

Thomas H. Robinson, attorney general for Maryland, then stepped into the case and on March 12, 1925, moved to quash the writ on the ground that the allegations did not disclose facts entitling the agents to the transfer. This point was upheld by the United States Supreme court, which, however, pointed out the way for the federal attorney to file another affidavit, and when this was done it was held sufficient. The objection to the writ, that it constituted an interference by the United States court with administra tn of justice in Harford county, contrary to the constitution of the United States, was held not good.

Mr. Taft said in his opinion that the protection of prohibition agents from state prosecution rests on the act of 1833, enacted in the days of attempted nullification of revenue laws in South Carolina, and extended during the civil war to those charged with the collection of internal revenue.

Expounds the Law.

"The constitutional validity of the section," said the opinion, "rests on the right and power of the United States to secure the efficient execution of its laws and to prevent interference therewith, due to possible local prejudice by state prosecutions instituted against federal officials in enforcing such law, by removal of the prosecution to a federal court to avoid the effect of such prejudice."

The court declared, however, that the question of whether the act done by the federal agents were justified by federal duty was one that the United States attorney must investigate and report upon. The perjury and conspiracy cases were left in the state court, as the Supreme court said an agent could not "commit perjury in performance of duty."

The state of Maryland made one more stand, but lost again.

"In none of the former applications," it was stated by the Maryland attorney general, "had the petitioners disclosed that they fired any shots at any time. After the Supreme court pointed out the way for them, they now set up that fact, that shows it very probable that they were responsible for the murder, because there are no facts set up in the petition which establish any right on their part as federal officers to fire guns—it was done neither in performance of duty nor in self defense."

The trial began in Baltimore before Judge Soper on March 1, 1927. The law as interpreted by Judge Soper put Fenger and his companions in the status of escaping felons, and gave the officers a right to shoot them.

Professor-Juror a Dissenter.

One of the members of the jury was Dr. James William Cain, former president of Washington college. He held out to the last for punishment of the agents.

"We could not find for first or second degree murder or manslaughter under the instructions," he said. "It was evident that the judge considered these men guilty of a conspiracy against the government, that on overt act had been committed, that they were escaping felons and the officers had a right to shoot them."

Robert H. Archer, assistant attorney general of Maryland, who prosecuted the agents, said:

"It was a good jury and they would have convicted in a state court. The atmosphere of the federal court was all in favor of the defendants. George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and a number of ministers and other drys were in court every day. Our witnesses were intimidated."

HERBERT ARRIVES TO BEGIN WORK AS PROHIBITION CHIEF

John F. J. Herbert, newly appointed federal prohibition administrator for the Chicago area, arrived here yesterday from Helena, Mont. He will begin his duties tomorrow. "I know absolutely nothing about prohibition conditions here, and cannot know until I get down to work," declared Mr. Herbert, at the Congress hotel. Mr. Herbert spent most of the afternoon in conference with E. C. Yellowley, whom he displaces as prohibition administrator. Mr. Yellowley will remain here in charge of alcohol permits under the jurisdiction of the treasury department.

EX-CHICAGO WOMAN WINS $30,000; BREAKS FRENCH CASINO'S BANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 29.—Mrs. J. Factor, formerly of Chicago, broke the bank at Le Touquet casino in one play at baccarat on Saturday night, it was learned today. Mrs. Factor had been losing heavily all week but yesterday evening she started on a winning streak which finally culminated in the winning of about $30,000 at one play. Play was temporarily stopped while the croupier went to find money to refinance the bank. Mrs. Factor immediately cashed her winnings and left. It is estimated that she broke about even on the week.

Mrs. Factor is believed to be the wife of a former Chicago barber, John Factor, who has resided in London for the last five or six years and is said to have became wealthy through stock market operations there.

In 1929 $150,000 worth of diamonds belonging to Mrs. Factor were held by New York customs authorities pending an investigation but she protested on the grounds that she was a British subject and had no intention of selling the gems in this country.

Tenant, 77, Shoots Owner in Dispute Over Shed

In a dispute over who should repair the leaky roof of a shed at 1068 West 11th street, last night, Pasquale Avasso, 48 years old, owner of the shed, was shot in the neck by his tenant, Cosmo Vito, 77 years old. Avasso was taken to the Bridewell hospital, his condition critical. Cosmo escaped.

PARLEY TODAY ON ANTHRACITE MINERS' WAGES

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Formal negotiations for a new wage contract between anthracite mine workers and operators will begin here tomorrow. The present agreement, entered into Feb. 12, 1926, after the memorable strike of the winter of 1925-26, expires Aug. 31.

For the first time, the representatives of the miners go into a wage parley without making a demand for a specific increase in wages. Instead, the miners' scale committee is under instructions to obtain the "most satisfactory agreement possible on the basis of no reduction."

A THEORETICAL FLYER HAS HIS HOUR SUPREME

After 7 Years of Study He Takes to Air.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Until dawn yesterday, John C. Burchard, son of a former governor, Harvard graduate, and an engineer, has never been in the air. But early in the morning, as a red sun came up over a cow pasture beyond the limits of Chicago's south side, Burchard came to the end of seven years of scientific study and research in aeronautics.

It was, he said, his "hour supreme." He was ready to show that he could master the mysteries of flight and conquer a flying machine by study alone.

Experienced pilots to whom he had confided his ambition said that Burchard knew more about flying—in theory—than most pilots will ever learn.

Publishes His Observations.

A brief of his observations was set down in a pamphlet which he has published recently. In its preface the author conceded that most people would term his idea of trying to fly on this theoretical knowledge alone as "insanely idiotic."

Burchard is 28 years old, is employed in Chicago by the Radio Corporation of America, and lives at the Allerton club. His father is Roswell B. Burchard, former governor of Rhode Island. One of his ancestors was author of the campaign slogan "Rum, Romanism, and Rebellion," which defeated Blaine back in the last century.

7 Years of Study He Takes to Air.

Dad dawn yesterday, John C. Burchard, son of a former governor, Harvard graduate, and an engineer, had never been in the air. But early in the morning, as a red sun came up over a cow pasture beyond the limits of Chicago's south side, Burchard came to the end of seven years of scientific study and research in aeronautics.

It was, he said, his "hour supreme." He was ready to show that he could master the mysteries of flight and conquer a flying machine by his genius.

Experienced pilots to whom he had confided his ambition said that Burchard knew more about flying—in theory—than most pilots will ever know.

Publishes His Observations.

A brief of his observations was set down in a pamphlet which he had published recently. In its preface the author conceded that most people would term his idea of trying to fly on his theoretical knowledge alone as "downright idiotic."

Burchard is 28 years old, is employed in Chicago by the Radio Corporation of America, and lives at the Union league club. His father is Roswell Burchard, former governor of Rhode Island. One of his ancestors is author of the campaign slogan, "Romanism, and Rebellion," which defeated Blaine back in the last century.

Selects Site for Experiment.

Because he was without a flying license of any sort, Burchard could not perform his experiment from a regular airport. So he selected a pasture in a lonely neighborhood at 91st street and Roberts road. He had long lanes mown in the tall grass. He bought an old Swallow biplane. He borrowed a parachute. He had the plane delivered and placed at the end of the runway.

Yesterday morning he appeared on the scene followed by a dozen friends who had tried to dissuade the young engineer and, failing, came to help. Among them were C. B. Fox, radio engineer, and his wife; Bud Gurnee and Art Killup, aviators; Mrs. George Burlus, a woman pilot, and Dr. W. F. McGee, who brought his emergency kit.

Burchard, chatting pleasantly with his friends, put on his helmet and goggles, and strapped on his parachute. Then he walked over to the strange machine that he knew only through books and slipped casually into the cockpit.

Things Begin to Happen.

Things happened quickly. There was no preliminary, uncertain maneuvering. The student followed his formula. He limbered up the controls, turned the motor a bit, gave it the gun and charged, wide open, straight down the runway. The ship streaked past the onlookers, scattered at safe distances about the field.

A few hundred feet and the pilot brought the tail up. A few more feet and the plane left the ground, racing on, climbing steadily.

Thirty feet above the ground the wings wavered! The plane cut a few crazy capers, headed for the ground, struck on its nose, flopped up and over, and crashed on its back.

Spectators Rush to Rescue.

Seizing fire extinguishers, axes and hammers the spectators came on the run through the tall grass. But before they reached the wreckage Burchard scrambled head first from the cockpit, smiling.

Casualties: To the plane, a smashed propeller and rudder, broken landing gear, bent wing. To the pilot, bruise on his forehead, a scratched hand.

"O, well," said Burchard, "my first crackup!"

SEARCH IN VAIN FOR SLAYERS OF RED AGITATOR

The police last night said they had been unable to trace the killers of Horzel Weizenberg, 28 years old, a communist, who was beaten to death in front of a union hall at 19 West Adams street on Saturday after he had attempted to distribute Red literature among members of the painters' union. David Mahanna, 29 years old, a carpenter, formerly of Detroit, who was with Weizenberg, was also slugged.

Evar Anderson, 1507 Wieland avenue, head of local No. 47 of the painters' union, told the police he was inside the hall and did not see the attack. He was released after being questioned. Mahanna was ordered to appear at the inquest today.

RED PROPAGANDA IN WORLD MUST CONTINUE—STALIN

Claims Mission Efforts No Bar to Recognition.

MOSCOW, June 28.—(AP)—Joseph Stalin's seven hour speech before the communist party congress, occupying 37 solid columns of newspaper print today, has made him more than ever the strongest political figure in soviet Russia.

The speech, as printed, touched upon three questions of vital international interest and importance which previous summaries had failed to reveal. These are czarist debts, bolshevist propaganda abroad, and the soviet policy respecting minority races within the union.

Recognize Czarist Debts.

Concerning the czarist debts, Stalin, who never before spoke publicly on this question, declared the soviet government is ready to pay part of these debts, if the powers holding such claims are willing to advance credits to the bolsheviste, the government regarding such part payments of czarist obligations as extra interest upon such credits.

Stalin doubtless had in mind the claims of foreign corporations for property confiscated during the revolution rather than the claims of foreign governments for unpaid loans.

The American General Electric company, for example, some time ago concluded an agreement with the soviet government whereby in return for a $35,000,000 credit advanced to the soviets that corporation receives in return, in addition to the regular interest, partial payment of its claim against the bolsheviste for factories and other property confiscated during the revolution.

Russia's "iron man" also made a notable utterance respecting bolshevist propaganda, which is being considered abroad as a barrier against the establishment of normal relations between soviet Russia and "capitalistic countries" like the United States.

Will Continue Propaganda.

He made it clear that, however much the United States and other countries dislike the soviet system of agricultural collectivization, extermination of kulaks, anti-religious propaganda, and the battle against counter revolutionists and sabotagers, the bolsheviks would continue their activities unabated in these directions, because "they represent the unalienable right of the Russian workers and peasants, as embodied in the soviet constitution.

"The constitution," Stalin added, "must, and will be, rigidly observed. In order to forestall the harmful effect of bolshevist propaganda the capitalistic countries fence themselves off by cordons of wire entanglements, graciously allowing Poland, Rumania, and Finland the honor of protecting these entanglements.

"Is there any need of proving that talk of propaganda is not a logical argument against the establishment of normal relations, but is a pretext for interventionist propaganda on the part of foreign powers? How can people who do not desire to be ridiculous bar themselves against bolshevist ideas if ground favorable for those ideas exists in the country itself? Bolshevism has grown everywhere not from without but from within."

Stands for Minority Rights.

Touching upon the question of soviet Russia's many minority racial elements, Stalin revealed to the lay reader for the first time the existence within and without the communist party of a tendency on the part of certain groups to abolish autonomous and federated national republics and absorb them all into one great single unified Russian state with the Russian tongue as the sole language.

All such inclinations, Stalin declared, must be crushed, as they constituted a dangerous form of "greater Russian chauvinism." Every one of the many minority races within the soviet union, he emphasized, must continue to enjoy the privilege of having its own distinctive language, culture, courts, schools, customs and individual mode of life.

BOLIVIA CHEERS REBEL VICTORY; CALM RESTORED

Shower Insurgent Army with Flowers.

LA PAZ, June 29.—(AP)—After a week of fighting all over Bolivia, the insurgent movement led by Gen. Blanco Galindo today ruled in La Paz and throughout the country. A distinct easing of the situation was evident in La Paz this morning.

So much had conditions improved since the insurgents captured the capital on Friday, that the de facto government already is considering lifting the state of siege decreed by the council of state appointed by former President Siles.

Shower Rebels with Flowers.

La Paz and other cities are celebrating their freedom by showering flowers upon the insurgent soldiers.

Gen. Hans Kundt, German chief of staff of the Bolivian army under the government of former President Siles, today was a refugee in the German legation here. Reports that he was dead were spread yesterday. He refused to discuss the successful military coup of Gen. Galdino.

The city gave itself over to excited examination of the incidents that, since last Sunday, have led to the overthrow of the Siles régime, the flight of the former president and his council of state, and the advent to power of a military council headed by Gen. Galindo.

The revolution had its inception in the suppression of a demonstration by students last Sunday against former President Siles, who resigned last month and was accused of attempting to make himself virtual dictator of Bolivia by amending the constitution so as to permit his reelection for a long term.

Rebel Triumph Speedy.

Many students were killed by the police. A series of sporadic outbreaks then occurred all over the country, and Gen. Galindo firmly established his power at the industrial and railway city of Oruro. He sent an ultimatum to the council of state, and when it was virtually ignored, led his troops in a successful attack on La Paz. The triumph of the insurgents was speedy. Siles took refuge with his family in the Brazilian legation. The fighting resulted in many casualties.

BANDIT SUSPECT SLAIN, 2 OTHERS CAUGHT BY POSSE

Goodland, Ind., June 29.—[Special.]—Sheriff Patrick McGraw of Benton county and a posse today engaged in a battle with three alleged automobile bandits, killing one and capturing the other two.

J. B. Ownbey, a watchman, had accosted them here for questioning regarding the car they were driving. They opened fire, wounding him in the left shoulder, and drove away. The sheriff was notified. He had his office force telephone surrounding farmers, and then started in pursuit. All roads were guarded.

The three suspects were overtaken a few miles from here. Only one of them offered resistance. He drew a gun, but a shot from a member of the posse dropped him dead in his tracks. He was identified as Clyde Jennings, 22 years old, of Indianapolis, Ind. His companions said they were Wallace Malone of Indianapolis and Fred Reece of Rensselaer, Ind.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GIRGENTI, Sicily, June 29.—Another step toward cleaning up the Sicilian Mafia was taken here yesterday when the courts sentenced nine bandits to life imprisonment and 19 others to sentences varying from 5 to 16 years. Among those sentenced was Vito Ferro who was acquitted about 20 years ago of the murder of Detective Petrosino of New York, who was slain the day he stepped off the ship in Sicily from New York. Petrosino had trailed down several New York blackhanders.

2 BOYS KILLED TAKING MODEL PLANES TO MEET

Two Chicago youths were killed instantly and three were hurt, one seriously, when the small sedan in which they were en route to Detroit to compete in a model airplane meet was wrecked on U. S. highway 112 near Jonesville, Mich., early yesterday.

The driver, Peter Ratbold, 17 years old, 819 West 35th street, was apparently dozing at the wheel. On a wide curve the sedan slipped off the road, clipped a sign post and climbed an embankment, overturning in a field. Ratbold was seriously injured.

Two Youths Are Killed.

The dead were Eugene Lewandowski, 20 years old, 4844 South Lincoln street, and Ernest Marcouiller, 19 years old, 719 South Homan avenue. They were in the front seat with Ratbold. Marcouiller in 1928 won the senior model plane championship at Atlantic City.

William Borst, 18 years old, 72[illegible] Prairie avenue, and Kermit Einberger, 15 years old, 9043 Escanaba avenue, escaped with severe lacerations and bruises. With Ratbold they were taken to a hospital at Jerome, Mich.

Three persons were killed in Chicago traffic and three others died of injuries. The six deaths increased the county motor toll this year to 447.

In a head-on collision between an automobile and a Lawrence avenue surface car at Rockwell street, Walter Johanson, 28 years old, 4631 Patterson avenue, chief clerk at the downtown office of the Commonwealth Edison company, was fatally injured. Fourteen passengers in the street car were jolted from their seats and windows were shattered by the impact. Johanson died in the Swedish Covenant hospital.

Motorcyclist Is Victim.

An unidentified motorcyclist, about 20 years old, was killed when his machine collided with an automobile driven by Robert Bradley, 40 years old, 6557 Prairie avenue. Bradley told the police he was driving south on Prairie avenue when the cycle darted out from 57th street at high speed.

Attracted by a balloon peddler across the street, 3 year old George Stuck, jr., 4545 South Rockwell street, broke away from his father, darted across Western avenue between 62d and 63d streets, and was struck by a car. The motorist, Earl J. McClure, 1918 South Hamlin avenue, sped with the victim to St. Anthony's hospital, but the child died en route.

George Albright, 37 years old, a druggist, of 171 First street, Hinsdale, died in the Jackson Park hospital of injuries incurred on June 8 when the car in which he was driving with Miss Florence Frane, 1543 East 72d street, overturned on Archer avenue, Lemont.

H. Morrison and his wife, Fern, of Gary.

Vera Vollifon, 7 years old, died in St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond early this morning from injuries she suffered last evening when she was struck by an automobile driven by Herbert Palmer, 44, colored, of Gary, as she was crossing the street in front of her home. ing Driver Dozes at Wheel; Three Hurt.

Two Chicago youths were killed instantly and three were hurt, one seriously, when the small sedan in which they were en route to Detroit to compete in a model airplane meet was overturned on U. S. highway 112 near Merrillville, Mich., early yesterday. The driver, Peter Ratbold, 17 years old, 118 West 35th street, was apparently dozing at the wheel. On a wide curve the sedan slipped off the road, struck a sign post and climbed an embankment, overturning in a field. The road was seriously injured.

The dead were Eugene Lewandowski, 16 years old, 4844 South Lincoln street, and Ernest Marcouiller, 18 years old, 719 South Homan avenue. They were in the front seat with Ratbold. Marcouiller in 1928 won the junior model plane championship at Atlantic City.

William Borst, 18 years old, 7209 Clyde avenue, and Kermit Einberger, 15 years old, 9043 Escanaba avenue, escaped with severe lacerations and bruises. With Ratbold they were taken to a hospital at Jerome, Mich. Three persons were killed in Chicago traffic and three others died of injuries. The six deaths increased the motor toll this year to 447.

In a head-on collision between his automobile and a Lawrence avenue surface car at Rockwell street, Walter Thomas, 28 years old, 4631 Patterson avenue, chief clerk at the downtown office of the Commonwealth Edison company, was fatally injured. Fourteen passengers in the street car were jolted from their seats and windows were shattered by the impact. Thomas died in the Swedish Covenant hospital.

Motorcyclist Is Victim.

An unidentified motorcyclist, about 30 years old, was killed when his machine collided with an automobile driven by Robert Bradley, 40 years old, 4651 Prairie avenue. Bradley told police he was driving south in Calumet avenue when the cycle darted out from 55th street at high speed.

Distracted by a balloon peddler across the street, 2 year old George Stuckle Jr., 5645 South Rockwell street, broke away from his father, darted across Western avenue between 62d and 63d streets, and was struck by a car. VOTE TOMORROW ON NEW UNIFIED CAR ORDINANCE by creating and spreading popular discontent. Some are confirmed adherents of municipal ownership who stubbornly shut their eyes to the impossibility of obtaining it, and the conditions in Chicago would make it the height of folly. Some are politicians with a past and a forlorn hope for the future. And all are chronic kickers.

Calls Attack Personal Abuse.

"The whole attack upon the ordinance has now gotten down to personal vituperation and abuse. As their arguments have been demolished and their misrepresentations of the ordinance have been exposed they have been growing more desperate and more despicable in their personalities.

"Men whose character, public service and ability were conceded a month ago and who would have been charged simply with having made honest mistakes are now denounced as paid agents or tools of the traction interests, until a former mayor of this city descends so low as to charge that the mere fact that the ordinance was adopted in the city council by a vote of 47 to 3 is a justification for opposing it."

Both Sides Urge Big Vote.

The opponents as well as the advocates, are urging every one to vote. The opponents say the larger the vote the better their chance to defeat the ordinance.

"So many of the arguments of advocates," reads a statement of Carl D. Thompson, "are either so obviously weak, misleading or actually false, that they should be exposed and answered, lest the voters be deceived."

"The claim," he continues, "is being made in many quarters that the promises of the traction companies will be kept, especially those regarding extensions and improvements, because they will lose their franchise if they do not keep their promises. It is persistently claimed there is a forfeiture clause in the franchise.

"This claim is absolutely without foundation. There is no forfeiture clause in the franchise anywhere. That claim is false.

"It is claimed that full and adequate opportunity has been given to everybody to make any suggestions and to study and discuss the ordinance. That is absolutely untrue. The proponents have had months and even years; the opponents and 3,000,000 people have been given 40 days.

"There never was a clearer case of an attempt to rush the people off their feet, to have them vote for a proposition which in the nature of the case, they could not possibly have opportunity for adequate study and consideration.

Denies It Ends Politics.

"It has been argued that the passage of this ordinance will take the traction question out of politics. The answer is that it will not and cannot. The ordinance provides for a local commission to be appointed by the mayor of the city, so the traction question will stay right in politics. Every political influence and intrigue that now operates in the traction matter will continue to operate under this ordinance. The people will be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire so far as politics is concerned."

Frank A. Makeel, another opponent, says the ordinance "is an afront to the voters."

"Carefully elaborated by astute men representing great interests, through many months of quiet study and deep planning," says his statement, "it is suddenly thrust upon the voters overnight to be considered and approved by them in a few weeks. This is a contract involving many millions and running beyond the present generation of men, tying a great city hand and foot in commitments so complex and voluminous that trained minds cannot construe it with certainty, except that it is sinister. Such a ponderous and portentous document is placed before the work-a-day voters to be examined briefly and signed on the dotted line."

Describes Act As Surrender.

James G. Skinner, a lawyer who has had experience in transit matters, also issued a long argument against the ordinance.

"It is not a contract or a grant," starts his statement, "it is a surrender—still more it is an abject surrender. It has embodied in it the most modern form of unconditional abjectness; it provides for the payment of $61,000,000 in reparations.

"The city, by a vote of the people, has repeatedly approved as a doctrine of public policy, the principle of municipal ownership. All this is now to be abandoned."

Says Franchise Makes Gift.

Mr. Skinner argues that the franchise is perpetual, has no forfeiture clause, does not guarantee extensions, makes a practical gift of $61,000,000 to the companies, will increase taxes, the capitalization is $50,000,000 too high and the compensation clause is inadequate.

Still another outspoken opponent yesterday was Miss Margaret Haley of the Chicago Teachers' federation. In her statement she says: "There is every evidence in the way this ordinance is being handled that the traction interests are trying to rush the matter through and stampede the people into voting for it without giving adequate time for study and consideration."

AID FOR SOLDIERS EXCEEDS COST OF ARMY AND NAVY

Veterans, Pension Bureau Expense 725 Millions.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Without including the cost of the pending world war veterans' bill appropriations made for the veterans' bureau and the civil and Spanish war pension bureau for the coming fiscal year already exceed those for the army and navy.

Expenditures for war veterans have mounted until they represent close to one-fifth of the entire cost of operation of the federal government. National defense expenditures represent almost another fifth of all governmental costs.

Total appropriations for the veterans' bureau and the pension bureau for the fiscal year, 1931, amount to 731 millions. Of this sum 511 millions represents costs of the veterans' bureau and 214 millions of the pension bureau. The pension bureau total is exclusive of costs of a civil service employis retirement bureau which the agency also has in charge.

Civil War Roll Dwindles.

While the dwindling roll of civil war pensioners made possible a reduction of more than $8,000,000 in the appropriations for the pension bureau, the increasing demands from world war veterans caused an increase of $11,000,000 in appropriations for the veterans' bureau.

The pending world war veteran bill which is likely to become law this week, will add 31 million dollars to expenditures during the fiscal year, 1931, and within five years will boost expenditures by about 80 million dollars. If the additional cost is 31 million dollars, the total of expenditures by the government for veterans of all wars in the fiscal year 1931 will be about 756 million dollars.

As against appropriations of 725 million dollars already made for war veterans and prospective expenditures of 756 million dollars appropriations for the army and navy for the fiscal year will have amounted to about 715 million dollars. This includes 337 million dollars for military functions of the war department and 378 million dollars for the navy department.

Appropriations for Veterans.

The appropriation already made for the veterans' bureau is divided as follows:

Military and naval compensation	$196,000,000
Military and naval insurance	120,000,000
Soldiers' bonus	112,000,000
Salaries and expenses	45,500,000
Medical and hospital services	35,000,000
Hospital facilities and services	6,000,000

Cost of Pension Bureau.

Army and navy pensions	$212,790,000
Salaries	1,218,400
General expenses	150,000
Fees and expenses, examining surgeons	298,600
Total	$235,099,400

The cost for the first year of the pending world war veterans' bill as passed by the house, according to the latest estimates of the veterans' bureau, will be as follows:

Disability allowance for veterans	$25,281,000
Assembling war department records	3,000,000
Administrative cost	2,000,000
Extra allowance for veterans with disabilities due to amputations	1,000,000
Flags to drape caskets	40,250
Minimum rating for 25 per cent arrested tuberculosis	8,000
Minimum allowance for dependent mother and father	6,000
Uniforms for personnel in veterans' bureau	1,800
Total	$31,555,050

Fifty Millions Increase.

The bill as passed by the house increases in cost to $50,788,448 in the fiscal year 1932, $63,650,448 in the fiscal year 1933, $68,909,448 in the fiscal year 1934, and $74,577,448 in the fiscal year 1935.

It is estimated that 156,056 veterans would receive the new disability allowances ranging from $12 to $40 per month in the fiscal year 1931. At an average of $18 this accounts for the total estimate of $25,281,000 for this purpose.

289,273 to Receive Allowances.

In 1932 it is estimated that 289,273 veterans would receive allowances totaling $55,289,000. In 1933 327,335 veterans would receive $68,649,000, while in 1935 380,622 veterans would receive $80,570,000.

The veterans bill comes up for action in the senate tomorrow. There will be at least a full day debate and possibly two days, but the leaders believe that in the end the senate will pass the bill in a form which will not be substantially different from the house measure, and which will be signed by President Hoover. If the senate amends it materially the house will refuse to concur in senate amendments, or if it should reach the White House in expanded form another veto is in prospect.

MINORITY LISTS ITS OBJECTIONS TO NEW TREATY

Present Report to Senate Today.

Economic Necessity Governs.

"The greatest contributing cause to limitation of navies is economic necessity. In the present situation neither Great Britain nor Japan is in any position economically to indulge in competitive naval building; and we, fortunately, under no circumstances wish to indulge in an armament race with any nation. In existing conditions of the great nations of the world there was no excuse for our people yielding the ratios so dearly bought with Japan in 1922, or our right to build the kind of ships we desired, so consistently fought for, for eight years in the past and maintained so vigorously by President Coolidge at Geneva in 1927. With the will to stop competition that America has, with the power to indulge in it if America had to, our representatives at London while respecting all others, without difficulty and without rancor could have maintained our rights and could have maintained our rights without jeopardizing in the slightest peace or good will."

Geneva Stand Reversed.

How Great Britain has endeavored for years to impose upon the United States an agreement to divide cruisers into eight inch gun and six inch gun ships in order to force downward America's 8 inch gun cruiser strength, despite the country's dependence upon the larger ships for commerce protection in view of lack of outlying naval bases from which six inch gun cruisers are operated, is described in the report. It tells how President Coolidge refused to make such concessions to the British at the Geneva conference of 1927.

"The controversey at Geneva," say the minority senators, "was a conflict between the naval policy of Great Britain and the naval policy of the United States. On the one hand Great Britain insisted upon the division of the cruisers in two categories and refused absolutely to permit the United States to build, within the tonnage limitation allowed, such cruisers as the United States desired. The United States demanded this right which it readily accorded to Great Britain. Great Britain demanded the right to direct what we should do. Great Britain failed at Geneva. Great Britain won at London.

Difference in Administrations.

"It becomes important to keep in mind this situation: One American administration, one set of American representatives, and the American navy, with few exceptions, insisted upon the American policy at Geneva, always according exactly the same right that we claimed to Great Britain. Another set of representatives, another administration, but the navy still protesting, scrapped the American policy at London and accepted for the American navy what Great Britain has insisted America must accept.

"Exactly when it was determined that we should forget the American policy is shrouded in mystery because the foreign relations committee, the American senate and the American people are denied the papers, the documents, and communications relating to the London conference."

Sentors Moses, Johnson, and Robinson contend that the treaty does not establish Anglo-American parity in either battleships or cruisers.

Refused Modern Battleships.

Even after the modernization of American battleships there will be five vulnerable to Britain's Rodney and Nelson. Parity, they argue, could be attained if America were allowed to build two ships the equal of the Rodney and Nelson, but Britain refused to agree to even the one Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson originally asked for. Two of such ships would cost less than modernization of old ones. Then the minority points that in lieu of the American Rodney demanded, Stimson accepted the right to modernize which we already were exercising and "which our state departmen had ruled was ours."

In support of the contention that parity in cruisers is not established, the minority presents this tabulation of the cruiser strength of the powers when the treaty expires Dec. 31, 1936:

	Total tonnage.	Ratio.
United States	337,000	5.0
Great Britain	425,350	6.3
Japan	227,040	3.5

"A casual reading of the treaty," says the report, "would lead an unsuspecting person to believe that during the life the treaty we were to obtain 18 crusers as compared with 15 for Great Britain. As stated, we are to have but 16 during the life of the treaty, and when the complicated ramified exceptions to the treaty are unraveled it develops that the number of this type of cruiser which the British are to have is not 15 at all but may be as many as 19 during the greater part of the life of the treaty.

Consider Britain's Attitude.

"Accept, if you will, the minimizing of what is called the cruiser controversy the fact remains that the question was of sufficient importance for Great Britain from first to last and during all the years, to deny us what we demanded for our protection, and was deemed of sufficient importance by Great Britain at London to threaten the collapse of the entire conference. The reason for her insistence is clear. She wishes severly to restrict American ability to protect the immense American ocean commerce which competes with her. She wishes to retain in full measure her existing power to bring victory-winning economic pressure upon us, should need arise, by stopping our sea trade while at the same time assuring freedom for her own trade."

U. S. BORDER PATROL KILLS SMUGGLER OF LIQUOR NEAR LAREDO

Laredo, Tex., June 29.—(AP)—Juan Espinosa, 35, of Laredo was shot and killed early today by United States patrolmen as he and four companions were attempting to cross the Rio Grande into the United States with sacks of liquor.

Mexican customs officers captured three of Espinosa's companions. Two of them were wounded, one Jesus Cantu, dying afterward, Mexican authorities reported. The fourth man escaped.

Espinosa was grasping a loaded pistol in his hand when he fell mortally wounded by the charges from the sawed off shotguns of the border patrolmen who fired at close range.

WINNING

ONE year ago we set out to win with a new idea. To win public enthusiasm for a new-day hotel service. To win public patronage for a newly introduced institution. To win nation-wide approval and recognition for Hotel Knickerbocker!

No simple matter, this conquest, in a city of fine hotels. No easy victory . . . to meet and reckon happily with the individual whims and tastes of scores of people . . . to refuse undesirables . . . to bring to the permanent guest or the transient traveler a new measure of comfort and contentment.

But now . . . with pardonable but just pride we announce our record . . . the fruit of one year's determined effort to exactingly maintain a high character in our clientele—an outstanding fairness in our charges—a rigid high standard in management.

We thank the Clubs and Societies who have used our facilities. We are grateful to the business organizations and industrial concerns who have held their meetings and conventions here.

Pride in ourselves and Appreciation of the public have won for us!

WARNS AGAINST USE OF FIREWORKS BY THE CHILDREN ON FOURTH

Charles L. Rice, president of the Chicago safety council, yesterday issued a warning to the thousands of adults and children who will defy city ordinances and use fireworks to celebrate the Fourth of July. He asked that precaution be exercised in the use of bootleg fireworks.

"All activity should be supervised by adults," Mr. Rice said. "Children should not be able to run any kind of celebration by themselves. All fireworks should be set off by adults. Sparklers may be held by children, but should be lighted by older persons.

"Firearms should not be used under any circumstances. Firecrackers should not be held in the hand even while being lighted, and should not be exploded in any kind of container. Firecrackers which do not explode after being ignited should be left alone or soaked with water. Several pails of water should be kept close by. Children should not be permitted to run, jump, or play while they have ignited sparklers in their hands, and under no circumstances be allowed to have matches.

"The most desperate affliction of fireworks gives no warning of its presence. That is tetanus, which results from burns, and unless toxin is administered lockjaw follows and frequently ends in death. The horror of lockjaw enters hundreds of homes in the country every Fourth of July."

MOTHER TO VIEW SON'S GRAVE KEPT UP BY A QUEEN

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 29.—A Chicago Gold Star mother, Mrs. Cora Willis Ware, who arrived today aboard the liner President Roosevelt, will set out this week across Europe on the longest pilgrimage made by any war mother. The grave she seeks lies in the military cemetery at Bucharest and is under the personal supervision of Dowager Queen Marie and Prince Nicholas. They will receive Mrs. Ware on her arrival.

Mrs. Ware is one of seven mothers arriving to visit isolated graves throughout Europe where American boys met strange and lonely deaths. She is the wife of the Rev. E. N. Ware of 1430 Howard street, Chicago. She will be accompanied by an army nurse, who will also act as interpreter in the half dozen countries which must be traversed.

"Yes, I will be received by Queen Marie," the mother said, on her arrival here. "It was at her special request that my son remained buried in Bucharest as the only American soldier on Rumanian soil. She feels it is a symbol of international friendship."

Mrs. Ware's son, Edward Newell Ware, was a graduate of Northwestern university who joined the French ambulance corps shortly after the outbreak of the war and won the croix de guerre in 1917. In 1919 he was sent on a special mission to Rumania with President Hoover's American relief commission. While in charge of refugees infected with virulent smallpox he caught the disease and died within a week.

"As the boys watched the refugees died from starvation, destitution, and disease," Mrs. Ware said. "The Rumanians feel that he actually gave his life for Rumania, and cannot do enough for him and me."

Ware's grave in the military cemetery was given special care by order of the dowager queen. He lies in an honored place between a Rumanian general and a French major.

Isolated graves are scattered around the Mediterranean and the North sea. Most of them are in France, but one is in Ireland and one at Rometta, Sicily—the grave of Milton Lewis, a sailor from Rochester, N. Y., whose body was buried where it was washed ashore after a convoy ship had been sunk by a torpedo.

THE LINGLE MURDER.

When Alfred Lingle was murdered the motive seemed to be apparent. He was a TRIBUNE police reporter and when, in the Illinois Central subway at Randolph street, he was shot, his newspaper saw no other explanation than that his killers either thought he was close to information dangerous to them or intended the murder as notice given the newspapers that crime was ruler in Chicago. It could be both, a murder to prevent a disclosure and to give warning against attempts at others.

It had been expected that in due time the reprisals which have killed gangster after gangster in the city would be attempted against any other persons or agencies which undertook to interfere with the incredibly profitable criminality. No one had been punished for any of these murders. They have been bizarre beyond belief, and, being undetected, have been assumed, not the least by their perpetrators, to be undetectable—at least not to be punishable.

When, then, Lingle was shot by an assassin THE TRIBUNE assumed that the criminals had taken the next logical step and were beginning their attack upon newspaper exposure. The other newspapers took the same view. The Herald and Examiner and the Chicago Evening Post joined THE TRIBUNE in offering rewards for evidence which would lead to conviction of the murderers. The newspaper publishers met and made a common cause against the new tactics of gangland. The preliminary investigation has modified some of the first assumptions, although it has not given the situation a different essence.

Alfred Lingle now takes a different character, one in which he was unknown to the management of THE TRIBUNE when he was alive. He is dead and cannot defend himself, but many facts now revealed must be accepted as eloquent against him. He was not, and he could not have been, a great reporter. His ability did not contain these possibilities. He did not write stories, but he could get information in police circles. He was not and he could not be influential in the acts of his newspaper, but he could be useful and honest, and that is what THE TRIBUNE management took him to be. His salary was commensurate with his work. The reasonable appearance against Lingle now is that he was accepted in the world of politics and crime for something undreamed of in his office and that he used this in undertakings which made him money and brought him to his death. He has paid the penalty of it if he was enticed into this pool and THE TRIBUNE regrets it for the boy's sake and for the sake of the profession. The occurrence, although not unusual, is always tragic.

There are weak men on other newspapers and in other professions, in positions of trust and responsibility greater than that of Alfred Lingle. THE TRIBUNE, although naturally disturbed by the discovery that this reporter was engaged in practices contrary to the code of its honest reporters and abhorred by the policy of the newspaper, does not find that the main objectives of the inquiry have been much altered. The crime and the criminals remain and they are the concern of THE TRIBUNE as they are of the decent elements in Chicago.

It was expectable that this newspaper, when one of its police reporters was killed by gangsters, should accept the murder as a particular challenge of its right to print the news for its readers. It therefore undertook to make a particular defense of that right. The difficulty of a sustained search for a criminal through the ordinary channels of law enforcement must be apparent to any one who considers what the ordinary course of crime throws upon the police and the prosecutors. Each day has its grist and new crimes crowd upon the heels of old ones.

To particularise this crime and dedicate to it a single minded purpose of detection and punishment, THE TRIBUNE, in agreement with the other newspapers, asked State's Attorney Swanson to give the responsibility and the authority to Attorney Charles Rathbun by appointing him assistant state's attorney. Mr. Rathbun is a member of the law firm retained by THE TRIBUNE. He also is a lawyer known to Mr. Swanson and had been wanted by him on his staff. There is a heavy normal burden on the prosecutor's office, and THE TRIBUNE knows from experience that success in any case may depend on concentration.

It was agreed that Mr. Rathbun should be authorized to undertake the investigation. THE TRIBUNE stipulated with the other newspapers that the use of a member of its law firm would not be detrimental to them in the matter of news. It was agreed that nothing prejudicial to the success of the inquiry, which intends the capture and punishment of the criminals, would be published. THE TRIBUNE thinks it has kept its bargain and it knows it has kept its purpose.

The first report of the investigators to State's Attorney Swanson was published yesterday in THE TRIBUNE. It contains all the facts and plausible intimations which indicate that Albert Lingle was killed because he was using his TRIBUNE position to profit from criminal operations and not because he was serving THE TRIBUNE as it thought he was. Events will prove that this newspaper has nothing to cover in this connection.

If THE TRIBUNE was concerned when it thought that an attack had been made upon it because it was inimical to crime it is doubly concerned if it be the fact that crime had made a connection in its own office. Some time ago a criminal use was made of a TRIBUNE want ad. A Negro, by means of it, raped a girl nurse in a north shore household and escaped. His crime was atrocious and his escape might have been successful, but THE TRIBUNE regarded it as one which could not go unpunished. It, therefore, put its own men on the work and at the end of five months the criminal was taken, convicted and sent to the penitentiary. He might have remained immune if the ordinary processes of law had been used, because they are not equipped for these particular efforts. It is no reflection in general on them that this should be true. The police would have hunted for this rapist until other and newer criminals required their efforts. Thereafter he would have been only a man wanted. To particular effort he was a man wanted until he was had.

THE TRIBUNE trusts that it will be the same with the murderers of Alfred Lingle in the search in which it is engaged. That he is not a soldier dead in the discharge of duty is unfortunate considering that he is dead. It is of no consequence to an inquiry determined to discover why he was killed, by whom killed and with what attendant circumstances. TRIBUNE readers may be assured that their newspaper has no intention of concealing the least fact of this murder and its consequences and meanings. The purpose is to catch the murderers. Information which would be valuable to them and inconsequential to the readers may be handled with a discretion which might not be unprofessional in all newspapers.

The murder of this reporter, even for racketeering reasons, as the evidence indicates it may have been, made a breach in the wall which criminality has so long maintained about its operations here. Some time, somewhere, there will be a hole found or made and the Lingle murder may prove to be it. THE TRIBUNE will work at its case upon this presumption and with this hope. It has gone into the cause in this fashion and its notice to gangland is that it is in for duration. Kismet.

TOMORROW'S REFERENDUM.

Tomorrow the voters of Chicago can give their city modern transportation. THE TRIBUNE advises its readers to vote for the traction ordinance.

The settlement is an acceptable one. It has the indorsement of the Civic association, the Association of Commerce, the traction committee of the City club, and some 200 other organizations, including most of the neighborhood welfare clubs. The voice of labor is preponderantly in its favor.

The ordinance assures the building of subways through the downtown district. The subways will not only speed trains through the congested zone; they will also permit the building of elevated extensions in the outlying regions. Those extensions cannot be built now because, with only two tracks in the loop, no more trains from outlying sections can be accommodated at the rush hours.

The ordinance authorizes free transfers from the elevated to the surface lines. Transfers from the surface lines to the elevated will cost only 3 cents. Surface line extensions will be built in all sections of the city, many of them employing buses rather than the present type of street car.

The ordinance requires the company to make every effort to reduce the noise, now an inseparable part of our transportation. The new elevated and surface lines will be built for quiet operation and the old ones will be remodeled with the same end in view.

The 1930 census shows the trend of population away from the center of the city, toward the outlying wards. This fact emphasizes the need for improved rapid transportation. The settlement promises an average saving, to those living in the outlying wards, of at least half an hour a day in traveling to and from the loop. To those who must travel daily beyond the loop district the settlement may mean a daily saving of an hour or more.

Above all, the settlement, if adopted now, assures a building program of $300,000,000 in the next ten years for traction facilities alone. Above, and far exceeding that amount, will be the money spent in building up the new districts which will be opened by the extensions and improvements. Chicago's growth has lagged because of the lack of transportation. The approval of the ordinance should result in more jobs, more wages and better living conditions for the people of Chicago.

The voters of Chicago have the opportunity tomorrow to secure for themselves a more prosperous and comfortable city in which to live. We hope they seize the opportunity by voting "Yes."

Editorial of the Day

MR. WOODCOCK'S PROMOTION.

[Baltimore Sun.]

Mr. Amos W. W. Woodcock's friends in Maryland may be in some doubt whether or not to congratulate him on his appointment as director of the bureau of prohibition of the department of justice. But they can find satisfaction in the confidence shown in his ability.

Transfer of the direction of prohibition enforcement activities from the treasury to the department of justice was made to put control of investigation and prosecution of violations of the law in the same hands. It is creditable to Mr. Woodcock that his record as district attorney in Maryland and the impression made by him upon the Wickersham law enforcement commission, which drafted him to aid it in its work, were responsible for his selection for this trying and difficult position to which he now goes. The appointment is a tribute to his character as a lawyer, as a man and as an administrator. Having lately said that Mr. Woodcock should not be appointed to the federal bench, the Sun is glad to say that the new post is one in which his extraordinary zeal as a dry can be joined properly with his ability as a lawyer and his quality as a citizen.

Both wets and drys should applaud his selection. The drys should be pleased because his heart is in the cause and he has demonstrated that he is both vigorous and fearless in prosecution of offenders. The wets should be pleased because he will have opportunity to show to what extent these qualifications can succeed in making the law effective. If progress is not made under the new régime, the argument that it is impossible to make the country dry under our present prohibition laws will carry greater weight.

ACIDS AND ALKALIES.

THE continuance of life is dependent on the maintenance of a very delicate balance between acids and alkalies in the blood. The slightly alkaline reaction cannot be changed more than a point or two in either direction without stopping the action of cells which must function or life will cease. To maintain this balance, chemicals—some acid and some alkaline—are stored in such a way as to be immediately available for use by the blood. If the tendency is acid-ward, immediately the store of alkali is drawn on. If the trend is the other way, draft is made on the acid bin.

In what we call acidosis there is no acidity of the blood, but there is an unusual use of alkali to overcome the acid tendency. Likewise, in alkalosis there is no excess of blood alkalinity; there is merely an excessive withdrawal of acid. In the light of these facts we must recognize that there is never an acid condition of the blood nor an acidity of the system.

Furthermore, we can see that acidosis is an effect rather than a cause, or to put it another way, there are several separate disorders in each of which there is an acid tendency which draws on the alkali reserve, a group of symptoms which goes by the name acidosis. Likewise, there is more than one way to induce alkalosis—more than one abnormality which causes the group of symptoms which goes by the name alkalosis.

We have not always recognized the difference between these different kinds of acidosis and alkalosis and, in consequence, we have sometimes failed in giving relief. For instance, when a child is vomiting freely and, after a while, develops a fever, we are likely to say acidosis—and to give orange juice and water. Such cases are more frequently alkalosis than acidosis, and the remedy needed is salt or some other chloride or some acid.

Prolonged vomiting causes a large loss of acid gastric juice and chlorides and, in consequence, the stock of acids and chlorides is drawn low. On the other hand, when a child has a diarrhea without vomiting and fever rises and some delirium develops the probability is that the child has one kind of acidosis. Orange juice and alkalies are helpful.

In the pyelitis of children we not infrequently give alkalies until symptoms of alkalosis develop. When acidosis or alkalosis is suspected an effort should be made to find out which is present before starting remedies.

SPINAL MENINGITIS.

M. H. writes:

1. Is spinal meningitis contagious?
2. How should the room be disinfected after a patient [a boy 19 years old] has been taken to the hospital?
3. Is it safe for another person to use the room, bed, mattress, and blankets he had when he took sick?
4. Is there any danger of relapse after he comes out of the hospital?
5. Is it safe for a girl 12 years old, not very strong, with a tendency towards colds, to live in the same small apartment when the boy comes out of the hospital?

REPLY.

1. Yes, but the danger that the contacts will develop meningitis is not great. The danger that they will become carriers is greater.
2. Thorough cleaning, sunning, and airing is enough.
3. Yes, after such cleaning, sunning, and airing.
4. No.
5. There is some danger.

SLEEP AFTER EATING.

Mrs. A. W. writes:

1. If it is bad for a grownup to go to sleep after a heavy meal, why do doctors advise a nap for a child after the heaviest meal of the day—noon?
2. A child 2 years old wakes up every day in a heavy sweat. Is this because he has eaten just before going to sleep?

REPLY.

1. There is no objection to a person, adult or child, sleeping after a full meal. Sleeping after eating is habitual among animals, including babies. Adults could indulge the same habit with advantage if it were not for the need of working.
2. The probable cause is rickets or scurvy. Possibly the room is too warm—or the bed.

NO MORE SMOKE.

Chicago, June 23.—[Friend of the People.]—Would appreciate your investigating an apartment on Hyde Park boulevard for smoke nuisance. It has been necessary for us to keep our windows closed almost constantly and as this has been going on for a long time would appreciate anything you can do to eliminate this. MRS. E. S.

The agents of this building have been served with a notice to discontinue the practice of burning rubbish and garbage in the heating boiler and to provide hard coal for the hot water heater.

The agents have since advised the department that they will act promptly in eliminating the nuisance. The department will continue to keep premises under observation to determine whether or not there is any further cause for complaint.

TO COLLECT ON LIEN.

Chicago, June 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A lawyer took a note to put a lien on the indorser's property for nonpayment: 1. Can he collect the money without my knowledge of it? 2. What evidence should the lawyer give to his client when he takes the note?

M. B.

1. This would seem possible.
2. A receipt is often given, but it is not legally necessary.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NO FAIR!

Chicago, June 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The other evening while some boys and myself were playing ball, the ball went into a ner-by yard. The owner saw it and quickly came out and took it and kept it.

1. Did he have a right to come out and get it merely because it went into his premises?
2. Is ball playing forbidden where the ball can easily go into another's yard?

P. B.

No, to both questions.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

OH, SAY, CAN YOU SEE—

Yessir, this week we are sleeping in the trenches ready to go over the top Friday—the 4th of July. And all us one hundred per cent Americans will rally 'round the flag, boys; we'll rally once again and stand by good Old Glory. And Pietro Mulligatama will lay two or three fingers on the altar of our common country, and Zzmetro Kojovotsky a piece of his left ear, and Meyervitz Beeranstein will be carried home on a shutter and doctors will work two hours picking powder out of his anatomy. Farmer Applesass' big barn won't be as big soon after the great day starts because the little Applesasses, full of the spirit of '76, will pick the hay loft as a good place to shoot off their firecrackers. Sturdy patriots who could never be daunted by a sullen foreign foe will walk around spanking torpedoes down on the pavement behind nervous old ladies; and other intrepid heroes, born too late for Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill, will prove their fiery valor by shooting revolvers out of the back window and hitting old man Wigglewaggle in the left hind leg. And old man Wigglewaggle will be half a mile away trying to argue his grandson out of hammering a stick of dynamite with an ax. It will be a great day and a glorious victory, but you noncombatants had better beat it down to your bombproofs that day and wait until it's all over. Oh, say, can you see? Well, you can't if you don't quit peeking down that cannon to see why it won't go off.

TO WOMEN WHO PAINT TOO MUCH.

Your ruddled cheeks do but disguise
The natural blush of health,
Those penciled lines about your eyes
But steal their pristine wealth.

Upon your lips more than enough,
So daubed with carmine stains,
Too prodigal of the powder puff,
My dear, where are your brains?

A man wants memories sweeter
Than cosmetics only note,
And, too, what can be fleeter
Than powder on his coat?

IT'S ALWUZ A ARGUMENT ABOUT THA KITTY.

Dick: Bout 3 months ago our poker gang suggests takin a rake every time we play an spend tha kitty on a 4th of July outing. Being theres 8 players theres 8 arguments as to how much to take out, whose gonna watch tha money an whose gonna watch him. Blimp says a nickel outa each pot, Shylock says it cughta be outa each 4th pot (he always wins every 3rd one), big-hearted Solly wants it ta come out only when theres 6 stayers. Tha wimen wasn't consulted cause what tha hell do they know about tha laws of economics and finances so its being done tha way tha B. an C. and three other female agitators fixed it. By now we've got 36 bucks, lass nite votes was taken as to where we're goin. When tha ballots was counted 8 different spots was tied for first place. When they ask tha Mama how come that she's been braggin about Oconomowoc an voting fer Round-Lake she refuses to answer (between me and you, she didn' know how to spell it). Leah's heard about Atlantic City but don't know where it is, when she inquiries, Blanche kiboshes it by sayin we aint goin to any city we wanna go to a summer resort. Irene, votes to split tha jack an go to Lincoln Park. Up to now tha question is as tha French people say, in STATU-QUO.

Women can think of tha damdest arguments. Irene brings before tha speaker's chair a question as to tha fairness of spending tha dough equally cause she's only got one kid while most of us has got from two to six. Me an Solly try to convince her that it aint our fault that she's only got one an that maybe she ought to write her Congressman. Now the question of lunch on tha way comes up. One dont want to fix a lunch, one suggests stoppin at a barberscue an tha other suggests waiting till we hit where we're goin, tha other dont register cause its gonna fall on her lettuce and tea day in tha diet. Well, tha wranglin got so louzy I suggests to tha B. an C. that next year tha only cards we're gonna play are calling cards espesshully tha ones that read "Try and come for dinner," and tha Mama answers me very prettily with "Yea, if there frends of yourn just try an come for dinner." Fire-works aint gonna cost me a dime, tha B. an C. is furnishing them.

IT IS proudly announced from Hollywood that Lottie Loder, imported from Europe as a most promising future queen of the squawkies, is fast learning our language and is able right now to count to a hundred. Oh, mercy. Why, Lottie, cease, we beseech you ere you get too cultured for the movies.

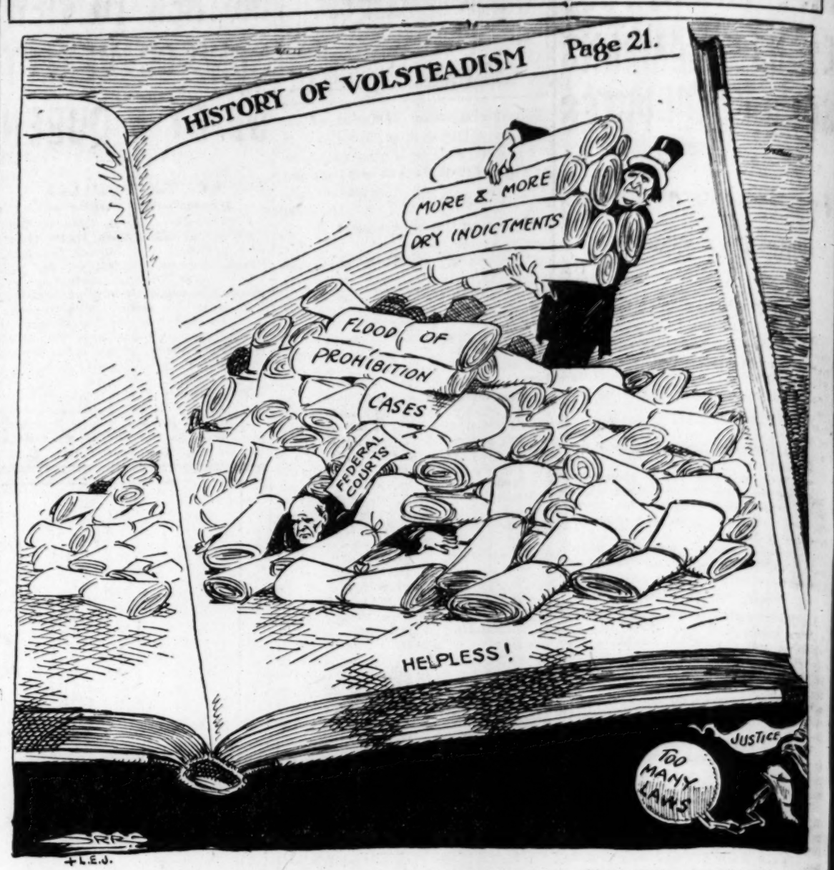
PROHIBITION



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 30, 1865.

LOUISVILLE.—Gov. Bramlette addressed the citizens in favor of the constitutional amendment and the advantage of free over slave labor in Kentucky. He declared the necessity existed for the immediate action of Kentucky in disposing of the vexed question of slavery, the progress of events having practically destroyed the institution itself.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Johnson is still sick and today declined to receive visitors.

NEW YORK.—The Post's special from Washington says that the military commission trying the Lincoln assassination conspirators met in secret session and agreed upon a verdict. Its nature is not known, but it will be announced as soon as President Johnson acts upon it.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The expenditures of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30 will be about twelve hundred million dollars. Secretary of the Treasury McCulloch hopes to make the receipts from various sources for the ensuing year equal the expenditures, which he expects to reduce to about one million dollars a day.

MADISON, Wis.—The regents of the state university have selected J. L. Pickard, superintendent of schools at Chicago, to be chancellor at a salary of $2,000 a year. It is not known whether he will accept the position.

CAIRO.—Maj. Gen. Grierson, the famous federal raider, arrived here. His cavalry is at Vicksburg, just returned from an expedition through portions of Mississippi and Alabama never before visited by a hostile force.

CHICAGO.—H. J. Pahlman of Chicago and Miss Maggie C. Ermeling of Naperville were married on June 28 at the home of the bride's father by the Rev. James T. Henner.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 30, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Municipal ownership of the subway system proposed by the transit lines to the city council's special railway commission will be demanded by the city if the plan is passed. Members of the commission favor construction of the subways by the city.

CHICAGO. — The convention of trades unions, which will be held tomorrow, is expected to bring forth a sensation in the form of a resolution recommending a general strike of all labor organizations in Chicago for two days as a demonstration of union labor's power.

LONDON.—By far the most interesting news relating to the Chinese and Boxer situation is Admiral Seymour's telegram telling of the defeat of his allied force on the way to Peking in which he gives his total losses as 62 killed, of whom four were Americans, and 206 wounded. He estimates the enemy's loss as 875.

SHANGHAI.—It is reported that the United States battleship Oregon, which sailed from Hong Kong on June 23 to join Admiral Kempff's squadron at Taku, was wrecked on June 23 on an unknown rock four miles south of How-ki light, a small island of the Miao Tao group, fifty miles north by west of Cheefoo.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 30, 1920.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The subcommittee of the committee on resolutions, working far into the early morning hours, is understood to have rejected a proposal to put a wet plank into the Democratic platform. Secretary of State Colby fought all night for a light wine and beer plank. As a result a fight looms on the liquor question on the floor of the convention. The Wilson draft of the plank on the league of nations was submitted to the subcommittee. Senator Walsh is the only member of the subcommittee opposed to the plank. Friends and foes of Irish freedom staged a turbulent session before the committee, and as a result leaders of the administration forces are inclining a listening ear to those demanding a strong declaration for an Irish republic.

RECOLLECTIONS.

Chicago, June 28.—I came to Chicago many years ago. The streets were safe for walking then. The street cars ran slow from the north. They did not cross the river, you know. And the courthouse stood in the block in which it stands today, with a large green yard all around where the newsboys used to play. The old gray goat, a pet, was at Clark and Washington streets. I never knew him to do any harm, but he was always looking for something to eat. Families lived all through the section now called the loop. There were many small frame houses with shingled roofs. South of Adams and west of Clark there was a large open space, and a family lived in a shack there. Our business blocks were not so high but we had the stairs to climb. We had no elevator service for some little time. But it all burned down in '71. Gas and water we had none. Homes were destroyed and business gone. I watched the city be rebuilt with a great deal of pride. I have watched it extend on every side, but I watch it now from a window seat, for the changes have made me afraid to cross a street. MRS. A. C.

SORRY, BUT IT'S TOO LATE.

Chicago, June 26.—If it is not too late to have embodied a cast iron stipulation in the new transportation ordinance whereunder the companies shall be bound, under penalty of loss of their franchise, to provide and maintain for convenient use at each car window a jimmy or miniature crowbar, such implement to be used at the discretion of the passenger and regardless of any damage to said implement from his efforts to open a window, the pending ordinance will receive the affirmative vote of every lover of fresh air in Chicago, including

ARMIN SEITZ.

FATHER MARQUETTE'S GRAVE.

Carbondale, Ill., June 21.—I was much surprised to find in today's TRIBUNE that your Mr. Hal Foust makes the statement that the original grave of Father Marquette is "an unmarked wooded knoll" near Ludington. I can not understand where Mr. Foust got his information. Certainly not on the knoll where the grave is supposed to have been, for on this knoll is a boulder some six feet high, one face of which has been smoothed; the smoothed surface is covered with a bronze tablet possibly two by three feet upon which are inscribed Father Marquette's name, his services, and the fact that this monument and tablet were placed there by the Daughters of the Revolution of Ludington, Mich. I sat in the shade of a nearby tree and looked on this monument and meditated upon the life work of Father Marquette. I took two or three pictures of the monument and have the pictures in my possession. I think every intelligent man or woman in Ludington knows the monument is there, as I think one could easily see it with an opera glass, as it is not more than a mile or so across the bay from the wharf where the Chicago boats land. GEORGE W. SMITH.

Department of History, Illinois State Teachers' College.

PREP BASEBALL.

Chicago, June 24.—I attended the final baseball game between Marshall and Lane. Aside from several spectacular plays made during the course of the afternoon, two matters of vital importance to the future of prep baseball impressed me the most. In the first place, an admission charge of one dollar at the gate is quite high, even for such an important game, and the abundance of vacant seats there proves this assertion. Five years ago at the Yankee Stadium when Lane played Flushing of New York, over 57,000 people attended. Do you think for one minute that this immense gathering would have attended if the admission had been one dollar instead of twenty-five cents for children and fifty cents for adults?

The other fault, which is prominent in almost all amateur ball games, and which is more difficult to remedy, is their long duration. Few people care to spend three hours watching a nine inning game, especially when about half of the time is consumed by the pitcher and catcher in walking toward each other after every pitch that is not hit.

CHARLES LIDL.

PARKING IN EVANSTON.

Chicago, June 25.—On Monday, June 23, when the thermometer registered some 93 degrees, I took my mother, brother and sisters for an automobile ride. We rode north on Sheridan road and decided to stop along the lake at a point just north of the city limits. We were parked but a few minutes when a detective came up to our car and looked at our Chicago vehicle tax license. He then informed us that we would have to keep moving, and that parking along the lake was reserved for Evanston cars. Now what right have the people of Evanston to prohibit the people of Chicago from parking along their lake front when their cars are daily parked along our lake front and under Wacker drive, taking up valuable space which could be used by Chicagoans? What would the people of Evanston say if they were prohibited from parking where Chicago cars were allowed to park?

POPE SANCTIFIES EIGHT JESUITS SLAIN BY INDIANS

First Saints from North American Continent.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 29.—Christian Rome today offered its most impressive and picturesque spectacles, when Pope Pius XI, the 261st pope, in St. Peter's Cathedral, crowned with sanctity eight Jesuit missionaries, who suffered martyrdom 300 years ago at the hand of Hurons and Iroquois Indians in the wilderness around the Great Lakes of North America.

The eight martyrs, all of French birth, are the first North American saints. Three died in New York and the rest in Ontario. The sainted martyrs are Isaac Jaques, Jean de Brebeuf, Antoine Daniel, Gabriel Lalemant, Noel Chabanel, Rene Goupil, Charles Garnier, and Jean de la Lande.

Feast Day Sept. 26.

In proclaiming them saints before a huge assemblage, including many American and Canadian prelates and lay pilgrims, including descendants of St. Jean de Breuf, Pope Pius set aside Sept. 26 as a feast day for the new saints. Their names were added to the catalogue of saints, who date back to the beginning of Christianity.

Besides the eight martyrs Theophile de Corte, Corsican monk, and Cardinal Bellarmin of Naples were also canonized.

Today was made more significant in church annals by the fact that it coincides with the fête day of Saints Peter and Paul, founders of the Roman church, which was also celebrated today, and also by a monument, which was erected today to Pope Pius at Desio, near Milan, his birthplace, commemorating him as the "pontiff of conciliation."

All Rome flocked across the Tiber early this morning for the canonization rites, which lasted five hours. Pope Pius completed the ceremonies with freshness and energy giving no signs of ill health.

Thousands Crowd Cathedral.

The interior of St. Peter's was brilliantly illuminated by a myriad of lights, and the huge statues and pictures were hung with red damask and garlanded with flowers. Thousands filled the church, some sitting on the floors and altar railings.

In a parade, preceded by 20 cardinals and scores of bishops, including Bishop Thomas J. Walsh of Newark and Auxiliary Bishop Joseph C Plagens of Detroit, Pope Pius, wearing his miter, entered the cathedral shortly after 8 o'clock. He was carried on a sedia gestatoria to the throne amid applause. In the cortége were borne the banners of the new saints.

The pope prayed on bended knees. Then taking his place on the throne he listened to a dialogue between the consistorial advocate asking for canonization and the secretary, who responded in behalf of the pope. The litany of saints was chanted by thousands of voices invoking the blessing of the virgin apostles and the martyrs. The Veni Creator was sung and then the advocate said, "Arise, Peter will speak through the mouth of Pius.

New Saints Proclaimed.

Pope Pius XI., seated on his throne proclaimed the new saints and ordered their memory be piously recalled every Sept. 26. After singing the Te Deum and chants in honor of the new saints a cardinal inscribed their names in the catalogue after those of the apostles and Pope Pius celebrated mass at the high altar underneath the Michelangelo dome. The mass was punctuated by the traditional offertories by the postulator of saints.

Pope Pius then delivered a homily on the lives and works of the canonized, and his voice was carried to the throng in the church by 80 loudspeakers.

Tonight at dusk 350 workmen began clambering over the cupola, façade and colonnade of St. Peter's, and as the sun set the historic basilica flamed up in a mass of twinkling candles.

POPE SANCTIFIES EIGHT JESUITS SLAIN BY INDIANS

First Saints from North American Continent.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 29.—Christian Rome today offered its most impressive and picturesque spectacles, when Pope Pius XI, the 257th pope, in St. Peter's basilica, crowned with sanctity eight Jesuit missionaries, who suffered martyrdom 300 years ago at the hand of Huron and Iroquois Indians in the forests around the Great Lakes of North America.

The eight martyrs, all of French birth, are the first North American saints. Three died in New York and five in Ontario. The sainted martyrs are Isaac Jaques, Jean de Brebeuf, Antoine Daniel, Gabriel Lalemant, Noel Chabanel, Rene Goupil, Charles Garnier, and Jean de la Lande.

Feast Day Sept. 26.

In proclaiming them saints before a huge assemblage, including many American and Canadian prelates and pilgrims, including descendants of Jean de Brebeuf, Pope Pius set aside Sept. 26 as a feast day for the new saints. Their names were added to the calendar of saints, who date back to the beginning of Christianity.

Pope Pius made the eight martyrs Theophile Corte, Corsican monk, and Cardinal Odorico of Naples were also canonized.

The day was made more significant in Catholic annals by the fact that it coincides with the fête day of Saints Peter and Paul, founders of the Roman church, which was also celebrated today, and also by a monument, which was erected today to Pope Pius IX in Desio, near Milan, his birthplace, commemorating him as the "pontiff of reconciliation."

All Rome flocked across the Tiber early this morning for the canonization rites, which lasted five hours. Pope Pius completed the ceremonies in good humor and energy giving no sign of ill health.

Thousands Crowd Cathedral.

The interior of St. Peter's was brilliantly illuminated by a myriad of lights, and the huge statues and pillars were hung with red damask and garlanded with flowers. Thousands filled the church, some sitting on the steps and altar railings.

In a parade, preceded by 20 cardinals and scores of bishops, including Bishop Thomas J. Walsh of Newark and Auxiliary Bishop Joseph C Plagens of Detroit, Pope Pius, wearing his miter, entered the cathedral shortly after 8 o'clock. He was carried on a sedia gestatoria to the strains of a solemn applause. In the cortège were borne the banners of the new saints.

The pope prayed on bended knees. On taking his place on the throne he listened to a dialogue between the postulatorial advocate asking for canonization and the secretary, who responded in behalf of the pope. The litany of saints was chanted by thousands of voices invoking the blessing of the virgin apostles and the martyrs. The Veni Creator was sung and then the advocate said, "Arise, Peter will speak through the mouth of Pius.

FINDS HIS WIFE WITH OTHER MAN IN 8 HOUR SIEGE

Continuous Rapping Opens Their Hotel Room.

For eight hours Arthur Anderson, 55 years old, 7453 Stewart avenue, besieged his estranged wife, Ruth, 21, of 7526 South Peoria street, and Robert Simpson, 38, a traveling salesman of St. Louis in their room on the 26th floor of the Morrison hotel yesterday. During the entire period Anderson, in relays with two private detectives, hammered at the door and phoned demands that his wife be produced.

Mrs. Anderson and Simpson registered in the hotel as Mr. and Mrs. R. Simpson of St. Louis. Anderson trailed them to the hotel with David S. Greve and Frank Cohen, private detectives, and rented an adjoining room. At 2:30 o'clock in the morning he pounded on the door for entrance. There was no answer. He returned to his room and phoned the adjoining room. A male voice answered.

"Listen, you!" Anderson shouted. "You've got my wife in there."

Simpson hung up the phone. Anderson and the detectives began the continuous banging at the door. Anderson left long enough to go to the Central station to ask police aid. This was refused because he did not have a search warrant. However, two detectives were sent to the hotel.

At 10:30 the siege was raised when Mrs. Anderson's attorney, Ben Ehrlich, appeared. He was followed into the room by Anderson and the detectives. Simpson and Mrs. Anderson were taken to the Central station, where Anderson charged them with disorderly conduct. They were released on bonds of $100 each.

The Andersons have been separated since June 15, 1928, the attorney said. Shortly after the separation she filed a suit demanding a half interest in a string of filling stations valued at $250,000. She lost her fight in the lower courts, but was upheld recently by the Supreme court.

"The raid was spite work because I won the suit," she said. "I am planning to sue for divorce on a charge of desertion. I could not do so before because I had to wait the expiration of the two years required by law."

EXTORTION CHARGE TO BE MADE AGAINST VILLAGE CHIEF TODAY

Extortion charges will be placed against Chief of Police Stephen Smuda of Phoenix, a southwest suburb, today, it was declared last night by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney. Chief Smuda was in a cell at the Lawndale station. Capt. Albert Westcott also of the Phoenix police, who was arrested Saturday with his chief, was released after questioning.

Accusers of Chief Smuda are Daniel Paladino of Phoenix, Dr. M. Resos, 20 North Ashland avenue, and Thomas Mouzakiotios, 2657 Adams street. Lieut. William V. Blaul of Roche's staff took Smuda and Westcott into custody after Paladino, at Blaul's direction, gave Smuda $200 in marked bills.

Paladino related that Chief Smuda, learning he had bought a quantity of grapes, had demanded $400 in cash and $50 monthly for the privilege of selling liquor in Phoenix. Paladino, not contemplating entering the bootleg business, came to the state's attorney's office.

LEWIS DEMANDS STATESMEN HALT POLITICAL TRICKS

James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic candidate for United States senator, yesterday voiced a plea for upright statesmen to end the brand of political charlatanism which he said has undermined public faith in public representatives. He spoke at the fiftieth anniversary of Swedish fraternal societies in Batavia, Ill.

"Every branch of government, finance, commerce, religion, and education in the United States is being made the victim of political partisan hypocrisy," former Senator Lewis said. "This affiliation has weakened the spirit of patriotism and has destroyed the confidence of our fellow citizens in the political parties of the United States and in the political leaders in public office."

The former senator pointed to the farm bill under President Coolidge and the soldiers' relief bill under President Hoover. Both bills were passed by congress with the knowledge that they would be vetoed by the Presidents, he said. When the bills were returned to congress the very statesmen who voted for the bills to cultivate political favor with farmers and ex-soldiers, promptly voted to sustain the veto in order to endow themselves with political offices from the Presidents, he charged.

"This bold trickery was unworthy of the great assemblage of congress and was contemptible on the part of those who did it either to deceive the farmer or trick the Presidents," Mr. Lewis said. "These exhibitions are making the house and the senate objects of ridicule from the citizenship of our land. Such statesmanship is an object for contempt or pity.

"The time has come for the citizens of this land to insist that government be conducted with straightforward intelligence and direct honor. There should be an end of the disgusting farce of tricking the multitude to win political votes."

Chiefs Compare Faction to Boy Scouts.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DELHI, June 8.—[By Mail.]—Though the British blame the Peshawar riots on communists, or so-called Red Shirts, leaders there flatly deny the taint of Russian Reds. The British press is full of "Red Shirt" stories at Peshawar, capital of the northwest province.

I have been unable to cable the truth of the situation there because the British censor has forbidden me to even cable a 100 word summary of a statement isued by Abdullah Shah and Jaffar Shah of the working committee of the Afghan Jirga at Peshawar.

Story Styled as "Piffle."

The censor styled the cable as "piffle."

Following is the statement, which was mailed from Peshawar, the "danger spot" in this revolt:

"Now that a thick veil of fog overhangs the Peshawar incidents, with statements, counter-statements and government communiques making the confusion worse, we, the members of the central committee of Afghan Jirga and the Khudai Khidmatgar deem it necessary to issue this brief statement of facts.

"We most emphatically repudiate all the allegations intended to give the Jirga movement the color of a subversive revolutionary campaign. It is nothing of the sort. In strict pursuance of the congress creed of nonviolence, the Jirga movement was run on peaceful, constitutional lines, having for its immediate objective the reform of most vicious and extravagant social customs, discouragement of feuds and litigation, and economic reconstruction of the tottering peasantry.

Like Boy Scout Movement.

"At the same time the Jirga in practice found it difficult to effect reform, without the assistance of some subordinate institution, whose members may first set an example by their good conduct and then preach their principles to the villagers. Such is the history of the Khudai Khidmatgars.

"They required discipline and, like the Boy Scout movement, drills and parades were introduced to teach them orderliness at the time of meetings and other social gatherings. By studying the constitution of the Khudai Khidmatgar, it would be found that the movement is exactly the same as that of the Boy Scouts. The first item in the oath of allegiance is, be 'non-violence under any circumstances.' A perusal of events in Charsadda subdivision will prove their loyalty to their creed.

"In this connection we may also touch on another bogey cleverly conjured—the bogey of the so-called 'Red Shirts'—suggesting association with the Reds of Russia. In the first place the shirts, which our volunteers wear, are not exactly red. They are of chocolate color, which official anxiety to link up with bolshevism has intensified into 'red.'

Membership Is 25,000.

"We wish to state that the choice of color has nothing to do with Russia. It is by chance that this choice was hit upon for the shirts, while black was chosen as the color for the flag of the movement. The 'Red Shirts' movement, made so much of in the government communiques, is just to screen their deeds from the outside world. The movement has now spread no doubt and whole villages have taken to this color of shirts.

"Before the arrest of leaders, the number of such volunteers was about 700. Within a fortnight of the arrests it rose to 25,000. The authorities, jealous of the awakening, arrested the leaders of the movement, Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan, Abdul Akbar Khan and others, for nothing. This aroused the populace to resentment. They were held in high esteem for their services in the course of social uplift.

"There is absolutely no connection whatsoever of this organization with the trans-border tribes nor any communication is ever made between those concerned with this movement and any of the trans-border tribes. If any act is done by the tribes it might be on their own account for reasons known to themselves only. Their own men are alleged to have been beaten and shot in Peshawar, which might have excited them."

REVOLT IN INDIA GROWS; ARMED FORCES REQUIRED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, June 29.—The situation in India is growing worse with nation-wide reports that the difficulties encountered in enforcing the repressive ordinances against the passive disobedience of the Nationalists are assuming such proportions that they are beyond the efforts of the police to overcome and that either armed forces or volunteers will have to be drafted. Nationalists meeting at Delhi on Saturday reiterated their determination to resist British rule and expressed their intention of carrying the fight on to a finish.

Arrests for picketing, for the wearing of Gandhi caps, and for interference with clients of liquor shops continue. Hundreds of women are among those seized. The police have broken up several meetings held to protest against the Simon report. They charged the natives with bamboo clubs and injured many. Over 100 have been arrested also in the Dhansana district for organization of a tax resistance campaign.

The Bezwada [Madras presidency] Bar association is investigating the case of a lawyer who came to court to defend a client and on entering was totally stripped of his khadda [native cloth] garments. He had to use a hotel towel as garb while he proceeded with his case. There are also numerous reports of searches without warrants of the offices and homes of lawyers.

"I am fifteen and a high school student, and have been under-weight. Was down to eighty-nine. My mother had such fine results from Konjola, which she took for rheumatism, that I was induced to try this new medicine. In three weeks—in which time I used three bottles—I gained ten pounds. I eat and feel much better, and have so much more energy. Now my father is starting to take Konjola. This family certainly considers Konjola a great medicine."

It was Scintilla Aircraft Magnetos (a Bendix Product) that furnished the millions of hot, "fat" sparks without a miss.

And Pioneer Instruments (a Bendix Product) kept the pilots informed as to the conditions of their engine, their altitude, their level and direction.

As Bendix Products have for years been leaders in automobile development by providing the vital units of starting, going and stopping, so also have they played a great part in every noteworthy achievement in aerial performance since the beginning of aviation.

WAR sweeps its torch across Asia—

FROM the Indus to the rim of the Arctic, Asia seethes turbulently. Revolt ripples through the dry tinder of ancient hates. Rumors, disquieting echoes creep from out the veil that hangs over the East. Seat of ancient dynasties, Asia again commands the attention of the world.

Gandhi, "Ironsides"—what is their significance? What is transpiring? What is fact and what is propaganda or fiction in the ugly stories that drift westward? World relationships hinge on the turn of events in the East. The world demands news—the complete facts. And Chicago Tribune writers in India, in China, wherever the red torch flames, are on the scene, getting the facts first hand, reporting them regardless of censorship.

SMALL TOWN NO PLACE TO STUDY TRAFFIC LESSON

Congestion Usual in Big City Areas Is Unknown.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mount Vernon, Ill., June 29.—[Special.]—THE TRIBUNE road car escaped the Sunday blockade of automobiles on the highways of the metropolitan area by driving to this home town of Gov. Emmerson, in the southern part of the state. There is no congestion today on the two concrete highways that serve this city of 10,000.

There are those who contend that the present state administration has difficulty in trying to understand metropolitan traffic problems, because conditions are so different down state. The trip here was to describe Mount Vernon conditions for what they are worth, as an explanation of Gov. Emmerson's administration of road affairs.

Mount Vernon, from a traffic standpoint, is a fifteen mile an hour town. The speed limit is posted on the through streets. Incidentally, the markers do not conform to the official standard.

Parking regulations also smack of the small town. Spaces for cars are painted on the brick pavement in the center of the main business street.

No Grades, No Busy Intersections.

The signal lights on the four corners of courthouse square are rather unusual. The "Go," the "Caution," and the "Stop" are all amber, instead of the conventional green, amber, and red.

There isn't much opportunity thereabouts to learn to appreciate the value of grade separations. There are no busy highway intersections like Roosevelt and Mannheim roads, or North avenue and Lake street, where thousands of Cook county motorists are delayed every Sunday and holiday, and traffic is too light to require four lane pavements.

THE TRIBUNE took a traffic count this afternoon at the section of state highways 15 and 37, which is one block from the center of Mount Vernon, and, therefore, has both local and through traffic. In fifteen minutes the intersection was passed by seventeen northbound cars, nine westbound, seven eastbound, and nine southbound.

Comparison by Figures.

In fifteen minutes at Milwaukee and Dempster streets, just north of Chicago, 1,500 cars pass on a busy Sunday. Friends of Gov. Emmerson have declared that he can appreciate the value of wide pavements and highway grade separations, notwithstanding the fact that there is no urgent demand for these improvements down state. His critics, however, contend that a governor caught in blockades almost daily might have a readier understanding of metropolitan traffic problems and a greater incentive to solve them. The critics can also point out that the county pays almost half of the state's total road bill, and gets less than a fifth of the construction.

Incidentally, the state is now building a third concrete highway through Mount Vernon, on route No. 142. Judging from the map its utility will be almost entirely local. A fourth state highway into Mount Vernon, route 148, is on the bond issue program, to which the gasoline tax is pledged.

FUND FOR TANKS MAY REVERT TO TREASURY

War Department Must Act Today or Lose It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Unless action is taken by the war department tomorrow, an appropriation of $250,000 voted in 1928 for the purchase of fighting tanks for the army will revert to the treasury.

The money was voted to purchase six light ordnance developed tanks but before the fund was expended new experiments were ordered to see if a better tank could not be produced. Since that time tests have been made with an improved ordnance light tank and the Christie combined wheel and track vehicle, a type on which the war department already has expended close to a million dollars.

Favor Christie Type.

Many war department officers favor expenditure of the $250,000 on a half dozen Christie tanks so that this vehicle, which has won favor in the army, can be given a thorough field test with troops. The ordnance department has successfully opposed such a step.

The war department now desires to purchase one tank from the fund for experimental purposes but up to tonight had not been able to come to terms with Walter Christie, the inventor.

Hope for Tanks Vanish.

The department also is considering authorizing the ordnance department to go ahead and develop an entirely new light combined wheel and track tank.

It is considered likely that a least a part of the $250,000 appropriation will be contracted for for experimentation. In any event all chances for the acquisition by the army of fighting tanks for service use during the next year has vanished.

TWO SOUTH SIDE COUPLES ROBBED OF $7,000 GEMS

Two south side couples were robbed of jewels and cash to the value of more than $7,000 early yesterday by two polite young bandits who halted them while they were returning from an evening at the Drake hotel. The victims are Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lautz, 6720 Oglesby avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. William M. King, 6846 Paxton avenue. Lautz is an architect with offices at 806 West 79th street. King operates a printers' service at 638 Federal street.

The Lautzes had just alighted from the Kings' car in front of the Lautz home when the robbers appeared. Mr. and Mrs. Launtz were compelled to reenter the automobile. The bandits forced King to drive to 68th street and Paxton avenue. During the drive Mrs. Lautz was stripped of her jewelry, including two diamond bracelets valued at $4,000, a necklace, and a platinum ring worth $2,000, an a $750 wrist watch. Mrs. King surrendered a wrist watch and a diamond ring. Lautz gave up $50 in cash.

TRAPS ALLEGED SLAYER OF SON AFTER 2 YEARS

After a two year search a father yesterday led the police to the alleged killer of his son. The father is Martin Flatow, 1806 South Central Park avenue, proprietor of the Riviera billiard parlor. His son, Harry Flatow, 24 years old, was shot to death on May 24, 1928, in an areaway at 2014 North Clark street. Michael Walsh, alias Miles Mullen, was indicted for the murder.

For two years Walsh has been a fugitive. Yesterday the father went to Capt. Hugh McCarthy and told him that the killer was in an apartment at 3204 Broadway. The apartment was raided and Walsh captured. With him were the widow of the murdered man, Mrs. Mary Flatow, 5100 Sheridan road, niece of Walsh; his wife, Mary, 22 years old; Mary Fielding, and Elizabeth Walsh, a sister.

Walsh denied the charge. The younger Flatow had named Walsh as his slayer before he died, the police said. The shooting followed a quarrel.

ENDS OWN LIFE BY POISON.

FOES OF BRITISH HIGH CHURCHMEN DISTURB BIG MEET

LONDON, June 29.—(AP)—Thousands of members of the high and low church parties of the Church of England nearly came to blows upon the Chelsea football ground today. The field was chosen by the Anglo-Catholic congress for an open air celebration of high mass to inaugurate its sessions.

Twenty-five thousand high churchmen arrived at the field this morning and found a large number of low churchmen bearing banners inscribed with the words: "No Popery," and distributing texts and handbills and shouting exhortations through megaphones. The Anglo-Catholics, who came from all parts of the country, finally made their way into the arena, and the service began. With its first notes the tumult of the low church zealots died down.

Trouble at the ceremony had been anticipated as the low church party had appealed to the bishop of London and to the prime minister to prevent the service.

GOLF PRO SEIZES 2 ROBBERS AND GIRLS IN CHASE

Two holdup men and their girl companions were captured yesterday in a chase led by D. L. Eckberg, 1422 Grey avenue, Evanston, a professional golfer. One of the bandits stopped Eckberg at 1100 Davis street, Evanston, and was told that his victim had only a dime. After a search the bandit ran down an alley in disgust.

Eckberg saw him enter an automobile in which two girls and another man were riding. He ran to the Davis garage at 1015 Davis street where he was joined by Leo Hines, a mechanic, with a shotgun. They drove after the bandits. At Niles Center they forced the other car to a curb and captured the quartet.

FOES OF POLISH REGIME DEMAND PILSUDSKI QUIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CRACOW, Poland, June 29.—More than 1,500 delegates, including senators and deputies of the six political parties opposed to the present government of Poland, gathered here today and passed resolutions against the régime. The leaders then harangued 10,000 peasants and workers, here from all parts of Poland despite the efforts of the police to keep them out of the city.

Resolutions were passed by the crowd demanding the resignation of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski and President Ignace Moscicki and the establishment of parliamentary government.

Perfect order was maintained with the Socialist defense organization on patrol outside the city and the entire police force on guard inside the city.

Mother is ordering "SELECTED" Milk

It's good news for the kiddies

The beginning of the hot summer months is the ideal time to change to "Selected" Milk. The easiest way to arrange the change is to phone Franklin 3110.

"Selected" not only has that "Sweet Natural Taste" that milk drinkers enjoy so very much, but it Keeps Sweet Longer. That's a particularly important and convenient feature in summer.

These outstanding "Selected" qualities are due to the unusual safeguards which surround the production of this special milk for drinking, on 105 picked dairy farms, in the fine dairying neighborhood surrounding Lake Geneva, Wis.

The farmers are paid a liberal premium for producing "Selected" Milk under rigid regulations, on their model dairy farms. Unusual precautions are taken to cool the milk immediately after milking, and keep it cool, (except for the half-hour period of pasteurization), to its delivery at your door.

It costs only 17 cents a quart, to supply "Selected" to the milk drinkers of your family. The children will love it. So will the older milk drinkers of your family. Many folks serve "Selected" at the table for all the family, on hot days—cool, refreshing and health-building.

Why not arrange a trial of "Selected" beginning with tomorrow. Just PHONE Franklin 3110. Or if you prefer, mail in the coupon or SPEAK to your Borden Milkman.

BLUE LARKSPUR, MISSTEP HEAD NAUGURAL CARD

Turf's Finest to Run and Jump, Too.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The finest racing of the year in America, conducted amid surroundings that are hardly equalled at any race course in the world, will be brought to Chicago today with the opening of the Arlington Park Jockey club's season of 30 days.

From the east and the west, from the north and south have come the finest thoroughbreds in training to test their speed and stamina. And trailing them here are most of the turf enthusiasts from many widely scattered sections. It is expected a crowd of 25,000 will see today's program.

Where the racegoers gathered last night and discussed the opening program, Misstep's name was most frequently mentioned. The little red streak of the western turf has been named overnight for the two most important events on the program, the $7,500 added Inaugural handicap at seven furlongs, and the Chicagoan purse which has a value of $2,200 and is at a mile and a furlong.

Will Be Favorite.

In each, all the stars of the west and many from the east are pitted against him. He will, of course, go to the post in only one race. But regardless of the race Misstep starts in he will be the favorite.

In the Inaugural handicap 25 others along with Misstep were named overnight. Silverdale, Brown Wisdom, My Dandy, Current, High Foot, Kari Blel, and Jock are some of the western rivals of Misstep in the Inaugural. The east will depend on Romany Baw, Sandy Ford, Donnay, and Justinian.

The Chicagoan purse finds Misstep lined up against Blue Larkspur, Canaan, William T. Dark Entry, Cesare, Macedon, the English horse Gipsy King II., and Fair Ball. Trainer Mose Lowenstein indicated last night that he will likely start Misstep in the Chicagoan and his meeting with Blue Larkspur, which will be making his first start since he won the 3 year old championship last year at Arlington Park, will be a race that will attract interest in every part of the country. Blue Larkspur is reported to be in excellent condition.

Twenty 2 year olds, some of which may develop into the stars of the year, have been drawn into the first race. There are ten high grade sprinters in the second race at threequarters of a mile. Eight brilliant 3 year olds, most of them eligibles to the $80,000 Classic, are to hook up in the third race, which is also at six furlongs. Then comes a mile race with 10 of the highest class platers in training accepting the issue.

To Find Plant Improved.

There were thousands of visitors at Arlington yesterday when the final rehearsal of employés took place. When the opening day throng gathers this afternoon it is going to find the plant improved to a great extent.

There has been an expenditure for improvements since last season of upward of $350,000, and the Arlington Park Jockey club now has a plant which is at least 50 per cent better for racing and the comfortable handling of racing patrons than it was last year.

The most conspicuous improvement, naturally, is the steeplechase course. The jumpers will race over what was the "inner course" for flat racing last season.

The infield, now including a lake and a playing ground for polo, has been regraded and converted into an expanse of landscaped beauty. There is a new chute for races at a mile, the expansion slanting at an obtuse angle from the back stretch, forming a sharp V with the straight back stretch extension. The "elbow" of it is so easy as to be almost imperceptible close up.

Paddock More Attractive.

Back of the grandstand and clubhouse a paddock that is as attractive as the beautiful paddocks at Belmont Park and Saratoga has been created. It has been set out in elms and maples that have made vigorous growth and will furnish shade this season and in seasons to come.

A mile training track for the flat racers, a training track for the hurdlers and steeplechasers are other new features.

Picking winners on the opening card is going to be a strong man's job. There's a good, generous mixture of horses from every track. But if you can't pick the winners at Arlington its going to be a comfortable, inviting and restful place to spend an afternoon. Post time for the first race is 2:15 o'clock.

BOXING'S SELLING POINTS WAYWARD BUT GET RESULTS

Where'd Game Be Without Evils, Intrigue?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—If I were the publisher of a metropolitan newspaper I would not curtail the space devoted to the schemes and the work of the criminals among the most prominent members of the prize fighting industry, because my experience tells me that the readers are not nearly as curious about the orderly process of nice sports as they are about fake fights, fouls, sluggings on dark streets, gun play in the dressing rooms, and the cheap and sordid subserviency of the prize fight commissions. This sort of doing is rising to a newsy climax, probably the abolition of the prize fighting business, and it is good newspaper practice to stay with a hot story.

At first glimpse, it may seem scandalous constantly to devote such a volume of newspaper attention to the social vermin of the prize fight business on pages nominally dedicated to the propagation of the ideal of sport and, less consciously, to the improvement of the breed of humans, through athletics. At times I have thought perhaps I was too close to the racket and, befuddled by the fumes, had lost my sense of proportion and my taste in sport news, with the result that I devoted too much attention to prize fighting and too little to lawn tennis, golf, intercollegiate rowing, polo, and so forth.

Doesn't Slight Any Sport.

Baseball I do not slight, as I generally attend the spring training operations of several major league teams in the south, the opening of the season in the east, the final tour of one of the contending major league clubs, and the world series. In the autumn, from world series time until Thanksgiving and a little beyond, I devote my time to intercollegiate football, which is the most truly amateur of all our banner line sports, notwithstanding the glum conclusions reached by Prof. Howard Savage of the Carnegie Foundation, and the most heroic, despite the horrible examples of the Western conference.

The Iowa boys, who were ruled out as professionals on account of some paltry loans from a subsidy, were far more amateur than the professional amateurs of tournament tennis of both sexes whom one is asked to regard as exemplars of the nice ideal. The borrowing of the Iowa boys, which were finally adjudged to be earnings, amounted to no more than $15 a year in certain cases, as I recall them.

But when C. C. Pyle was opening his professional tennis troupe to tour the country in support of Suzanne Lengien, one of the famous amateur ladies, whose name recently has been appearing in the tournament news from abroad, rejected an offer of $15,999 cash on the ground that she had been living at the rate of approximately $15,000 a year for some years and expected to continue living at this rate for some years more as an expense account amateur. This meant that her amateur card was an interest bearing certificate with a yield equal to that from a trust fund of $250,000 and this lady was no champion.

Policy Seems Affectation.

This, I think, is characteristic of tennis. Moreover, the game as a spectacle lends itself so poorly to dramatization on newsprint that when a newspaper determinedly exploits the news of a tournament 3,000 miles away above the news of the prize-fighting racket, with its interesting rogues and its undeniable appeal to the customers, such a news policy seems to be an affectation.

If, as a test of the comparative interest, an inquiring reporter were to approach a dozen people on the streets today, asking them first to tell him how the Americans fared at Wimble-

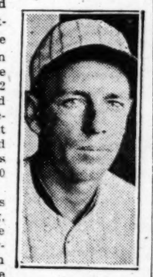
Red Sox Defeat White, 10 to 6; Then Lyons Stops Them, 2 to 1

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., June 29.—Ted Lyons, one of Mr. Comiskey's two skilled and able-bodied pitchers, this afternoon let a little ray of sunshine in by beating the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 1, in the second game of a doubleheader. The first game was old Red Faber's tenth loss of the year, a 10 to 6 affair.



TED LYONS.

The victory was most refreshing, not only because it was Ted's eleventh of the season but also because it ended a string of eight straight the Bostons had piled up against our nine.

Beat Blue Law, Too.

The second game was exciting as the first was listless, this being due to the Massachusetts blue law in its application to the baseball business. It is unlawful to start an inning here after 5:40 p. m. of a Sabbath and after artistic stalling, the White Sox thought the game was over at the end of the eighth. Somebody's watch was wrong, however. It was only 5:39½. So it became lawful to start another inning. The Sox were unable to score under this dispensation but Earl Webb led off the inning of grace with a double to left.

If Webb were to score, it would have meant a tie game, for by that time it would have been sinful to proceed further. So there it was. Webb on second, nobody out and piety snorting to end the ball game.

Regan sacrificed Webb to third and a long fly ball would have given the Puritan law folks a hearty laugh. However, Miller fouled to Kamm. Then Durst was called out on strikes and the ball game was over.

Sox Score 2 in 4th.

In this second game, the Sox waited till two were out in the fourth inning before altering a 0 to 0 state of affairs. Reynolds was thrown out by Rhyne, but Jolley singled to right. Cissell forced Jolley, then stole second. Clancy walked. Kamm singled to right, scoring Cissell and putting Clancy on third. Tate singled to left, scoring Clancy. Lyons forced Tate for the third out.

In their end of the fourth the Red Sox made three hits in a row off Lyons and their one run of the game was the fruit thereof.

Two of these accrued in the first inning on successive hits by Todt, Scarritt and Webb and three more trotted across in the second inning on a single by Rhyne, an infield out, Kamm's error and successive singles by Oliver and Todt. At this point the first aid fellows arrived on the field with the aforementioned stretcher and carried Old Red to safety.

Walsh Replaces Faber.

Walsh went in and after retiring Scarritt walked Webb. This was followed by a single by Regan, which gave the Bostons their fourth run of the inning and brought the count to 6 to 1, Jeffries having got around for Chicago in the first inning.

At the end of the Chicago seventh, the Comiskeys have made a total of five hits and three of these were knocked out by Reynolds, who had one outfield and two infield singles.

After they were hopelessly licked, the Sox gave a demonstration of great power in the eighth inning. Clancy opened with a single and Kamm walked. Watwood batted for Berg and made the first hit he has accomplished in many days, a double, which scored Clancy and Kamm. Metzler batted for Walsh and tapped to Rhyne, Watwood taking third. Watwood scored on Jeffries' sacrifice fly.

Robins Lose First Place, but Derive Solace from Purse

Although the Brooklyn Robins came here with first place in their possession and went away without it, they derived some consolation from the amount of funds provided by Old Man Public.

In the neighborhood of 115,000 spectators paid their way through the turnstiles during the four days in which the Robins were in the process of being squeezed out of first place, thus making one of the biggest series ever staged at Wrigley field. The opener last Thursday drew a bit under 25,000 paid. The next day the money "take" came from 20,000; on Saturday the total was almost 30,000, and yesterday, despite threats of rain up to game time, there were 42,000 on hand.

In addition to the paid admissions on Friday there were 30,500 women who took advantage of the free gate. On that day there were more than 51,000 people inside the park. The total attendance for the four game series was more than 147,000.

O'CONNELL BEATS JENNINGS; TAKES STATE NET TITLE

Catherine Wolfe Defeats Miss Zinke in Upset.

George O'Connell, who has traveled all over this continent and Europe for the last twelve years playing tennis, displayed his best game at the Town and Tennis club yesterday and defeated George Jennings, 6-4, 6-0, 0-6, 6-4, to win the Illinois state championship.

Chuck Garland, member of the 1926 Davis cup team which brought the famous trophy back from Australia, teamed with Luke Williams, present city champion, and former national inter-collegiate title holder, to win the doubles. Charles and Leo LeJeck, Hamilton Park brothers, were no match for Garland and Williams, who won in four sets, 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

Ranking Woman Beaten.

Catherine Wolfe of Indianapolis startled the gallery when she defeated Clara Louise Zinke of Cincinnati, first ranking woman player in the west, in the finals of the women's singles. Miss Wolfe, the defending champion, won by keeping the ball in play, driving back with monotonous regularity until Miss Zinke took a chance and tried for the point. Her errors out-numbered her placements and Miss Wolfe won the match, 7-5, 6-4.

Karl Kamrath of Austin, Tex., eastern and western junior champion, ran through Earl Bossong, Cincinnati, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2, to win the junior crown.

Miss Zinke and Ruth Oexman, also of Cincinnati, won the women's doubles with ease from Miss Wolfe and Eugenie Sampson, 6-1, 6-3.

Western Meet Opens Today.

Bruce Barnes, Houston, Tex., second ranking Texas star, and Cliff Sutter, New Orleans, who won the national intercollegiate championship last week heads the list of 80 who will start play today in the western tennis championship at the River Forest Tennis club.

George Jennings, national public parks champion, Luke Williams, Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines, Ia., one of the leading players of the Missouri Valley, Maurice Bayon of Tulane university, and George O'Connell are other seeded stars.

CHARLEY ROOT.

Score Three in Fourth.

Quantity production in the Cub fourth when three registered was started by Cuyler's single past third. He hiked down to second while Wilson was being tossed out on a powerful tap in front of the plate. Stephenson then singled to center, sending Cuyler across the counter. Grimm forced Stephenson and escaped a double play because Gilbert's throw to second pulled Finn off balance. Hartnett followed with a two bagger down the left field line, Grimm halting at third. Beck shoved both mates home with a double into the left field crowd.

The Cub run in the sixth was the result of a couple of hits and some strategy which went wrong. Wilson led off with a single to right and went to third on Stephenson's double against the bricks in left. The runners remained at their stations while Gilbert was throwing out Grimm. The Robins then decided the easiest way out of the jam was to pass Hartnett, filling the bases. The trouble with this scheme was that Beck also insisted on a pass, which he got. This forced Wilson to score. It also concluded Moss' labors for the day. Dudley stepped into the vacancy and closed the inning by inducing Root to bounce into a double play.

Root's shutout started to fade when Gilbert walked in the seventh. He raced to second on Herman's drive,

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There's nobody in front of the Cubs now.

The few points that separated them from the coveted first rung in the pennant ladder faded yesterday when a bruising, rushing attack and a brilliant defense behind the still more brilliant pitching of Charley Root clipped the wings of the contending Robins before an overflow crowd of 42,000. The score was 5 to 1, and from a Chicago standpoint it was a fitting happening for the 66th birthday of Uncle Wilbert Robinson, the rotund Brooklyn genius.

The champions lost no time demonstrating their intentions of making it three in a row over the eastern hopefuls. They leaned against the offerings of Hollis Thurston, the ex-White Sock, for a run in the first inning. They banished him with a cluster of three in the fourth and tapered off their attack with a run off Moss in the sixth. Then it was just a matter of whether Root would weaken. He did a bit in the closing innings, but not enough to let the Robins rally.

Root Breezes for 6 Innings.

Root's slight letdown toward the end was the result of the dizzy pace he set for himself. He was in there to atone for being routed by the Robins in the series opener last Thursday, and for six innings he carried out his purpose so effectively that only two hits broke the monotony. He made himself even more impressive in the same six rounds by fanning five batters. Then a flurry of two hits in the seventh let the enemy enjoy its only run, but while they started on him again in the eighth and ninth, he promptly jammed on the brakes.

Blake will welcome the Giants today.

The Cubs were prodigal with their hits in the first inning. They unrolled two doubles and a single in the order named, but could weave them into only one run. After Blair had opened unimpressively with three strikes, English sailed a fly into the left field overflow crowd for two bases. Cuyler lined through short for a double, and English romped home. Wilson then beat out a high bounding single to Gilbert, putting Cuyler on third. Additional run getting halted abruptly when Stephenson tapped into a double play.

BOXING'S SELLING POINTS WAYWARD BUT GET RESULTS

Where'd Game Be Without Evils, Intrigue?

don, Saturday, and then just who fouled whom, and in precisely what rounds, in the last four big heavyweight prize fight shows, he would discover that the heavyweights were outscoring the tennis players about eleven to one.

I have attended many tennis tournaments and as between watching William T. Tilden knock some rabbit on the head and watching Primo Carnera read a newspaper, I would much prefer watching Primo read the newspaper, even if he held it upside down. For one thing, there is something about a pair of twenty dollar flannel pants and a $300 membership in a suburban tennis club that makes people supercilious as though just a little apprehensive that customers at the gates might not fully appreciate their social superiority, and the game itself seems to indulge in its star players an imperious petulance which shows when some child in the grandstand pops a wad of chewing gum, putting them off their stroke.

Boxing Commands Interest.

But I have noticed that the prize fighting business is the only department of that varied activity which we call by the name of sport which commands the almost constant interest of nonprofessional people of both sexes. By nonprofessional I mean people who do not write about sports nor take part in any public competitions. Sometimes I frequent the company of such persons who have only a guessing interest in sport, and I notice that when sport is mentioned the conversation immediately centers on the subject of the heavyweight prize fighters. They discuss the racket to denounce it as a swindle, to be sure; but it fascinates them just the same, and I think they will be just a trace sorry when the legislature eventually takes them at their word and abolishes the enabling under which the business operates.

Golf, or Bobby Jones, who is all there is to golf in the hurried consideration of the public, is a topic of sporadic interest. Baseball is an undertone. Only inter-collegiate football can interrupt the heavyweights over a sustained spell and without trying to define prize fighting as sport to justify its prominence on the page, I may say that only in football, when the teams lineup for the kickoff of a big game, does there occur the same instant of tense expectancy that takes place as the boys go down the aisle to the ring for the main event, attended by ex-convicts in caps and sweaters with boxing commission licenses in their hip pockets.

Cubs' Victory Shoves Robins Off Top Rung

which fast fielding by Cuyler held to a single. Wright hit one straight back at Root, but it eluded him for a single, Gilbert scoring. Bissonette relieved the strain by sending a grass cutter to Blair for a double play. Then Bressler walked and Finn popped to English to close the inning.

The Cubs started off in the seventh as if determined on nothing short of a rout, but good pitching stopped them in their tracks. Blair singled and English survived on a fumble by Wright. Cuyler failed to swing when a perfect third strike floated across. Wilson walked, which probably was more intentional than otherwise on Dudley's part. Then, with the bases filled, the unexpected happened. Both Stephenson and Grimm were set down on strikes.

Robins' Hits Wasted.

Uncle Robby's fellows still had an idea about going places when they faced Root in the eighth. They peeled off two more hits, but without profit. Lopez singled and Flowers, batting for Dudley, fanned. Frederick whacked a safety to right. Gilbert was retired on a pop foul to Hartnett. This brought Babe Herman's sledge hammer bat in Root's path, but the noted clouter's efforts was only a bounder on which the pitcher tossed him out.

His trouble in the ninth consisted of a pass to Bissonette and a single by Bressler with one out. The next two hoisted flies to the outfield, and everybody went home.

Over 7,500 cigar factories are registered by the U. S. Government. Over 7,400 of these hand-roll cigars, producing 50 percent of the output. Every hand-rolled cigar—made by American Cigar Co. or anyone else—is subject to the possible danger of "spit-tipping." Certified Cremo is absolutely free from spit-tipping—No Cremo is made by hand.

Reese's Homer Helps Yankees Beat Indians

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Jimmy Reese's home run with the bases full proved to be the winning blow in the Yankee's 7 to 6 victory over Cleveland in the final game of the series. The Yankees won the series, four games to one.

Charley Ruffing, who relieved Ed Wells with the score tied, blanked the Indians for the last three frames and got credit for his sixth straight victory. He has not lost a game since coming from Boston.

MACKS, 6; TIGERS, 5.

Detroit, Mich., June 29.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics defeated Detroit, 6 to 5, in their one day stand here.

The game ended in a near riot, with police officers escorting Umpire William Guthrie from the field. The Tigers staged a rally in the ninth which fell one run short of a tie. Jimmy Shevlin, Detroit rookie, was the third out when he tried to score from first on Stone's single. It was a close decision and the crowd disagreed with Guthrie.

Tilden, Cochet Loom as Foes in Tennis Final

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, June 29.—Out of more than 500 tennis players striving for championship honors at Wimbledon the week's eliminations have brought out a formidable, orderly lineup of the real class in the field.

BILL TILDEN.

The hardest tennis is yet ahead, with the men's and women's singles in the fifth round, only eight players remaining. The men's and women's doubles have gone into the fourth round, which precedes the semi-finals.

There is a virtual certainty that last year's final between Bill Tilden and Henri Cochet, the French holder of the championship, will be repeated. Cochet beat Tilden in straight sets in 1929, but if the lanky Philadelphian holds his present form and Cochet does not do better than he has thus far in the current meet, it will be a longer test if they meet Saturday.

Cochet is paired tomorrow against Wilmer Allison of Texas. The others in that bracket are Johnny Doeg of California and G. S. Mangin of Washington.

Tilden heads the lower bracket, drawing Dr. J. C. Gregory of Great Britain for his next match. George Lott of Chicago opposes Jacques Borotra, the former titleholder, in his first appearance in the final eight.

There probably will be another repetition of the 1929 women's singles final. Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs are now separated in the draw and are expected to furnish another all-American championship match.

Risko to Try, Try Again in Griffith Fight Wednesday

Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight contender, it seems, bars no one when he wants to fight. For the third time Johnny has started up the championship ladder. Victories over Campolo and Paulino sent his stock upward. Notwithstanding, Risko will fight Tuffy Griffith Wednesday night at the Stadium and Tuffy is the only outstanding heavy Johnny never has been able to beat.

"Johnny doesn't dodge the good ones," Nate Lewis, Stadium match maker, said yesterday, discussing how he signed the headliners for Wednesday night. "All he asks is a good fight. If Risko and his manager followed precedent, I would expect him to sidestep Tuffy. They've met twice. Risko lost the first battle on a foul. The second fight, ten rounds in New York, gave Griffith his reputation when he won the decision.

"Risko has met the best fighters. He defeated Jack Sharkey in 15 rounds and he has won from George Godfrey when the Philadelphia Negro was a fighter and not a radio announcer. I believe Risko and Stribling are better than Max Schmeling, although if Tuffy beats Risko again Wednesday Johnny's recent comeback will be jeopardized."

Lewis' figures show that if the Stadium is sold out, Risko and Griffith each will earn $11,000, or slightly better than $1,000 a round, Wednesday night. The house will gross $60,000 if it is sold out.

The rate of return for the preliminary fighters is interesting. Dan Gasparo and George Pavlick, who open the show with a six round bout, will split $1,000. Buster Mallini and Henry Firpo divide $1,200 for six rounds. The eight rounder between Ted Ross and Tate Littman will cost approximately $1,400. The salaries of Paul Swiderski and Frankie Simms, who meet in the ten round semi-windup, will total $3,300. The cost of the four preliminaries will be $6,900.

Stadium officials announced yesterday the fight would not be broadcast.

Now's Time to Enter Tribune Swim Events

Entries for THE TRIBUNE'S amateur swimming races in the Lincoln park lagoon will close three weeks from today. In this time thousands of Chicago's boys and girls will prepare for their 100 yard swimming test. All youngsters between the ages of 12 and 15, inclusive, who can swim 100 yards, will receive merit badges.

By tomorrow all of Chicago's beaches will be opened officially. Park pools and natatoriums are available and they afford opportunity to test your ability.

Many will enter, undoubtedly, seeking to earn a merit badge. The more speedy will qualify for the finals in the four races. There are four prizes offered in each of four races. The 12 and 13 year olds contest together and the 14 and 15 year olds are in the other division. Separate races will be held for boys and girls.

The lagoon has been dredged. The course is clear of weeds and accumulation of winter's storms.

Swimming officials, who will conduct the Central A. A. U. events, will direct the juveniles. Now is the time to enter. You are assured of winning a merit badge, and with four weeks' training you may be the champion speed swimmer of your division.

ROTARY VISITORS AID BUSINESS IN WHOLESALE DIST.

But Normal June Quiet Prevails Generally.

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

Except for the rather steady demand for the seasonable ready to wear lines, trade in the Chicago wholesale district continued its normal June dullness last week. With the regular summer market and semi-annual convention of the interstate merchans' council approaching, however, manufacturers and jobbers in the wholesale district are now laying plans for their busiest season.

Although business for the half year just closing has not approached in volume that abnormally properous year of 1929, most resident buyers and manufacturers in the Chicago district have discarded their former attitude of glum pessimism and are looking forward to a more profitable third quarter business.

Rotarian Visitors.

The attendance of thousands of Rotarians last week for the convention of Rotary International pepped up the wholesale buying somewhat, since many of the convention visitors were retail merchants who combined merchandise purchasing with the business and pleasures of the convention. The visits of many Rotarians to the new Merchandise mart, now the world's largest building, was both surprising and significant to members of the trade now located there. So widely publicised has the big new mart become in all parts of the country that hundreds of Rotarians, whether they did any buying or not, were curious and eager to visit the building.

Advance bookings for the fall and winter trade are generally 25 per cent less than usual for men's clothing, according to one informant. This condition naturally is reflected from the depression of business generally, since retail buying of men's apparel has fallen off. At this time a price trend downward is indicated, although if business should pick up noticeably with the approach of autumn a shortage of goods may be a consequence.

Men's Style Trends.

The fashion trends of men's suits favor the softer finished materials in plain colors, lending themselves more to decorative effect or style, according to W. E. Smith, vice president of Alfred Decker & Cohn. Thus cheviots and cassimeres, for example, should succeed the hard finished worsteds in fashion preference.

MOVEMENTS OF CURB STOCKS ARE CONFUSED

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Price movements are confused in the curb market, although the volume of trading has undergone a sharp contraction. Bear selling last week was generally less severe than in the preceding week and was relieved by occasional rallies based on short covering, but there seemed to be a lack of outside buying orders and the market was left largely to the professional traders. The trend was downward.

The shorts had fair success with the utilities and oils, especially in the earlier sessions. They also picked up a few industrials, specialties and investment trusts, running them down to new lows for the year. Electric Bond and Share was squeezed to a new minimum, but did not long remain at the bottom and moved within an 8 point price range during the week. American Gas and Electric fluctuated more widely, as usual, but the utilities in general confined their courses to nominal limits and turnovers toward the end of the week diminished.

One of the week's largest breaks was in Glen Alden Coal. After holding around 98 for some time, the stock succumbed to short selling and dropped to 75, its lowest in some years. There was a slight rally from the minimum. Deere was fairly staple. Aluminum of America made one of its familiar gyrations, breaking to 212 and rallying to 250.

UNREST IN INDIA AND SUBSEQUENT BOYCOTT HIT AMERICAN TRADE

BOMBAY, June 29.—(AP)—American trade with India has been hit by the business slump brought about by the Swaraj, or independence movement, and the subsequent boycott. The chief sufferers have been the automobile industry and shippers of various kinds of machinery.

The Nationalists' boycott is directed against British goods in particular, but all foreign firms doing business in different parts of the country are feeling its effects. Enormous losses have resulted. Japan's trade in cotton goods also was hard hit, not only by Mahatma Gandhi's campaign to stimulate homespuns, but also by the 5 per cent Indian preferential tariff which, importing agents say, works in Great Britain's favor. Business men believe that in a short time the automobile as well as the cotton yarn and piece goods business will be in the doldrums owing to Indian unrest.

During 1929 there were shipped from the United States and Canada 15,000 trucks and 12,000 private cars for the Indian trade. This average continued until last month, when business began its decline. In May, 1929, 459 cars were sold in Bombay presidency, while in May, 1930, but 284 cars were sold, and observers say indications point to June figures far below May's.

A detailed analysis of British India's trade returns for May, issued by the department of commercial intelligence and statistics, reflected the falling trade due to the political situation. It showed the visible balance of trade in May was but 9,300,000 rupees, or approximately $3,300,000, in favor of India, as against 36,600,000 rupees, or about $13,360,000, in April, and 24,600,000 rupees, or about $9,000,000, in India's favor in May of 1929.

TREASURY HAS $200,000,000 FISCAL SURPLUS

1929 Figures Were $185,000,000.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—Huge tax payments from income derived in 1929 will enable the treasury tomorrow to complete the 1930 fiscal year with a surplus of approximately $200,000,000, but it will find itself faced with the problem of providing adequate funds to pay the $4,500,000,000 appropriated by congress for next year in view of prospective dwindling revenue.

The treasury's last statement issued for the close of business last Thursday showed the government had collected $213,526,000 more than it had spent since last July 1. With no large payments to be made before the end of the year tomorrow night, it appeared certain that the surplus would be in the neighborhood of the Thursday figure. The surplus for 1929 was $185,000,000.

Income Tax Effect.

The Wall street collapse last October, which, for a while, had been expected to reduce income tax collections, was shown in the payments to have affected but comparatively few of the millions of tax payers. Before the collapse the treasury had estimated income tax for the 1930 fiscal year would amount to $2,480,000,000. This figure was reduced by $80,000,000 through the one per cent reduction granted on normal and corporation incomes for 1929.

Despite this reduction, the collections on Thursday had

REASURY HAS 200,000,000 SCAL SURPLUS

929 Figures Were $185,000,000.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(AP)—[illegible] payments from income de- [illegible] in 1929 will enable the treasury [illegible] to complete the 1930 fiscal [illegible] with a surplus of approximately [illegible], but it will find itself [illegible] with the problem of providing [illegible] funds to pay the $4,500,000,- [illegible] appropriated by congress for next [illegible] in view of prospective dwindling [illegible].

The treasury's last statement issued [illegible] the close of business last Thursday [illegible] the government had collected [illegible] more than it had spent [illegible] July 1. With no large pay- [illegible] to be made before the end of [illegible] year tomorrow night, it appeared [illegible] that the surplus would be in [illegible] neighborhood of the Thursday fig- [illegible]. The surplus for 1929 was $185,- [illegible].

Income Tax Effect.

The Wall street collapse last Octo- [illegible], for a while, had been ex- [illegible] to reduce income tax collec- [illegible], as shown in the payments to [illegible] affected but comparatively few [illegible] the millions of tax payers. Before [illegible] collapse the treasury had esti- [illegible] income tax for the 1930 fiscal [illegible] would amount to $2,480,000,000 [illegible] figure was reduced by $80,000,000 [illegible] the one per cent reduction [illegible] on normal and corporation [illegible] for 1929.

Despite this reduction, the collec- [illegible] on Thursday had reached $2,404,- [illegible], or $78,000,000 more than was [illegible] in the same period of the [illegible] twelve months.

In that day the government had [illegible] a total of $4,151,057,206 since [illegible] July 1 and had spent $3,938,536,- [illegible]. In addition to the income tax, [illegible] receipts also spurted upward [illegible] the last month. Those collections [illegible] had dropped off $40,000,000 in [illegible] comparison with the previous year [illegible] an upward bound just before the [illegible] tariff law went into effect, so [illegible] on Thursday the total of such [illegible] for the year aggregated $583,- [illegible], which was $12,000,000 less [illegible] collected in the same period of [illegible] year.

Foreign Debts.

Part of the surplus this year was [illegible] to foreign debtor nations making [illegible] June 15 payments on war debts [illegible] this country in cash instead of in [illegible] States securities, as had been [illegible] practice. This added $100,000,000 [illegible] the surplus, but Secretary Mellon, [illegible] opposing the passage of the orig- [illegible] world war veterans' relief act, [illegible] the government was faced with a [illegible] deficit next year, due to increased [illegible] appropriations for public buildings to [illegible] relieve the unemployment situa- [illegible]. At the same time he pointed [illegible] the government expected less rev- [illegible] next year, because of the 1930 [illegible] depression.

[illegible] appropriation bills enacted at the [illegible] session of congress, which are [illegible] paid in the 1931 fiscal year, start- [illegible] Tuesday, amount to approximately [illegible], which is more than the [illegible] it is estimated the govern- [illegible] will collect next year. The total [illegible] the present year, ending tomorrow, [illegible] be approximately $4,200,000,000, [illegible] with less revenue expected next [illegible] a deficit seems certain.

[illegible] condition, however, has existed [illegible] previous years and the government [illegible] through exercising economy, fin- [illegible] the year with a surplus.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—A semi-annual [illegible] distribution amounting to [illegible] will be made to holders [illegible] North American Trust Shares to- [illegible]. This is believed to be the [illegible] semi-annual distribution ever [illegible] by a fixed trust. Holders will [illegible] $1.34 a share. Holders have [illegible] rights to reinvest part of this [illegible] return in additional shares at [illegible] from the asked price.

Investment Trusts Given Comparison

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—The analogy between the condition of investment trusts in this country at present and the British investment trusts in the period between 1893-1896, in the financial depression that followed the Baring brothers debacle is being noted by many financial observers in Wall street at the present time.

Although there are many points of similarity of both cause and effect between the two periods, trust executives here are inclined to feel not only that the period of investment trust unpopularity will not be as prolonged in this country as it was in England, but that the multiplicity of the scandals which grew out of that crash will not be repeated in this country.

Note Close Parallel.

The recent decline in the stock market which has carried prices to levels almost as low as after the precipitious crash last fall is believed to have finally lead trust executives to see the close parallel between conditions existing now and at that time and to trace back and discover how similar the evolution of trusts in this country has been to that forty years ago in Great Britain.

The great optimism of the trusts in this country, built upon several years of what was admitted to be wildfire growth, was undaunted by the severe declines last November, and executives at that time said they saw no reason why trusts should not come back rapidly. Few in any branch of enterprise exist, it is said, who can point a finger at the trust leaders for their optimism because all America felt the same way then.

Now, six months later, with most leaders admitting that the business recovery may be anywhere from three to six months away, the buoyant optimism has given way, it has been noted, to conjecture, and a searching of parallel conditions has been found to be going on in almost every phase of industry.

Logical Comparison.

For investment trusts, the logical comparison is with the similar stage in British history when those trusts, also new and having gone through a period of rapid growth, were brought to a sudden halt by a financial upheaval the aftermath of which saw many of them crumble and all of them lose their popularity with the public, it is being pointed out.

That public confidence in the investment trust is not as far gone in this country now as it was then in England, however, is witnessed by the fact that while in England no trust securities would sell, there has been a good market for securities of the so-called fixed trusts in this country this year. It has been pointed out that this is an indication that the public still likes the trust idea, even though it may temporarily have lost much of its confidence in the management type of trust.

Expects Good American Trade with Argentina

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—As soon as the present economic depression has run its course, American manufacturers and exporters may expect the Argentine to place large orders in this country, according to D. A. el Rio, assistant vice president of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company. Mr. Del Rio said that Argentine trade conditions were basically sound, and with the return of normal crops and better markets abroad, the country will again be prosperous.

Navy Orders Machinery for New Treaty Cruisers

New York, June 29.—(AP)—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company has received from the navy department an order for propelling and condensing machinery for the new Washington treaty cruisers amounting to approximately $1,500,000. An additional order also was placed by the navy department for equipment of the three vessels with the recently developed Westinghouse propeller type blowers for furnishing air under pressure to the oil burning firerooms.

Appraises Limitations of Women for Manual Work

BY SCRUTATOR.

Women as workers outside the home have made great progress in the past thirty years. Yet it is indubitably true that it is still a man's world so far as most forms of employment are concerned.

The women's bureau of the United States department of labor, one organization that cannot be accused of taking Pollyanna views of its subject, in the past two weeks issued bulletins showing the following:

Factory Age Limits.

1. Women in search of factory employment find that they have passed age limits before they are 30 years old, and that their opportunities are precarious after 25.

2. Sweat shops, in which women are the principal workers—and sufferers—still exist; there were only a year or two ago, 1,467 employers in the city of New York alone employing 11,516 persons, many of them tired tenement mothers and children.

3. Average weekly wages of factory employed women in Illinois, in January of this year, were $19.70 as compared to average weekly wages of $31.75 for men in factories.

Family Problem.

There are, to be sure, some reasons why girls are more desirable than older women workers. The latter, often, are so held down by family cares that they cannot labor at maximum efficiency. It does seem, however, that the barring of women without small children at the age of 28 or 30, or even anywhere below 40, is almost absurd. No such system is generally followed in clerical work. A half dozen executives who employ more than two or three stenographers each have been interviewed and without exception they said they preferred settled married women as more dependable and more faithful workers.

Even men, in the unskilled branches of economic effort, pass their peak before they are four decades old. There can be little for women to hope for in occupations for which they are not well fitted. If Illinois sawmills pay women workers only $6.02 a week, as the women's bureau reports, it means that the labor cannot be very good as well as that it is underpaid.

Future Elimination.

In stenography and bookkeeping, or any other forms of clerical work, women start without sex handicaps. They have almost driven men from this field and a good stenographer gets as much per day as a woman sawmill operator gets a week. Such pay compares with that of men for the same work.

Laws may help in eliminating sweatshops. They have in the past. Lack of profit to employers, however, will compel abandonment of the system first. The almost complete elimination of women from heavy work in the future is a possibility, and a not undesirable one.

BOND MARKET HURT BY WEAK STOCK VALUES

New York, June 29.—(AP)—The listed bond market enters the quiet summer period with the level of prices disturbed by the effects of a weak stock market.

During the last fortnight the stability of the bond market has been shaken by the wide break in equity issues. Fixed interest bearing securities were sold at concessions by speculators, either to protect marginal accounts or to make new purchases. At least that is the explanation given by bond men for the downward course their market has followed at a time when the easiest credit conditions in a decade were expected to fuse new life into bonds.

Ratify Contract for Sale of General Laundry Co.

Cincinnati, O., June 29.—(AP)—Ratification of the contract recently made by the American Laundry Machinery company for the purchase of certain assets of the General Laundry Machinery corporation is announced by E. B. Stanley, president of the first concern. The contract involves a consideration between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, he said.

SURVEY LOOKS FOR BUSINESS TO SETTLE DOWN FOR SUMMER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—The trend in business generally in the last few weeks has been toward slightly lower levels of activity, partly because many branches of industry habitually curtail operations in the summer months, according to the Guaranty Survey, published by the Guaranty Trust company.

"Even with full allowance for seasonal changes," the report states, "there can be no doubt as to the reactionary character of recent reports. The moderate gains noted a month ago have mostly been canceled, and the current rate of activity appears to be about as low as has been shown at any time since last December.

"Recent developments, moreover, do not brighten the outlook for a marked upturn in the early future. Commodity prices continue to move consistently downward. Employment is still on the decline. Construction contracts awarded in the first three weeks of June were considerably above the rate in May, but both the total for last month and that for the first three weeks were smaller than those for the corresponding periods a year ago.

WALL ST. WAITS FOR INDICATION OF THE UPTURN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 29.—The absence of any concrete sign of an upturn in business to be derived from a study of such business indices as car loadings, steel operations, bank clearings and the like, has turned the attention of the financial community to the question of how a recovery from a depression most commonly manifests itself in its early stages.

The conclusion drawn from the experience of other periods of business recession is that activity in the security and commodity markets is likely to make its appearance sub-

"WE have been enjoying our banking relations with The Northern Trust Company for about twenty years. The fact that I knew I could get your backing when needed, contributed much to the success and growth of this company."

—recent letter from the President of a well known Chicago corporation.

There is assurance in banking this man-to-man way

THE close human relationship between a man and his banker has always seemed to The Northern Trust Company one of the foundation stones of good banking practice.

That is the reason this bank has kept its organization compact, and its executives easily accessible. The officers take pains to know and understand the businesses and the people they serve. Men and women who bank here rightly feel they are dealing with friends who have confidence in them.

Perhaps this personal attitude is largely responsible for the continuing enlargement of the discriminating group who regard The Northern as their bank.

Members of this group find personal banking as practiced here not only pleasant but resultful. It accomplishes things quietly, carefully, without delay.

The Northern Trust Company solicits the business of people who value this type of man-to-man banking. At its home in the heart of the financial district, northwest corner of La Salle and Monroe Streets, an officer will be glad to confer with you.

LIVE STOCK, GRAIN VALUES SUFFER SEVERE SLUMP

Speculators Go Slow in Pressing Selling Side.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain and live stock values have suffered an unusually severe shrinkage and are down to a level where grain speculators are going slow in pressing the selling side as liquidation. Live stock values are so low that consumption of meat should be greatly increased and marketing of live animals decreased.

Between uncertainty as to the moisture situation in the American and Canadian northwest and action of the stock market which has had a depressing influence on grain values in forcing heavy liquidation and at the same time bringing short selling from Wall street operators who were hedging against holdings of securities, traders are kept in a nervous condition. With good rains over the American and Canadian spring wheat territory there are prospects of a good crop provided there is not serious injury from black rust which is always to be found in certain sections.

Crop Prospects.

At the present level of values only a few of the large operators are disposed to press the selling side of wheat. Nevertheless, crop prospects are generally favorable.

Harvesting of winter wheat is well advanced with good yields and quality being reported. Farmers in the southwest are marketing their crop freely, as indicated by loadings of 7,982 cars, mostly wheat, on the Santa Fe system alone, while in the prevoius week they were 2,485 cars and last year, 4,258 cars, with expectations of their continuing large for several weeks.

Hedging sales are to increase as a result of this free movement, but in some sections of the southwest farmers are said to be taking storage tickets instead of selling their grain.

The farm board is doing nothing in new wheat, although the governor of Kansas has asked Chairman Legge of the farm board to buy 20,000,000 bu of new wheat and take it off the market. Contention is that the government should aid farmers when they have grain to sell rather than wait until the bulk of the crop is marketed when the aid offered is of little value. The farm board, however, announces that they will not sell their old wheat at the depressed prices.

Encourages Flour Buying.

Lower prices for wheat has encouraged buying of flour in the northwest and southwest and it is said that a good export business is under way in flour with only fair sales of wheat. There have been hard winters sold from Atlantic ports, but comparatively little is reported from the gulf.

Latest reports to the department of agriculture indicate a crop in the southern hemisphere outside of Russia probably not very different from that of the last season. Large crops in Italy, Germany, Rumania, and in some northern European countries are likely to be about offset by smaller production in north Africa, France, Italy, and Jugo-Slavia. Stocks of old wheat on hand July 1 in all positions will probably be 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 bu less than a year ago.

More Favorable Now.

With smaller stocks of wheat in Argentina and in some European positions and a smaller hard winter wheat crop in the United States, conditions are more favorable than a year ago for moving the hard winter wheat crop in the southwest without serious congestion in terminal markets.

An outstanding feature above crop and market conditions is the fact that the large carryover in United States and Canada must be disposed of before a healty market condition can prevail.

Wheat prices are off 55¾c on July, 40¼c on September, and 29¾c on December from the season's high, with the close for the week 2c lower on July to ¼c higher on distant futures. July closed at 90⅛@90¼c, September, 94⅜@94½c, December, $1.00⅛@1.00. Prices follow:

Corn Acreage to Increase.

An estimated increase of 2@5 per cent in corn acreage is expected to be shown by reports due from private statisticians this week. The crop on the whole has had a good start and has been forced along by warm weather with fair amount of moisture.

Liquidation in wheat has brought out fair selling by tired longs, and also considerable pressure from bear interests, yet prices at the close were only ¼@⅞c lower than a week ago. Stocks of No. 1 and No. 2 corn at Chicago are 520,000 bu, compared with 2,231,000 bu last year, which is considered bullish.

Oat Prices Are Low.

Oat prices are the lowest since 1922 and finished the week ¼@⅜c lower. Cash interests are buying the near futures and selling the distant months and there is a fair business passing. Prices July closed at 35¾c; September, 36½c; and December 39¼@39⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

Leading holders in July rye are said to have unloaded freely. Cash interests have bought in their July hedges and replaced them with sales of September and December at a profitable carrying charge. Rye has sold the lowest in thirty years, yet despite all the depression prices closed 1¼@1½c higher for the week, with July at 47½c, September 52¼c, and December 58¼c.

LARD BELOW 10 CENTS

Lard prices declined materially below the 10c level and finished unchanged to 5c higher for the week after a sharp break due to sympathy with grains and to general liquidation.

Holders of July bellies liquidated early in the week, with a break of 55c, while improved buying by packers, with lighter offerings, later carried values up 60@80c and made a close of only 5@15c lower for the week. The provision situation is fairly healthy, with distribution of hams and side meats about an average.

DEFEAT
The Insull Traction Grab

It Is a Perpetual Franchise

(The Supreme Court of the United States and the Supreme Courts of Various States Have So Decided)

IT WILL MEAN INCREASED FARES
IT WILL MEAN INCREASED TAXES

It Also Provides for Heavy Special Assessments

The ordinance makes a gift of the city's $61,225,000 traction fund to the Insull company.

The ordinance gives a perpetual monopoly of all local transportation of passengers, freight and express in Chicago and suburbs to the Insull company.

The ordinance gives the Insull company the right to run taxicab service.

The ordinance will throw out of work thousands of chauffeurs, teamsters and taxi drivers.

The ordinance will permit the Insull company to drive out of business a host of independent business men.

The ordinance will create more unemployment than employment.

The ordinance does not provide home rule. (The proposed local transit commission will be held unconstitutional.)

The street and elevated railway employes are being fooled with the offer of a pension system which no one has the power to compel the company to put into effect.

The same men who have not carried out the promises of the 1907 ordinance are now asking the people of Chicago to give them a perpetual franchise in exchange for new promises.

Only 40 days were given to the people to study this complicated ordinance of over 40,000 words, but 120 days at least are given to the Insull interests in which to accept the ordinance.

The people of Chicago are being rushed into a bad bargain which they can never change. It is better to be safe than sorry.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on the way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is apprehensive about the coming visit because she had received, just before sailing, a letter from Germaine Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs. He had heard that she was ill.

Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, Catherine is treated coldly by the servants. Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and she tells him of her vague fears.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner, where she sees a man she has noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back in the apartment she finds the gallery open for the first time and discovers a number of pictures and statuettes missing. Jeanne says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is lying. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence on Mme. Bender.

Geoffrey again takes Catherine out to dinner and she unburdens herself to him. He has already put an investigator on the case. He asks her to marry him, but she wants time to be certain of her feelings. Catherine goes to visit Geoffrey's sister.

Geoffrey discovers Blom, the mysterious person seen around the Bender apartment, is running a possible heir to Bender fortune. Shortly after this discovery, Blom's engagement to Mme. Baron, Miss Cushing's milliner, a widow whose maiden name is the family name of Mme. Bender, is announced.

A fire breaks out in Mme. Bender's apartment early in the morning and she is burned to death. Most of the building is saved. Catherine had returned suddenly to Paris the night before. The servants decoy to Geoffrey that she came to the apartment. Geoffrey believes Eduardo, the butler, to Blom's office. He sends for his investigator to watch the man, then calls on the commissariat de police, who assigns Inspector Bazin to the case.

Catherine did return to Mme. Bender's apartment. Before retiring she smells smoke and finds it is coming from her cousin's room. The door is locked. She dashes to get the key and arouse Jeanne, who fights with her to prevent her from opening madam's door. She sees the butler, carrying a heavy candlestick—and then a crashing blow on her skull ends her of consciousness.

Geoffrey receives a telegram signed by Catherine, stating she was well and would telephone him on the morrow. After the first shock of joy he becomes doubtful about the message. He meets the inspector to watch, from a room across the street, the Bender apartment building.

On regaining consciousness Catherine finds herself in a strange bedroom, securely bound. After darkness Jeanne and Eduardo enter, release her and take her out to a waiting car where Blom joins them.

Becoming restless, Geoffrey goes out and meets Bernard, his investigator, who has seen Eduardo with two women entering the car. They set out in pursuit with the inspector in his car.

INSTALLMENT LXXIX.

AGONY OF SUSPENSE.

The chill of utter blankness descended. The inspector spoke first, glancing behind as he backed out into the avenue again.

"They cannot have more than a few minutes start of us. The point is, which direction have they gone?"

Before Geoffrey or Bernard could answer, a manservant in livery entered the square, turning into it from the lower end of the street. Geoffrey called out to him.

The man stopped in the act of pushing open the nearest gate and eyed the party with slight surprise.

"As a matter of fact, I did see such a car, monsieur," he returned civilly. "It was standing along there, empty, twenty minutes ago, and just now it passed me as I crossed the Avenue Victor Hugo."

"Which way was it heading?"

"Towards the Bois, monsieur."

In another second they were out of the square and hastening towards the Bois, which they entered at the Place Henri Martin, at once turning to the right along the Allee des Fortifications. A few minutes brought them to the Porte Maillot, where they were obliged to halt. As the gabelou handed them a ticket of exit Bazin fired a terse inquiry at him.

"A limousine, monsieur? Black, you say?" The man thought for a moment while the three men hung upon his reply. "Yes, a large black car came through not very long ago. Six or seven minutes, I should say. Three passengers and a chauffeur in ordinary clothes, a foreigner, I think. They were taking an ill lady to a hospital somewhere out there," and he jerked his head in the direction of Neuilly. "I fancy she's had an operation on her face, for she was covered in bandages. Is that the party you mean?"

"M. l'Inspecteur, it is they!" cried Bernard excitedly.

"Ah!" exclaimed Bazin significantly. "We are on the right track so far," and, driving down the accelerator, he plunged ahead into the broad Avenue de Neuilly.

At the second mention of bandages Geoffrey's heart missed a beat. Still, Catherine was undoubtedly alive, had managed to walk a couple of hundred yards to the car. He must not allow himself to dwell upon gruesome possibilities, but try to think that the covering of her face was merely an attempt at disguise. The whole business before them now was to overtake her before any further harm could be done, a proceeding which challenged to the utmost their powers of both ingenuity and speed. The commissariat car possessed a good engine, but with a six or seven minutes handicap it seemed a hopeless matter to outdistance the high powered car, besides which at any moment the prey might elude them altogether by some unexpected turn. He voiced his fear to his companion while his watchful eyes searched the tree lined streets at every crossing.

"It is true they have a fair start of us, but that does not necessarily mean we shall not be able to catch them. Remember, they can as yet have no idea that they are being followed, consequently they will not risk a holdup or excessive speed. They have several hours before them, ample time to cover a considerable distance and yet be back by morning."

"You think thy intend to return, then?"

"But of course, monsieur! When they have accomplished their purpose. Unless I am totally misled, those servants mean to slip into the apartment by the private door before any one is stirring—say at four or five o'clock."

"And their destination?"

"I am afraid there can be little doubt, monsieur. Some lonely point along the river."

Geoffrey controlled a shudder. It was what his own belief had told him, and with a sick mind he visualized those headlines unfortunately so familiar in the daily press, "Body of Young Woman Found in the Seine . . . . ."

"Have you any idea what spot they will choose?"

"Ah, that is difficult to decide at the moment. They will scarcely venture anything too close to the city, but whatever place they have in mind they will make straight for it, you can depend upon that. From their point of view, the sooner the thing is done the better for them. That is why I dare not risk telephoning ahead to have them stopped. It seems to me our wisest course is to keep hot on their trail."

The Pont de Neuilly loomed in sight. They crossed it, then slowed down in doubt as to which way to take. A sleepy sergeant de ville emerging into view, they shouted to him a question which after a stupid stare he managed to answer.

"A black limousine? I believe one passed five minutes or so ago. It was making in the direction of La Defense."

With a cry of triumph Bazin shot forward.

"I believe we are gaining a little," he commented. "At all events we have not missed our way."

They reached the monument to the Defense of Paris, inquired again with certain results, and hesitatingly chose the road to Nanterre, from thence continuing on to Rueil. Here they met with further encouragement. A motorist changing a tire informed them that he had seen a car corresponding to their description only a few minutes before.

"Good! Then we are still right. Unless something turns up to upset our calculations, I propose going through Malmaison to Bougival and see what we hear when we reach there. I begin to have an idea . . . . ."

Geoffrey looked at him eagerly, but he shut his mouh with a snap and kept it closed for another mile or so.

As they rushed past the château at Malmaison, that tranquil dwelling filled to the brim with the intimate memories of the great Napoleon, Geoffrey recalled with a stab of pain how only three weeks ago he had sat with Catherine in the garden and listened while somewhat shyly she had for the first time spoken to him of her broken engagement. He could picture again the color in her cheeks that was like a stain of claret, the liquid brightness welling up in her eyes, her delicate, nervous fingers as she played with a stem of glass. He had longed then to touch her hand and tell her that he loved her, but his courage had failed, and he was able only to sit dumbly drinking in the joy of her presence beside him.

For the hundredth time he cursed his stupidity in not foreseeing the trap into which she had walked. If only the knowledge of Blom's intentions had come to him a day sooner! It seemed to him incredible that not until this very day had he grasped the monstrous truth.

The agony of suspense continued. At Bougival they learned nothing, so that it was with only the inspector's belief to guide them that they pushed on to St. Germain, hoping there to obtain tidings of the fleeing car.

The town was almost deserted. In the principal boulevard a sergeant, standing in the glare of their headlamps, considered their unvarying question with a stolid face. No, he had noticed no such car. He had been at this post for the last quarter of an hour.

Come to Haiti, where are stationed some United States marines under command of one Col. Ritchie, and see what happens!

The colonel's lady, a jealous, neurotic and ruthless woman, is the principal figure in the story. She loves a soldier who loves and is loved by the wife of a drunken and brutal captain. Simmering events boil into tragedy.

Aileen Pringle does well enough by the rôle of Mrs. Ritchie, though she is a far better comedienne than a "heavy." She has gone blonde and her resemblance to Mary Pickford is startling. She is Mary as an ultra-modern artist would paint the former—with an accentuated curve here; an exaggerated line there. Not a caricature, but a broad study.

The cast supporting the lady is able but unsensational. Helen Johnson is lovely to look at. Direction is commendable—and unremarkable.

You enjoy this picture, finding it interesting and rather suspenseful entertainment, but you feel that much more could have been done with the subject matter than has been accomplished.

The film has been adapted from the stage play in which Violet Heming played Mrs. Ritchie.

Directed by Carmine Gallone.
Presented at the Cinema Theater.

KIND: Mystery drama.
QUALITY: Good.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Satisfactory.
ACTING: Quite able.
STORY: By Arnold Bennett. "The City of Pleasure" is a London amusement park. The resort really only backgrounds the action which concerns people who have an interest in it. A dark, haggard eyed chap chases around, frightening old ladies, breaking into windows and cutting balloon ropes. The why of his unusual manifold activities is revealed when the time for revelation is at hand.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Considerable. Suspense is well sustained.

REMARKS: The production was filmed in London. Featured in the cast are Paul Richter, whom you saw in "Siegfried," Claire Rommer, and Adele Shanrock. "Nanook of the North" is also on the bill at the Cinema this week. Perhaps you saw it when it was about town on two other occasions. If not, a treat awaits you, for "Nanook" is one splendid movie.

See you tomorrow.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

They have the belief out at Ravinia that the business of a comic opera is to be comic. Sometimes this important truth seems to be lost sight of, but "The Barber of Seville" went on at Ravinia last night and it was immense. From the time that Vittorio Trevisan as Dr. Bartolo met Virgilio Lazzari as Don Basilio on the stage, riotous fun became the key of the performance.

Some of it may classify as rough stuff, but rough stuff sometimes has its place in comic opera. Certainly I have seen few performances of this old work that were as unflaggingly funny as this one, and I speak as one who has seen several that were uncommonly dull.

Mr. Trevisan is the world's greatest specialist in characters like this. Mr. Lazzari was an equally funny contrast and counter-balance. And no one would have thought that as good looking a chap as Mario Chamlee in the first act could have turned into such an incredible refugee in the second. He even startled Conductor Papi.

In between the shouts of laughter one heard some exquisite singing. Mr. Chamlee's serenade in the first act was one. So was the solo in the second act and the lesson scene of the third by Florence Macbeth, who was making her first appearance of the season, and confirming memories of former seasons that she is a delight as a singer and an efficient and dainty comedienne as well. So was the philosophy of a barber's life as pronounced by Mario Basiola, who was the Figaro of the performance. Altogether the performance registered as delightful music mixed with emphatic but genuine fun making.

Progress of Moose to Be Told Today by Davis at Convention

James J. Davis, secretary of labor and Republican nominee for senator from Pennsylvania, was guest of honor yesterday at the 42d annual convention of the Loyal Order of Moose at Mooseheart, Ill. A "James J. Davis" class of more than 800 men was initiated into the order.

In his annual report to the delegates today, Mr. Davis, who is director general of the order, will announce that the Order of Moose is today in the best condition in its history. Nearly 4,800 new members were admitted last night and financial resources have increased $300,000 in the same period.

Two major projects before the convention are the erection of a new Mooseheart high school and the establishment of a boys' village with twenty-six buildings.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Do you always put your name and address on the envelope to prevent your letter making a possible trip to the dead letter office?

The Answers.

Yes, I always do. In my line of work the people with whom I must keep in contact move from city to city so often that I am never sure of reaching them directly. Putting a return address on the envelope is good habit and saves the postal employés much worry.

James Eaker, 1412 East 67th street, machinist—I do and I write it plainly. Many times I have written to different friends. They had moved and forgotten to leave forwarding addresses. So such letters come back to me, telling me those facts. That I think is much better than having them lie around in the dead letter office.

Anne Garbow, 1631 South Ridgeway avenue, biller—I do by force of habit. If the person to whom I am writing fails to receive the letter, I like to know that. Without my name and address on the envelope that would be unknown. It helps, too, when one is not sure of an address.

Maurice Ginsburg, 923 North Sacramento avenue, district manager—I always put a return address on all the envelopes of my letters. That's a great protection for me and a help to postal authorities. It is one way of being sure that a person has received your letter.

Jean Dubner, 1859 South Springfield avenue, stenographer—I never send a personal letter without a return address on it. Perhaps it is a habit I have got from doing so at work. So many things can happen to a letter that can send it to the dead letter office.

Prince Scorns Hungary Plot to Win Throne

Hapsburg Youth Weds, Goes to South America.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, June 29.—The last chapter of the sad story of how Archduchess Isabella spent $2,000,000 to put her son, Archduke Albrecht, on the Hungarian throne and failed, was supplied yesterday with the news that the unruly young Hapsburg had married the divorced wife of a minor Hungarian diplomat just before embarking for South America last month.

The news of the marriage caused a profound shock to the monarchists of Budapest, who expressed the hope that Albrecht will remain in South America and never return here with his "commoner" wife.

Albrecht's action last month in renouncing his rights to the throne by taking an oath of fealty to Prince Otto, 17 year old son of the former Emperor Carl and Empress Zita, hit the Austro-Hungarian noblemen and ladies no harder than yesterday's report of his marriage, for of all possible forms of lese majesty which Europe's remaining royalty and nobility can commit "marrying beneath their station," as they put it, is the greatest one.

Albrecht's bride until a few months ago, was the wife of a poor Hungarian diplomat stationed in Holland. They fell in love. She divorced her husband, and, without any throne to think of any more, Albrecht resolved to marry her.

The angered Isabella ordered them off to South America, and off to Buenos Aires he went. En route he stopped off at Brussels to swear allegiance to Prince Otto, and to make doubly sure of his renunciation of his rights to the throne he took for a bride a woman whom he admitted he loved though she was short on titles.

THE LEAGUE OF NEW YORK THEATERS, INC., which has been formed to end speculation in tickets, now represents about 80 per cent of the playhouses in that city. Nineteen of the leading producers and theater owners have signed the constitution and by-laws, bringing 47 box offices under the control of the organization. The managers who have ratified the plan are:

Aarons and Freedley, the Shuberts, the Erlanger Amusement Enterprises, Arthur Hopkins, Gilbert Miller, Winthrop Ames, Sam H. Harris, Arch and Edgar Selwyn, A. H. Woods, the Theater Guild, Martin Beck, Eva Le Gallienne, Oliver D. Bailey, Lyle D. Andrews, John Golden, Arthur Hammerstein, L. Lawrence Weber, Richard Herndon and William A. Brady.

The league has issued the following statement:

"The board of governors of the league has felt at all times that certain managers would not join with the league in its efforts to curb managerial and speculator graft. The board also feels that the value of the league's plan can best be demonstrated by those few managers who refuse to join with the movement and whose patrons will be afforded no protection against the 'diggers,' 'gyps,' and 'hole-in-the-wall' operators who infest the theatrical district.

"To those pessimists who prophesy dire failure for the plan, the league's only answer is that the plan must be its own prophet. If it is without merit it will not survive. In any event, for the first time in many years the large majority of theatrical managers in New York can clearly establish that they are in no way involved in ticket graft and have taken definite steps to abolish it."

The league's plan fixes a maximum fee of 75 cents for tickets sold by brokers and compels the box offices to retain an ample quantity of orchestra seats, in alternating rows, for sale to the public at advertised prices.

The Theater Guild announces that its ticket prices for Saturday nights next season at the Blackstone will be the same as for any other night in the week—that is to say, $3.00 maximum. This violates an old tradition of the stage—raising prices on Saturdays. The Guild's decision will save its patrons a small sum and its staff from the annoyance of figuring up war taxes, since tickets sold at $3.00 or less are exempt from taxation.

The Selwyn theater will be "booked" by the Erlanger Amusement Enterprises next season, according to Variety, the weekly which specializes on inside information about show business. Its twin, the Harris, is under Shubert control. When the Selwyn was built it represented a partnership between Sam H. Harris and Arch Selwyn. They relinquished it to Crosby Gaige and the Shuberts, the former having a 75 per cent interest. No confirmation of Variety's announcement has come from the managers.

The Dramatic League of Chicago keeps right on announcing plays for next season. Its latest is something from Vienna or Buda-Pesth called "The King's 40-Horse-power Motor." Atilla von Orbak wrote the original and the Hattons [Frederick and Fanny] will adapt it. The league promises that the title will be changed or shortened. In spite of the play's mid-European origin an American newspaper reporter is one of its leading characters.

George M. Cohan proclaims that his first production of the new season will be a play called "Release" written by Louis K. Anspacher, a dramatist who has not been represented on Broadway since 1927, when his "Dagmar" was staged with Mme. Nazimova as star. "Release" will have its première in August. C. C.

Zionist Chief Assails British Palestine Rule

Talks Before Delegates in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., June 29.—(AP)—An appeal to the league of nations to assure that "justice be done" in administration of the mandate held by the government of Great Britain over Palestine was made today by Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist organization of America. He delivered his annual message before the opening session of the 33d annual Zionist convention.

Lipsky, who has submitted his resignation as president, declared:

"Great Britain has shown utter incapacity to administer the mandate over the Jewish homeland."

The recent suspension of Jewish immigration into Palestine and issuance of a white paper by the British government, Lipsky said, had aroused the indignation of world Jewry. He added:

"There will be no diminuation of that progress until the order to suspend immigration is revoked. Until the latest white paper is supplanted by a program calculated to carry into effect the letter and spirit of the mandate.

"The right accorded to Jewish people under the mandate cannot be withdrawn or temporarily suspended for the purpose of suiting the convenience of the mandatory government. A truce remains a trust, no matter how difficult it may be to execute it. As long as England holds the mandate, profiting by its presence in Palestine, so long will the world expect England to keep its pledge and to discharge its trust regardless of difficulties."

Troubles encountered in "our struggle for national redemption during the last year make all preceding difficulties seem trivial and unimpressive," Lipsky said. "In fact, we are living through an attack of major proportions affecting the foundations, disturbing the very heart of the movement."

The riots in Palestine last August in which numerous Jews were killed in battles with Arabs, and "persecution which has followed the August events," has "utterly destroyed" the faith of Jews in the possibility of bringing the Arabs to see "the value of Jewish participation in rebirth of the land," Lipsky added.

A message from President Hoover was read to the inaugural session. It said:

"Please extend my cordial greetings to the convention of the Zionist organization of America and my deep appreciation of their service to the spiritual life of the Jewish race. I have followed with deep interest the occurrences in the last year in Palestine and wish to assure the convention not only of my sympathy with them in their problem, but of my hope that the discouragements of the moment will presently be removed and the work of advancing Jewish aspirations will go forward to even greater success."

Columbus Called Milanese in Newly Discovered Document

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—A manuscript more than four centuries old, written by a friend of Columbus and giving an account of the life and voyages of the discoverer of America, has just come to this country from an ancient library in Spain. There it had lain unnumbered years, its historic import unknown until recently.

The present codex differs in various particulars from the other contemporary accounts of Columbus. One of the most interesting statements in the volume, according to Dr. Rosenbach, is that Columbus was "a dealer in printed books" in the province of Andalusia. This account also gives the birthplace of Columbus as Milan, not Genoa, which some historians concede as the discoverer's native city.

The author of this account of Columbus was Andres Bernaldez, who was born about 1450 at Fuentes-de-Leon, Spain, and in 1488 was appointed curate of the village of Los Palacios, near Seville. After the voyage of Columbus Bernaldez was made chaplain to Archbishop Diego de Deza, friend of the discoverer.

When Columbus returned from his second voyage and was traveling toward the court of Ferdinand and Isabella, then in Burgos, he passed through Los Palacios and was the guest of Bernaldez.

Bar Harbor's New Club Is Open Tomorrow

BY THALIA

The new fashionable Bar Harbor club, Maine, is to open its doors tomorrow. Its board of directors is planning many interesting events for the season. Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia is president and Potter Palmer is vice president. There is to be no formal dedication ceremony, but J. Louis Ketterlinus is to give a large dinner at the club on Saturday night for the officers and board of governors.

Bar Harbor Yacht club also is anticipating a busy season with races after next week on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons over the French man's Bay course. The clubhouse is a popular gathering place for tea on race days, and the spectators can watch the finish of the S and M. D. A classes from the porch.

F. Hamilton McCormick Goodhart of Washington is commodore of the club this year, and is expected to arrive after an early summer sojourn in Europe. Joseph Pulitzer is vice commodore, and Atwater Kent of Philadelphia is rear commodore. Walter Ayer of Chicago is a member of the board of directors. There will be large and fashionable audiences tomorrow evening at the opening of the Surry Playhouse with "The Torchbearers" as the premiere offering.

The George A. McKinlocks are among the Chicagoans who are leasing cottages on the New England coast this year. They have taken the large Francis cottage at Schooner Head and will have with them Miss Muriel McCormick. The Harold A. Howards are already at Mossley Hall, their place at Highbrook road, and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen is at Baymeath, her estate at Hulls Cove. The Walter Ayers and their daughter, Miss Janet Ayer, are again at Steepways, and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick is at Burnmouth with her daughters, Eleanor and Patty. Miss Mildred McCormick has been at the Farmhouse for sometime. The Potter Palmers' shore villa, Hare Forest, has been opened, and the Palmers will be there after they return from a short trip to Europe.

The Arlington Park race track opens its season this afternoon, and there will be a gala crowd of fans present. The Post and Paddock club's exclusive confines will have several luncheon parties, with Laurance A. Armour president of the club, as host at one of the largest of the affairs.

More than a hundred entries already have been received by Capt. Charles W. Fake, secretary for the 6th annual Fort Sheridan horseshow, to be held on Friday and Saturday, July 18 and 19. It is expected that more than 200 horses will compete in the 35 classes, for which something over $3,000 is to be awarded in plaques and cash prizes. The entrants to date include Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Brig. Gen. Casper H. Conrad Jr., Laura Armour, Ida May Minotto, Ralph Hines, Gwendolyn Bowen, Jane Dowling, and Theo Winters.

The Charles H. Hamills of Lake Shore drive are moving out to the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest, to be there for about 2 months.

Mrs. Harry Shearson has taken Robert S. Hotz house in Lake Forest for the summer, while the Hotzes are traveling in Europe.

Mrs. Arthur Cable of Hubbard Woods has left for the Cable ranch near Santa Fé, N. M., where she is to be for part of the summer.

Miss Emeline and Miss Carol Bush have had as house guests at "Frying Pan house," the ranch of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bush, at Amarillo, Tex., Miss Bess Durham of Hubbard Woods and Miss Lydia Maxwell of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Sargent of Evanston, their daughter and sons, accompanied by Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle of the First Methodist church, and his family, are to leave tomorrow for a stay of a month in six weeks in the Black Hills of South Dakota. There they have cabins in the Black Hills Country club. Mr. and Mrs. Sargent and their daughter Fredrica, and Dr. and Mrs. Tittle plan to go by train and Minier and Hastings Sargent and John Tittle are to motor. Mrs. Charles King Corsant is visiting in Washington, D. C., where her son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan, are living.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Mary E. [illegible] nen, daughter of Arnold J. Renne[illegible] 6814 Lakewood avenue, to William Ramsay Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Ramsay of Bay City, Mich., took place on Saturday afternoon in the Fourth Presbyterian church. A reception was held after the ceremony at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Russell Mitchell was matron of honor and Rand Winters of Detroit was best man. After a motor trip to Canada and the eastern mountain resorts Mr. Ramsay and his bride will reside in Detroit.

More than a hundred entries already have been received by Capt. Charles W. Fake, secretary for the 6th annual Fort Sheridan horseshow to be held on Friday and Saturday, July 18 and 19. It is expected that more than 200 horses will compete in the 15 classes, for which something over $3,000 is to be awarded in plate and cash prizes. The entrants to date include Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Brig. Gen. Casper H. Conrad Jr., Laurance Armour, Ida May Minotto, Ralph Hinz, Gwendolyn Bowen, Jane Darling and Theo Winters.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Sargent of Evanston, their daughter and two sons, accompanied by Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle of the First Methodist church, and his family, are to leave tomorrow for a stay of a month or six weeks in the Black Hills of South Dakota. There they have cabins at the Black Hills Country club. Mr. and Mrs. Sargent and their daughter, Fredrica, and Dr. and Mrs. Tittle are to go by train and Minier and Haskell Sargent and John Tittle are to motor.

Mrs. Charles King Corsant is visiting in Washington, D. C., where her son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan, are living.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Mary E. Rennen, daughter of Arnold J. Rennen of 6814 Lakewood avenue, to William S. Ramsay Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Ramsay of Bay City, Mich., took place on Saturday afternoon at the Fourth Presbyterian church. A reception was held after the ceremony at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Mrs. Russell Mitchell was matron of honor and Rand Winters of Detroit was best man. After a motor trip to Canada and the eastern mountain resorts Mr. Ramsay and his bride will reside in Detroit.

Calm Outlook Wards Off Nerve Disorder; Better Than Facials

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I was reading some appalling figures on the increase of mental and nervous disorders in this land of ours the other day. Not having the kind of mind that closes in on figures and keeps them stored for ready use, I can't present them to you. But they struck me at the time of reading as pretty bad. So much so that I began getting a nervous disorder about what my own chances for escape were.

It looks as if the odds were 10 to 1 against those of us who nurse the bright idea that we can muster sufficient calm in an emergency to survive whatever blow might descend. Maybe that isn't the right odds—but the fact remains that nervous and mental disorders are terribly on the increase, and we'd all better watch out or the goofy goblin may get us yet.

However, it is not from great blows that little mental quirks do spring, if you read the mental hygiene reports. It is from the inability to keep one's head in the maddening, senseless rush about us. Trying to keep pace, or perhaps set the pace for the Joneses; trying to crowd a year's work into six months; working without rhyme or system, etc.

Now what all this has to do with beauty is something gravely important to beauty. Nervous disorders and harried, disorderly thinking stamp a face as no pretty face should ever be marked. Apropos, in a smart little millinery shop the other day a potential sanitarium victim appeared. She thumped down, pulled feverishly on a cigaret, then on another, calling impatiently meanwhile for attention, though it was not her turn. "I've got twenty things to do this morning," she finally yelled. "I won't wait any longer. I'll come back tomorrow."

"She's always like that," the quiet attendant explained. "We don't pay any attention to her. She'll be back, if not tomorrow, the next day. She'll have to wait then, too. She might just as well have stayed today."

That's the sort of thing we women are apt to get mentally disorderly over. We fail in cultivating the calm that permits us to get one thing done and out of the way before another is tackled.

Anyway, a little checking up on disorderly nerve habits won't do any of us any harm, and, incidentally, may prove to be a better facial in effect than you can get downtown for $5.

NEW YORK LEADS WORLD OF FASHION, MERCHANTS INSIST

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—New York has passed Paris as the style center for American women, according to a new booklet, 500,000 copies of which have been published by the Merchants' association of New York for distribution among the buyers of the United States and South America. In announcing the publication today Willis H. Booth, president of the Merchants' association, said, "We are making no false claims."

"Paris may on some occasions originate," he explained, "but New York anticipates."

The booklet goes even a step further with the declaration that "New York originates—outspeaks Paris very often."

"Let Paris whisper a suggestion of a new hat or gown for milady," the booklet says, "and the buyer who comes to New York finds that the stylists, the manufacturers, the distributors of up to the minute merchandise have anticipated tomorrow's vogue."

In announcing the mailing of these booklets by the 7,500 business houses comprising the membership of the Merchants' association, Mr. Booth said that New York had been "too long neglectful of the job of telling the country what it has to offer."

Sally Calls to Boys, Girls for Antarctic Trip

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Aren't you thrilled to death at the prospect of our second party of the summer at the Roosevelt theater, a week from next Thursday? The management has invited me to come and bring one hundred boys and girls to see what is probably the most important picture of all time, "With Byrd at the South Pole."

It is the complete history of a great adventure that lasted for two years, and we shall relive it with Commander Richard E. Byrd and the band of heroic men who accompanied him on this voyage of hardship, danger, romance and achievement.

Picture to yourself this party of courageous, daring men when their ship glided out of the New York harbor on that midsummer afternoon in 1928. They were leaving with full knowledge of the fact that their chances of ever returning were slim. Be with them four months later when they reach Ross Shelf Ice, 11,000 miles away. This mammoth cake of ice was to be their home for the many months that followed—months when oftener than not they were battling against the elements for their lives. The ice laden sea, the intense cold, the blizzards, the blackness of the longer winter night that lasted for six months, and the killer whales added to the dangers that constantly beset them.

Of course, you'll want to see "With Byrd at the South Pole," boys and girls, because it is without doubt the best picture you ever have or ever will see. It's the sort of good fortune one experiences not once in every lifetime. And seeing it with ninety-nine other boy and girls will make the party doubly exciting. Write me a letter telling why you'd like to be one of my guests at the Roosevelt theater on Thursday, July 10. Make me know that you are just as excited about this second party of the season as I am and out of the letters I receive I shall select the hundred best, the ones that sound most enthusiastic.

Every letter must be in my office by Thursday morning, July 3, and must include the name, address and age of the writer. Address it to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 29.—[Special.]—Secretary Mellon is spending the week-end with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce, in their Long Island home, a gift to them from him. Mr. Mellon went to New York Thursday to meet his son Paul, who has returned from Cambridge university, England.

Mrs. Walter F. Brown, wife of the postmaster general, has returned to Washington after a brief visit in White Plains, N. Y. She also was in Atlantic City to see her mother, Mrs. George Hafer.

The wedding yesterday of Miss Alice Huston and Fulton Lewis Jr. was one of the brilliant affairs of the early summer in Washington. The bride is the youngest of the four daughters of Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, and the bridegroom is descended directly from the sister of Gen. George Washington, Betty Washington Lewis, wife of Fielding Lewis of Kenmore, Fredericksburg, Va. All officials who were in Washington and were not held at the capitol witnessed the ceremony. The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Epiphany.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My small brother, Arthur, aged 7, recently moved to the city, remarked one day: "Yep, Chicago's a pretty good town. You can get anything without sending away for it."

B. K.

To Franklin and his older sister, Adelaide, lunch is just a detour on their road to play and takes entirely too much time to eat it slowly. One noon as Franklin was hastily consuming his soup, making much unnecessary noise, my sister said to him, "O, Franklin, please don't make so much noise."

Hardly taking time off to look up, he replied, "Why, is somebody asleep?"

ONE PRESCRIPTION MADE FAMILY DOCTOR FAMOUS

Seldom has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than that of Dr. Caldwell in 1885, when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote the prescription as he found men, women and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, no energy, lack of appetite, and similar things.

Demand for this prescription grew so fast, because of the pleasant, quick way it relieved such symptons of constipation, that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is always ready at any drugstore.

Food Talk.

Boston can rightfully boast of her baked beans and New York of her clam chowder, but they can not claim for these celebrated foods a greater degree of perfection than a little heard-of Ozark region in Missouri can for its blackberry cobbler. And there is a reason for this preeminence. The pioneer families that settled in that Ozark section almost a century ago had a difficult time winning their living. The land was poor and crops were never plentiful.

But plump blackberries grew wild and in abundance. The season for this delicious berry was short so women had to use their wits to make the best of this fruit. "Necessity is the mother of invention," was never more true than with these thrifty housewives. The result was that they became skillful in the canning of the berry, making cordials, sirups, jams, jellies, pies, and cobblers. Which is another demonstration that often the best cooks come from families which have had to struggle for food.

The cobbler that these native Missourians make consists of a good, rich biscuit dough for a crust and plenty of fresh ripe blackberries with just enough sugar. There is no water or flavoring of any kind to detract from the flavor. The pie is so juicy that it thoroughly soaks the under crust and oozes up through the slashes in the upper crust.

And strange as it may seem it is not the kind of a soaked crust to which one objects, but rather the kind in which one delights. I have yet to see the person who will refuse this variety of cobbler.

Salad, Blackberry Cobbler Comprise a Delicious Luncheon

BLACKBERRY COBBLER.

2 tablespoons sugar.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
6 tablespoons fat.
2-3 cup milk or water.
3 pints hulled washed blackberries.

Mix and sift the first four dry ingredients. Rub fat into flour until appearance is like dry coarse corn meal. Add milk and mix lightly. Divide dough into thirds. Place two-thirds onto floured board and roll into shape of baking pan. Fix this dough sheet into the pan. Add berries mixed with sugar. Cover with remaining dough rolled out to fit top. Cut slashes in top of dough to allow steam to escape. Bake in a hot over [400° F.] 30 minutes.

Yield: Six servings. One serving: Total, 476 calories; protein, 23 calories; fat, 122 calories; carbohydrates, 331 calories.

Precautions: In making this cobbler, the inexperienced may run into some difficulties. When the dough for the crusts is rolled out there is a tendency to press it into circular shape. If the dough needs to be in a rectangle or square to fit the pan it should be formed into square or rectangular shape before the rolling is begun. Then roll from the center only in the two directions which will keep the original shape. Choose a pan that is deep enough to allow for expansion in cooking. In a too shallow pan there is sure to be an overflow of juice. And any that is lost robs the pie of flavor and appearance.

COTTAGE CHEESE AND PINEAPPLE SALAD.

2 cups cottage cheese.
4 Maraschino cherries.

A crisp lettuce leaf forms the base of this salad. Place a slice of canned pineapple on the leaf. Shape the cottage cheese into mounds on the slice of pineapple. The outer edge of the pineapple should show. Garnish with cherry cut in small pieces.

Yield: Four servings. One serving: Total, 250 calories; protein, 115 calories; fat, 17 calories; carbohydrates, 118 calories.

Open Nature's Book for Youngsters, but Let Them Do Reading

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

If you want to enjoy nature with your children, write to Mrs. Bevans for a list of books on the outdoor world, which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

You know what happens when some one says, with great enthusiasm: "I'm going to invite John Whitcomb and you to dinner some night. I want you to meet him—I know you'll be crazy about each other."

You know what usually happens. What usually happens is that you meet—and hate each other. Take your cue from that when you want your child and nature to meet and to know and like each other.

Children love the outdoors—it is their native element. At first they love it in a big, general way. Then later most of them come to love it in detail, as you come to know each particular feature and expression of the face of a person you care for.

But their coming to a closer acquaintance with the world of nature has to be a gradual thing—a friendship of slow growth. If they ask you questions, answer them. Supplement that with your own knowledge—or find out things about woods and seashore and animals and birds with them. But do it mostly in a rather casual way—not in a schoolmarmish style.

Children don't like to have information crammed down their throats—they must be thirsty for it for it to be palatable, especially if they're little. When they're much older, those who have the academic or a really scientific mind will enjoy garnering their knowledge of nature in a studious way.

On the whole, let them set the pace. Don't hurry them. There's no hurry in the natural world. But do have the source of knowledge at hand—either in your own lore of field and woods and sea, or in books for them to delve into.

You'll find, I think, that their interest will often come in fits and starts—seeming quite slack at some times and keen at others.

One more thing. Children's love for outdoors may be as varied and individual as they are themselves. That is, while they are happy in the country or at the seashore, they will almost always find one special aspect of nature there more appealing to them than another. One child will come to know more about birds, another about flowers, another about turtles and the reptile family, and another about the creatures of the sea.

If this is so, don't try to coerce their tastes. Don't hurry them. Just open the book of nature to them.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

House flies even in the open country and suburbs, can be controlled by screening doors and windows. Other aids are traps and poisons.

A 12 year old boy can make an effective fly trap and bait, placing it just outside a kitchen door, if the insects are numerous. Sticky fly paper, if used, may be suspended by a cord from the ceiling to be out of the way of persons in the room.

An effective fly poison can be made by adding three teaspoonfuls of commercial formalin to a pint of milk, adding enough brown sugar for sweetening. Place a piece of bread in a saucer and pour enough of the poison mixture to saturate the bread and leave some liquid in the dish. This should be set in a window or some place out of the way of pets and not too close to exposed foot, as the dead flies are likely to drop two or three feet from the poison dish.

Tie-Up Is Important in French Fashions

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is a tremendous tie up in Paris summer fashions and it is undoubtedly going to affect future modes as well. The great dressmakers here have taken to tying overskirts on to their most exclusive afternoon dresses. They tie up a soft jacket so that it looks like blouse, and there is scarcely a blouse that hasn't its own, individual kind of tie system. Scarves are tied in new ways, and the tied on girdle is as ubiquitous as chestnut blossoms on the Champs Elysées.

We have worn tied up bows before, but this summer one tie is apt to be all that keeps a smart frock from falling apart. This is true also of waists and jackets and skirts, of course. Ties are an integral part of the Paris costume.

The Louiseboulanger dress shown has an ecru lace foundation and sleeves, and over this is a tied on top skirt of brown organdy and a brief cape that is tied on at the back of the neck. This is one of the outstanding tie-on models launched by Paris.

At the top of the drawing is Cheruit's newest scarf, a triangle of chiffon that passes through jade rings to form two rings down the front of the waist.

A popular tie-on waist of white crêpe romain is also shown. This blouse is fastened by ties at the neckline and at the waistline. They are cut in one piece with the waist body, and drape the waistline and the front of the bodice.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, June 29.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Claude W. Kress and Miss Rosalind Kress are passing the summer at Yeadon, Mr. and Mrs. George Bullock's place on Centre island, Oyster bay.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry L. Schelling and Mrs. Schelling's daughter, Miss Marion Woodford, sailed on the Rotterdam.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Outhwaite will go to Oyster Bay for the summer.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The mother of two children, aged 3 years and 3 months, and only 24 years old herself, writes that since the children came she is most unhappy, that she never did love her husband, not even when she married him, and she does not love him now, either, but would be willing to stick it out for the children's sake.

The difficulty lies in the husband's changed feeling. At first, he was in love. Now he no longer is in love with his wife, as she tells it. She is ten years his junior.

"At times," Pearl, the wife, writes, "I feel as if I want to end it all, for my life is not worth living."

When one reaches the nadir, the pole opposite the zenith, it is a most excellent moment to put oneself on the rack and try to find out the true why of the horrible depression. There's a little "sickness" somewhere in the individual, who at 24, finds life not worth the living, even in the face of domestic strife. In our bright days when marriage disillusion is the common thing it is and when freedom is so easily gained for the woman who can make a judge believe she is sinned against, there is something radically wrong with a mother of a couple of youngsters, small and in need of protection, who can bring herself to say she wants "to end it all."

There's some good ingredient missing both in the heart and mind.

But, of course, women, aggrieved, despondent, worried, do give expression to such a phrase without meaning a word of what it implies. But it is bad psychology even expressing it. It admits a state of weakness, of personal weakness. It is this, far more than it is an accusation against the person supposed to be responsible for it.

No one but one's own self is responsible for the state of melancholia that precedes thoughts of life taking. And usually to the very weakness that admits of the easy way out may be described causes for the domestic disharmony that is blamed.

In Pearl's particular case, she married a man she admits never having loved. A weakness, it must be called. That she could expect him to carry on his initial feelings of devotion without return, is another form of weakness. And that she would ever dream of adandoning the helpless infants has the taint of criminal weakness attached to it.

The Pearls need a bit more of the ability to put themselves in the place of the one they blame for their plight. Our particular Pearl might try to get a bit of light on how it must feel to be a man married to a woman who never loved him and probably stubbornly refused to camouflage her distaste for him.
